Starhemberg Defies Foes; Austria Faces Internal War

Confers With Von Papen on Nazi's Relations Following Coup.

By the Associated Press.

Vienna, May 14.—An open conflict between the government of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg and the Heimwehr, private army of Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, ousted suddenly as Austria's vice chancellor and "semidictator," threatened tonight.

"The real contest is just starting," the deposed vice chancellor asserted as he left to attend a sports event in Rome.

"All my life I have been a fighter, and Austria soon will see I am not licked now. When I said recently my Heimwehr would be pushed out of the picture only over my dead body, I meant just that.

"In about a week the world will hear from the Heimwehr."

A large crowd saluted the prince at the railroad station with cheers and songs.

Schuschnigg telegraphed Il Duce an expression of his "unchangeable friendship" and added:

"I desire besides to assure you I am firmly determined to continue my political actions based on the protocols of Rome (economic and political agreements between Italy, Austria and Hungary) and to develop friendly relations of the three states in their own interests as well as the interests of central European consolidations."

Leans to Democracy.

At the same time a more democratic trend, one away from Fascism, was indicated by Schuschnigg's new government—a trend directly contrary to the Fascist Heimwehr principles.

A source close to the government said that Chancellor Schuschnigg and Franz von Papen, German minister to Austria, discussed at length today the possibilities of improving the embittered relations between Germany and Austria.

This source said one German condition for a rapprochement was the ousting of Nazi-hating Von Starhemberg from the cabinet and that with his departure a major obstacle had been removed.

A Heimwehr spokesman said it would drive relentlessly toward its goal despite Von Starhemberg's expulsion from the government.

"Within a few days the world will know what Von Starhemberg meant when he said the Heimwehr, which twice saved the independence of Austria, will be shorn of its influence only over his dead body," the spokesman added.

Aid Claimed in Provinces.

"Reports from the provinces stated men everywhere are rallying behind Von Starhemberg. On his return from Rome, where he was starting tonight, he will be greeted by a reconstructed Heimwehr, awaiting his commands."

But at the chancellery, Schuschnigg, who holds four portfolios in his new government, radiated confidence as he set up a regime inclined toward liberality and democracy, rather than fascism.

Observers said relations between Von Starhemberg and Il Duce cooled recently and there were indications that Mussolini is in no hurry to see the strapping young Austrian fascist.

In semi-official quarters it was even intimated that the revamped government would like to make a concession to moderate Socialists and that trade unions, which flourished before the dictatorship of the late Chancellor Dollfuss, may be revived.

Chancelor Schuschnigg is making an effort to increase popular support of his regime and it is apparent that in this endeavor he has the support of the army, the clergy, many farmers, legitimists and busi-

Clothier Robbed, Killed in Subway

New York, May 14 (AP).—Edward L. Eckert, 55, executive of a fashionable men's clothing firm, was brutally beaten, strangled and robbed and then left to die in the washroom of a subway station a block from Broadway early today.

For several hours the body of the assistant treasurer and director of the Rogers-Peet Co. lay unidentified in the city's morgue.

Acting Deputy Chief Inspector Francis Kear voiced a belief Eckert was slain by a robber in the washroom of the Eighth avenue independent subway station at Forty-second street.

A score of detectives began a search for the slayer. A routine checkup of subway employes was ordered first.

Mrs. Guggenheim Is Injured In Fall From Horse at Show

Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, with her prize hunter who miscalculated while taking the water jump at the Atlantic City Horse Show Wednesday. She is recovering from a head injury in an Atlantic City hospital.

Prominent Horsewoman Suffers Severe Concussion; Doctors Order Her to Remain in Hospital for Several Days.

Physicians in an Atlantic City hospital yesterday treated Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, of Washington and New York, for injuries suffered Wednesday when she fell from a mount in a horse show there.

Doctors overruled the young sportswoman's request to be pronounced well in time to ride again before the show closes.

Head injuries suffered when her horse fell while attempting to take a water jump, physicians said, would require treatment and rest for several days.

Mrs. Guggenheim, widely known in social circles, was riding Firenze Red Tape, which was among the Guggenheim entries which won eight ribbons last week in the Bradley Farms show in Bethesda.

Col. Guggenheim told the Associated Press his wife suffered "a bad concussion," but was "recovering nicely."

As soon as Mrs. Guggenheim is able to leave the hospital she and her husband will go to Babylon, Long Island, for the summer. Their Washington home at 2600 Woodland drive northwest has been temporarily closed.

Miss Charlotte Ives Montgomery, of Philadelphia, was recruited to ride the Guggenheim hunters in the remaining events of the Atlantic City show.

New Sanctions Threaten War, Mussolini Says

Italy to Defend Conquest of Africa, He Asserts in French Paper.

By the United Press.

Paris (Friday), May 15.—Premier Mussolini, in a statement published by Le Matin today, warned the world that any attempt to increase economic penalties against Italy would be at the risk of war.

Interviewed by Leo Gerville-Reache, Rome correspondent of the newspaper, Il Duce recalled his threat of last September that application of military sanctions to halt Italy's conquest of Ethiopia would involve the "danger om remarking the map of Europe."

"What I said to you then regarding military sanctions, I say to you now regarding aggravatoin of economic sanctions," Mussolini was quoted as saying.

Il Duce said Italy is ready to work "passionately" for peace, but will not give up the fruits of her victory over Ethiopia without a supreme struggle.

The newspaper quoted Il Duce as saying that:

Allenby, Hero In World War, Dies in London

By the Associated Press.

London, May 14.—Death closed today the brilliant career of Lord Edmund Allenby, England's World War hero who restored Christian sovereignty in the Holy Land after almost seven centuries of Moslem domination.

The 75-year-old viscount collapsed in his study and died almost immediately, members of his household said. His health had been reported good recently.

His death removes one of the last of Great Britain's first rank war leaders, five others having died within the last year. They were Viscount Byng, of Vimy; Arthur Henderson, Sir Edward Carson, Earl Jellicoe and Earl Beatty.

Viscount Allenby, who marched into Jerusalem at the head of his victorious troops on December 9, 1917, held three knighthoods, and 18 foreign orders in addition to his viscountcy.

Less than a month ago he became

Judge, 74, Challenges Curley To Fight Over Fitness Proposal

By the Associated Press.

Boston, May 14.—A 74-year-old special district court justice, indignant at Gov. James M. Curley's plan to retire aging judges, challenged the Governor tonight to meet him in physical combat in the auditorium of the House of Representatives.

In a letter Judge Patrick J. Duane, former Mayor of Waltham, suggested to the Governor that he be the first to be given the test proposed by Curley to determine the fitness of jurists older than 70 years.

Duane said he told Curley it didn't make any difference to him whether the public saw the bout or not. He suggested that if the Governor's budget allowed, boxing gloves be supplied.

The judge, who won the sobriquet, "Silk Hat" Duane years ago for his spruce attire and shiny silk topper, said he would allow the Governor "a choice of weapons."

But he added, "As for me, I still have the two mitts I left Ireland with 72 years ago this month."

Duane asserted that regardless of the outcome he would resign his position unless "this humiliating test of Massachusetts judges is over with instantly."

The Waltham justice was named to the bench by former Gov. Joseph B. Ely, who, although a Democrat, like Curley, is a bitter political foe of the man who succeeded him in office.

Curley's proposal to subject aging jurists to mental and physical examination stirred up much criticism during the day, but brought from the Governor the declaration he was merely following constitutional procedure in determining their fitness to hold court.

180 Rescued As Ship Asks Help in Fog

Leak Is Under Control After Craft Grounds and Is Refloated.

By the Associated Press.

Seattle, May 14.—Rescued in fog so thick their lifeboats were hidden from each other, the 180 passengers and members of the crew of the foundering steamship North Sea were sped to shelter in View Cove and Rose Inlet, Southern Alaska, tonight.

The steamship, which early this morning ran aground on Marsh Point, Prince of Wales Island, floated free and then started sinking, reported herself lying in rocky sided Eureka Pass this evening, her pumps controlling a rapid leak.

The Northland Transportation Co. of Seattle, owners of the ship, said Capt. A. W. Nickerson of the North Sea reported no salvage assistance necessary and that removal of the passengers and enough crew men to man the lifeboats was merely a "precautionary measure."

They were picked up by the Coast Guard cutter Alert, which had dashed out of Ketchikan, 60 miles away, when the North Sea reported herself aground. The cutter began rescuing passengers 28 minutes after the vessel wirelessed "we're sinking."

View Cove is about 90 miles from Ketchikan. The North Sea's owners said the Alert apparently decided to land the refugees there and return to the stricken steamship rather than undertake the longer trip to Ketchikan.

Cutter Is Jammed.

Wireless dispatches from Ketchikan told of thick weather and said the little cutter was jammed with the rescued. They said 143 of those rescued were passengers.

While the North Sea's passenger list gave no addresses, the name, "Dr. F. A. Thompson," indicated that Dr. F. A. Thompson, president of the Montana School of Mines, and 21 senior students were among the North Sea's passengers.

The school party left Butte to board the North Sea here Monday on a "graduation cruise" and to inspect Alaska mining enterprises.

None of the wireless messages explained how the North Sea ran aground, but W. J. Manahan, assistant manager of the Northland Transportation Co., said her owners conjectured she grounded during the fog.

Capt. Nickerson, her master, is a veteran mariner. He spent 15 years in windjammers on the Atlantic.

First Word of Trouble.

First word of the North Sea's trouble came shortly after 4 a. m., when the 3,133 gross ton vessel reported she was around and taking water rapidly.

Two hours later the Northland Transportation Co. reported the North Sea had been refloated and was moving slowly toward Ketchikan.

About 11 a. m. the Bremerton (Wash.) naval radio station intercepted a message from the Northland that it was sinking.

The Alert, which had continued to the scene despite the refloating, then advised she started picking up the lifeboats at 11:30 a. m.

Disabled Sloop Asks Aid.

New York, May 14 (U.P.).—The Coast Guard tonight reported that the fishing sloop Lenora from Crisfield, Md., was disabled with a broken rudder about 75 miles south of Norfolk and asked for assistance.

The sloop, owned by Wayde Summers, was believed carrying a crew of four. Her position was about four miles southeast of Oregon inlet. The Coast Guard Cutter Dione was proceeding to the scene.

Firemen Battle Warehouse Blaze

Firemen early this morning were fighting a three-alarm blaze in the op floor of a five-story building at 916-918 D street northwest. The ground floor of the building is occupied by a Woolworth 5-and-10-cent store.

Upper stories of the building were occupied as a warehouse. No one wos in the place, as far as could be learned. Origin of the blaze was not immediately determined.

When firemen arrived they immediately poured water into fifth-floor windows from tower engines. No flames were visible, but a dense black smoke billowed out of the building.

Despite the early hour, hundreds of persons were attracted to the fire, and they remained to watch the firemen attempt to extinguish it.

14 on Train Injured In Louisiana Wreck

Monroe, La., May 14 (U.P.).—Fourteen persons were injured tonight when three cars of an Illinois Central passenger train, bound from Shreveport, La., to Jackson, Miss., were derailed here.

Trainmen said a switch appeared to have been tampered with.

Senate Unit Fails to Agree On Profit Tax

Corporate Income Levy Meets Opposition in Committee.

By Robert C. Albright.

Split several different ways on a substitute, a majority of the Senate Finance Committee yesterday lined up solidly against the undistributed corporate earnings tax applied by the House in a futile three-hour effort to get a "meeting of minds" on a revenue compromise.

"A majority of the committee is opposed to the House plan," Chairman Pat Harrison, who had been striving vainly to reach an agreement on tax policy, told reporters at the close of the group's first move to join controversial questions at issue.

Harrison struck a decidedly pessimistic note on the committee's progress.

"All of the committee agrees the House bill must be changed in certain particulars," he said. "We have been unable to agree on anything up to now. If we do not agree, the fight of course will have to go to the Senate. I think, however, that we will be able to get an understanding at not too unreasonable a date."

Asked specifically whether the issue had narrowed down virtually to whether or not there would be an undistributed corporate earnings tax, Harrison replied that it had. No votes were taken at yesterday's meeting, but Senators aired their views freely, and so many conflicting substitute plans were advanced that Senator James Couzens (Republican), quipped there were 21, one for each member of the committee.

Suggests $15,000 Exemption

Among the myriad substitute plans dumped into the executive committee meeting was one attributed to Chairman Marriner S. Eccles, of the Federal Reserve Board. Eccles proposed retention of the 15 per cent corporation income tax rate. He sugested a $15,000 flat exemption from surtaxes, after which additional levies to induce distribution of earnings would range from 40 to 60 per cent, depending on the amount of income undistributed.

Basis for the attempt to get together were estimates presented by the Treaury in the latest compromise suggestion of Chairman Harrison, coupling a 15 per cent corporation income tax with surtaxes on undistributed earnings in the higher brackets, and designed to yield $626,000,000. Suggestions for a vote were either sidetracked or withdrawn as alternative tax plans were thrown into the field and differences developed over these.

On one point, however, the committee appeared to be in complete agreement—that Congress should raise the full amount of revenue asked by the President, through one means or another. This is the only matter connected with the bill on which the President is said to have been insistent, when Chairman Harrison talked to him early this week.

As rumors passed from the House that some leaders in that chamber's support of the Administration's plan were wavering, Senator Harry Flood Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, a spearhead of the Senate opposition, came out firmly in favor of enacting only a temporary tax measure at this session.

Byrd's suggestion is that Congress fully meet the revenue demands of the Administration, but levy whatever new taxes are needed only on a one-year, temporary basis, with provision for an interim, comprehensive tax study, which would leave drafting of permanent revenue legislation to the next session of Congress.

As opposition widened on the Administration's tax proposals, Chairman Robert L. Doughton, of the House Ways and Means Committee, and Representative Samuel B. Hill, of Washington, chairman of the House tax sub-committee, were summoned to the White House. Both leaders declared that taxes were not discussed. Hill advanced as his personal opinion, however, that most of the suggested compromise plans would bring more complaints than the bill as passed by the House.

The Finance Committee went into an executive huddle in the afternoon, after listening all morn-

Lack of Funds to End RA by July 1, Tugwell Tells Senate Hearing

Westerners Plan Fight for Money

Steiwer and Buchanan Say Relief Should Be Concentrated.

By Felix Bruner.

The Resettlement Administration was headed for oblivion yesterday, along with the Public Works Administration, as a Senate Appropriations sub-committee continued consideration of the $1,425,000,000 relief appropriation bill.

Dr. Rexford Guy Tugwell, resettlement administrator, told the committee that all of his $274,500,000 allotment would be obligated by July 1, and that unless there is an additional appropriation, it will have to "fold up."

Secretary Harold L. Ickes, head of the Public Works Administration, will appear before the committee today to tell a similar story.

Both Tugwell and Ickes have sufficient funds to complete the projects they have begun; but under the terms of the appropriation bill they must gradually fade out of the relief picture, leaving only the Works Progress Administration, headed by Harry L. Hopkins, and the CCC as active Federal relief agencies.

Approved By President.

This arrangement has the approval of President Roosevelt, but a group of Western Senators, headed by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, and Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, were planning to continue their fight in behalf of the Resettlement Administration and, if necessary, to carry it to the White House.

Beginning July 1, Hopkins will take over the major direct relief activity of the Resettlement Administration, that of rural rehabilitation. The deficiency bill, which includes the relief appropriation, gives Hopkins $85,500,000 for this work. Under the terms of the bill, experts agreed, it will be impossible to transfer this money to Tugwell. The bill makes no appropriation to Hopkins to be used for "rural rehabilitation and relief to farmers." Under this heading Tugwell has been making loans and grants to needy farmers.

Transfer of this function to Hopkins will leave Tugwell with his land acquisition and development program, his rural resettlement projects and his four suburban housing projects. All of these are under way and can be completed, at least for the most part, with funds already obligated for the purpose. Tugwell said there will be no possibility of expanding these programs. It is expected that unless Resettlement receives a new appropriation, which appeared extremely unlikely, there will soon have to be a major reduction in its administrative staff, now numbering 15,000.

Transfer Impossible.

Chairman Buchanan, of the House Appropriations Committee, where the bill originated, said that the $1,000,000,000 or more remaining from the $4,880,000,000 relief appropriation made last year was so obligated that it would be impossible for President Roosevelt to transfer any of the money to Tugwell.

"I think all direct relief ought to be concentrated under one agency," Buchanan said. "There ought to be the same rules for everybody on relief, and duplication of administration should be eliminated. As much of the available money as possible should go directly for relief."

He expressed the opinion that Tugwell would be unable to do more than complete projects already under way.

Senator Steiwer (Republican), Oregon, a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, indicated that the minority would make no fight against giving all of the relief appropriation to Hopkins. He agreed with Buchanan that relief activities should be concentrated in one organization.

"I believe we should leave it all to Hopkins," he said. "He may be the world's greatest spender, but he is not the world's greatest visionary."

Steiwer made the statement after hearing Tugwell describe his Resettlement Administration for four

By Agnes E. Meyer

Mrs. Meyer has been chairman of the Westchester County Recreation Commission for the past 13 years.

Part Three.

It remains now to prove that the WPA in Westchester County is incompetent. If the unemployed in Westchester County were well cared for we might endure its corruption, but the combination of racketeering and inefficiency is too much to bear.

Needless to state, since WPA is not honest in its public dealings, nobody believes for a moment that it is honest in the management of its accounts. Of this it would be impossible for an outsider to secure proof for no Blackhand society keeps its records and its statistics more carefully concealed than does WPA.

The history of the pay roll in Westchester, quite apart from the fact that it has inflicted upon the relief workers the most cruel hardship and insecurity, has demonstrated that the WPA officials in Westchester are irresponsible and incompetent. Indeed if WPA were a responsible local organization, WPA officials in Westchester would long ere this have been removed. As it is these incompetents are allowed to go on wasting money and misleading the public because they do the Administration's bidding politically.

The most cruel aspect of the pay roll situation is that employes are deprived of any vestige of security. They have never been paid regularly, they have waited as much as two months for one payment, they never have known and do not now know when they are going to be paid again. The suffering, the economic loss, the demoralization which this hand-to-mouth existence causes the relief workers is incalculable. The general atmosphere of depression in the county is unbelievable for when great numbers of citizens are being unjustly and cruelly treated, while others must stand by unable to come to their assistance, the public temper alternates rapidly and constantly between rage and despair. One of my employes, young and vigorous, actually broke down, partly, to be sure, of overwork for the unemployed, but even more so because our office was at one time overrun all day

Prison Guards, Taken in Break, Rescued Alive

Posse Corners 2 Convicts in Oklahoma Hills; 6 Others Hunted.

Antlers, Okla., May 14 (AP).—Two kidnaped prison guards were found alive here tonight and officers said they were "hot on the trail" of four desperate fugitive convicts from Oklahoma Penitentiary who had held the men as hostages since yesterday.

By the Associated Press.

Cove, Ark., May 14.—Sheriff W. E. Jones said tonight that a posse of 12 or 14 officers had surrounded two of the convicts fleeing from McAlester Prison in the Kiamichi Mountains of Oklahoma about 10 miles west of here.

Sheriff Jones said that another member of the band who killed Prison Foreman A. D. Powell in a dash for freedom was believed to have escaped into Arkansas and headed toward Hot Springs.

The officer reported the two felons surrounded in the sparsely settled mountain country along the Oklahoma-Arkansas border were believed to be Jules Bohannon, serving life for murder from McCurtain County, and Claude Beaver, serving 25 years, from Seminole County, for robbery.

"The two were seen together about 2:30 p. m. in the mountains near the Oklahoma-Arkansas border," Jones said. "One of them was armed with a big pistol. The other one had a rifle."

Five others of the desperate band fled through the rugged Kiamichi Mountain country tonight with two prison guards and a 20-year-old farmer held as hostages.

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, May 14.—A diary found near the body of a Soviet flier disclosed today that he had lived for 45 days after his airplane crashed on a barren peninsula near the Bering Strait only to succumb to cold and starvation.

Discovery of the wreckage solved the mystery of an airplane with a crew of three which had been missing for nearly five months.

The body was that of a mechanic named Bogdacheffsky. His companions, G. Volobuyeff, head of the Chukhotsk aerial group of the Northern Sea Route Department, and Pilot Butorin had left 27 days after the crash to try to reach aid. They have not been heard from and presumably perished.

The three had taken off from Cape Vankaren December 19, on a 125-mile hop to Cross Bay, but did not reach it. For months a search was made with airplanes and dog teams for the missing men.

A geologist named Kremchukoff wirelessed today he had found the wreckage May 3.

In the tent where Bogdacheffsky's diary was found Kremchukoff came across a statement signed by the three aviators explaining that the plane ran into a dense fog and snowstorm and crashed when the wing hit a mountain top.

None of the three was injured in the crash. After waiting nearly a month in vain for searching planes, Volobuyeff and Butorin went out for help. They carried a food supply sufficient for about a week.

Chukhotsk Peninsula juts out from northeastern Siberia toward Alaska. It was near there that James J. Mattern, American around-the-world flier, crashed in 1933 and was lost for 13 days.

Alley Authority Continued Year With Funds Cut

Ihlder Drops Restoration Fight; Agency to Use Revenue, Surplus.

By James D. Secrest.

The Alley Dwelling Authority will be continued another fiscal year, but on a restricted basis, it appeared certain yesterday after the Senate sub-committee on deficiency appropriations had listened to the pleas of John Ihlder, A. D. A. administrator.

Because of the insistence of Chairman Buchanan, of the House Appropriations Committee, that the A. D. A. organic act limits the agency to the initial $500,000 appropriation, Ihlder merely asked the Senate sub-committee to reappropriate unexpended A. D. A. funds and permit the authority to use revenues from rents and sales during the next fiscal year.

This total will amount to approximately $250,000, Ihlder estimated, and will permit the Alley Dwelling Authority to function through the fiscal year 1937, though not on as broad a scale as contemplated.

The Budget Bureau recommended a $300,000 new appropriation in addition to the unexpended balances, but the House Appropriations Committee eliminated the item and threatened the A. D. A. with expiration on June 30.

A statement by Buchanan that his committee would accept a Senate provision reappropriating unexpended funds led Ihlder to decide to drop the fight for restoration of the $300,000 as well.

While Ihlder declined to discuss the subject at this time, it is expected that a move will be started next year to amend the organic act of the A. D. A. to permit annual appropriations.

Senator Arthur Capper (Repub-

4 Cubans Seized In Mexican Plot

Laredo, Tex., May 14 (AP).—The Laredo Times said in a copyrighted story today that four Cubans were under arrest when a plot was exposed to import arms and ammunition and equipment for 2,000 men into Mexico.

The newspaper said three weeks of investigation by United States and Mexican authorities had resulted in the arrests. Three other men were sought in Nuevo Laredo.

The paper said the scheme called for the transportation into Mexico of five carlads of arms, ammunition and equipment.

The Times said the consignments included 2,000 army rifles, 2,000 bayonets, 2,000 cartridge belts, six tanks, 28 machineguns, 60 automatic rifles, 100 GS (believed to be gallons) mustard gas, thousands of rounds of machinegun rifle ammunition, five mortars, six tripods, 400 helmits and 4,000 hand grenades.

Hoover Asserts New Deal Leads To Collectivism

'Republic in Great Peril,' He Says, Urging Party Fight for Reforms.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, May 14.—Herbert Hoover, asserting President Roosevelt's policies are driving the people "into a collectivist desert," asked the Republican Party tonight to fight for a "restoration" of governmental morals and a "revival" of confidnece "in the destiny of America."

Hoover said several New Deal structures should be revamped, among them the social security act, and that unless the Administration's economic policies were reversed there would be "only increased poverty."

The former President said he had been "exposing the New Deal for what it really is" during the last year "only because the Republic is in great peril."

Addressing the Republican Women of Pennsylvania, Hoover called attention to the fact that the forthcoming Democratic National Convention is to be held here.

"I trust these gentlemen will bare their heads before Independence Hall," said the former President. "Under the invisible presence of the men who founded a Nation that liberty might live, they should apologize to the American people. Instead they will produce splendiferous alibis."

Warns of Future.

After urging a fight against what he termed "the destruction of human freedom," Hoover declared: "If we lose we will continue down the New Deal road to some sort of personal government based upon collectivist theories."

He asserted the result of the "collectivist theories" would be a Fascist government with "big business" managing the country "for its financial profit at the cost of human liberty" or "some sort of a socialistst state."

Hoover suggested it was time to "clean out the high priests of these heresies."

For the party he proposed a program covering:

"A restoration of morals in government.

"Real policies of economic and social regeneration in place of the New Deal extravaganzas.

"Realistic, drastic and immediate reforms."

Hoover intimated the NRA had failed to abolish child labor.

"The President," he remarked, "said that under the codes child labor went out in a flash. It was mostly a flash in the pan. The Republican Party must pledge that it really be done."

Assails President.

Hoover also attacked President Roosevelt's recent reference to the relationship between manufacturing costs and purchasing power.

He quoted Roosevelt in the April 25 speech as having produced a magic formula that "reduction of costs of manufacture does not mean more purchasing power and more goods consumed. It means just the opposite.

"The President," Hoover continued, "elaborates its benefits and implies it is the base of his slogan for '26. If the word 'opposite' means anything, then this statement says that 'increased costs of manufacturing means increased purchasing power and more goods consumed.'

"Most of the world has been under an illusion about this up to now. We had all thought that the way to enable the people to buy more was to use every art of technology and government to reduce costs, and therefore prices, provided we held up wages and incomes to farmers and others.

"At least we know now why the New Deal has imposed all their different devices of debts, taxes, restriction of production, juggling with currency and a score of other methods of artificially forcing up costs and prices.

"The magic formula may also explain why we still have 12,000,000 unemployed."

Would End "Waste."

As in preceding addresses Hoover called for the stoppage of "wasteful expenditures," for balancing the budget and a return to the gold standard; transfer of relief administration to State and local non-partisian committees, repeal of the law empowering the President to revalue the dollar, and a "restoration" of the civil service.

Borah Defeat in Ohio and West Virginia Seen As Major Advance for Landon.

By Franklyn Waltman

SENATOR WILLIAM E. Borah's abortive efforts in Ohio and West Virginia have just about finished his chances for the Republican Presidential nomination, if they do not also eliminate him as a major factor in the selection of a party standard bearer and the formulation of a platform at Cleveland next month.

WALTMAN

At the same time, Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas has strengthened his already well-substantiated claim to the Presidential nomination. Except for the fact that little should ever be taken for granted in politics, Gov. Landon's nomination by the Cleveland convention might be regarded today as a certainty, and it can be said that the obstacles to his nomination which loomed a month ago, are disappearing rapidly.

Although others within the Republican Party besides Senator Borah would like to frustrate the Landon aspirations, it is difficult to see how the Kansas Governor can be stopped, especially in view of the serious reverses suffered by the Lion of Idaho. Senator Borah has been the key to the Landon opposition and, with his collapse, it looks as though the entire "Stop Landon" movement will disintegrate as soon as the convention meets.

The possibility still exists, of course, that Senator Borah may arise in the Cleveland convention and dramatically turn his thumb down on the Kansan. But such action, instead of being effective, in all likelihood might prove to be a boomerang against Senator Borah. Such a step would invite the cry of "sour grapes."

And such a cry would be justified. Senator Borah, in launching his candidacy, invited the rank and file of Republican voters to pass on it. He selected the battle grounds where the test should take place. He tried to select his opponents, but it is not incumbent on the other candidates to fight with him, if they do not desire to do so. The result has been a demonstration of general indifference to the Borah aspirations.

It is true that Gov. Landon and Senator Borah have not so far contested formally against each other—although they will do so next week in New Jersey. But in reality, Landon popularity has been pitted against Borah popularity in West Virginia, South Dakota, Massachusetts and—in a somewhat less clear-cut fashion—in several other States.

Almost uniformly the outcome has favored Gov. Landon. Even in the agrarian, semi-populistic South Dakota, where the Landon forces made no effort whatever, the Kansan finished slightly ahead of Senator Borah. Gov. Landon showed remarkable strength in Massachusetts, not only against the Idahoan, but also against former President Herbert Hoover, supported by the State's Republican National Committeeman.

In brief, the result of primary contests during the last three weeks has been to demonstrate the national appeal of the Landon candidacy within the Republican Party and a general indifference to Senator Borah. Consequently, Republicans will reason that Senator Borah has no right to undertake either to dictate to the party or to try to split it asunder.

Recent developments, incidentally, point to the abandonment on Senator Borah's part of any plan to make an attack on Gov. Landon, once regarded as probable. Speaking in Zanesville, Ohio, several days ago, he asserted that, if Gov. Landon or Frank Knox arrives in Cleveland "with a fair expression of the people that he is their choice, I'm not going to stand in the way."

Another factor which makes Senator Borah shy from pressing forward in the "Stop Landon" movement is the increasing influence in the Cleveland convention of Mr. Hoover. The latter undoubtedly will be able to control the votes of a part of the Ohio "favorite son" delegation and he has a following in the California delegation as well as scattered support elsewhere.

Senator Borah started out to destroy the Hoover influence within the Republican Party. That objective, until a week or two ago, had been rather well achieved, even if Senator Borah were not primarily responsible. Now Senator Borah is confronted with the dilemma of joining with the Hoover forces if he wishes to remain opposed to Gov. Landon.

The view which generally prevails in Washington at the moment is that the Landon forces will make overtures to Senator Borah. For instance, they have already asked his co-operation in the writing of a platform. They may make others, for they realize the chances of Republican success this year are too slim to permit of any disaffection within the party that can be avoided.

The view further prevails here that Senator Borah will not bolt the party but that the farthest he will go will be to return to Idaho after the convention and concentrate on seeking his re-election as Senator from that State—keeping aloof from the Presidential contest. Such would be normal Borah behavior.

Landon to Call Session for Vote On Pension Act

Kansas Governor Labels U. S. Social Security Law a 'Makeshift.'

By the Associated Press.

Topeka, Kans., May 14.—Gov. Alf M. Landon announced today that a special legislative session would be held, probably in July, to propose a constitutional amendment for Kansas' participation in major phases of the Federal social security program.

The amendment would be submitted to the voters in November.

At the same time, in response to press conference questions, the Governor, a Republican Presidential possibility, voiced a belief that the present Federal social security act "is a hastily drawn makeshift and unworkable."

"There will be a special session," the Governor told reporters. "It probably will be in July, after the harvest rush is over, in order not to work a hardship on farmer members of the Legislature.

Amendment Necessary.

"The Legislature may act as late as the last week in July, for the people to vote upon the question in November. Otherwise there would be no opportunity to vote on it before 1938."

Constitutional amendments may be submitted only at regular general elections.

"The majority of the legislative council (an advisory group) agreed that a constitutional amendment is necessary before Kansas can participate in the old-age assistance pension and unemployment insurance phases of the program," he said.

Several Democrats have disagreed with the majority opinion.

Senator Joe McDonald and Representative W. G. Fink argued that the State could share in the old-age assistance program without constitutional amendment.

Gov. Landon expressed the view that an attempt to provide for State participation by legislative action alone, without the support of a constitutional amendment, might cause a two-year delay. He said such would be the result in the event the Legislature went ahead and then the courts held its action unconstitutional.

Favors Security Law.

"I am in favor of a social security program, but I have stated repeatedly that I believe the present Federal act is a hastily drawn makeshift and unworkable," he said.

"However, I believe the Legislature and the people have a right to decide any question for themselves. It is up to them," he added.

Gov. Landon said he knew nothing else that he would ask the Legislature to consider, but added the Legislature will determine its own program.

Chilly Spell to End Today; 80 Forecast

Washington's unseasonable touch of chilly weather will end today, the forecaster said last night.

As the District celebrates straw hat day, official here for May 15, a bright sun will shine and the temperature will climb through the high 70s to a predicted maximum of 80, observers stated.

Although the city shivered in a maximum of 65 at 5:30 p. m. yesterday, an occasional straw "topper" appeared in a street preview.

Merchants were busy selling the straw headgear to those who would be fashionable and in season. By today, it was estimated, more than 50,000 Washingtonians will be wearing new hats.

Yesterday's minimum was 46 at 7:45 a. m.

Property Tax Topic.

Charlottesville, Va., May 14 (AP).—Property taxes will be among the topics discussed by members of the Virginia Real Estate Association at their annual spring meeting at the Farmington Club here tomorrow and Saturday.

Exports to Asia Show Increase, Figures Reveal

U. S. Shipments Decline to South America; March Report Analyzed.

In direct reversal of previous recent trends, exports of the United States to South America declined during March, while exports to Asia, including Japan, showed a slight gain, Commerce Department figures disclosed yesterday.

At the same time the State Department announced the formal exchange of ratifications of the reciprocal trade agreement between the United States and Canada at Ottawa, hailing it as "the most important trade agreement yet concluded." A statement from the Department's division of trade agreements pointed to the fact that "each country is the second largest customer of the other's products, but due to restrictions on both sides, trade has been increasingly handicapped since 1866 . . . Trade in both directions between the two countries had reached a total of $1,400,000,000 in 1929, but declined to only $530,000,000 by 1934."

The Commerce Department statistics represented a breakdown of totals released two weeks ago. The March, 1936, export total was $194,792,000 as against $185,016,000 in March of last year.

Considering only exports, by major geographical areas, the figures showed a decline in Europe, northern North America, southern North America, Asia, and Africa for March of this year as compared to March, 1935, registering a slight increase in South America and Oceania.

Considering imports, by geographical divisions, sharp declines were observable for March, 1936, compared to March, 1935, in Europe, northern North America, southern North America, Asio, Oceania, with small increases in Africa and South America.

Atlanta Prison Term Is Begun By Robinson, Jr.

Only Karpis, of 4 Public Enemies, Now Remains to Be Sentenced.

By the United Press.

Atlanta, Ga., May 14.—Thomas H. Robinson, jr., tonight traded his name for a number and began a lifetime behind the walls of the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary for the $50,000 kidnaping of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll.

As the debonair young badman lost his precarious title of "Public Enemy No. 1" for the anonymity of a number, Federal agents closed their books in the next to the last of the big money kidnaping cases.

Only Alvin Karpis, deadly gunman of the Karpis-Barker mob, was outside Federal prison walls tonight. Of the four public enemies rounded up in a smashing 11-day drive by J. Edgar Hoover's men, Karpis alone elected to fight his case in the courts.

But Karpis was headed for the same fate Robinson accepted. He will be tried soon in St. Paul for the $100,000 kidnaping of William Hamm, jr., St. Paul brewer.

Robinson, who pleaded guilty to the Stoll kidnaping at Louisville last night and accepted a life term rather than fight his case and take a chance on a death sentence, tonight began the same routine that broke the bravado of Scarface Al Capone and Gerald Chapman in the sprawling Atlanta prison.

The young man whom his father called a "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" will be studied by prison officials and Warden A. C. Aderholt before he finds his regular place in the daily work of the prison.

When he took his last look at the outside world today he followed the advice of his father, Thomas H. Robinson, sr.

"Keep your chin up and make the best of it," said the elder Robinson as he bade his son farewell last night at Louisville.

Robinson did. As he passed inside the gray prison gates, he lifted high his heavily-manacled hands and waved a final salute to the outside world.

U. S. Recovers $51,374 More In Kidnap Case

By the Associated Press.

J. Edgar Hoover announced yesterday that $51,374.47 of Weyerhaeuser ransom money, or money taken in exchange for the "hot" money, has been recovered since the arrest of William Mahan in San Francisco last week.

The director of the Bureau of Investigation said $157,319.47 of the $200,000 ransom paid for the return of 9-year-old George Weyerhaeuser has been "actually recovered up to the present time."

"Dainard (alias Mahan) has admitted that all of the money recovered from him which was not actually ransom money was obtained by him through exchanging the ransom bills for other currency," Hoover said.

Although a number of the recovered bills bore altered serial numbers, it was possible for experts of the technical laboratories of the F. B. I. to restore the original numbers appearing on these bills.

The money recently recovered will be placed in the hands of Federal court officials at Takoma, Wash., home of the Weyerhausers, for "appropriate disposition by court order," Hoover said.

Hoover said special agents located $14,000 in a glass jar hidden approximately 27 miles west of Battle Mountain, Nevada. The jar contained $13,000 in $100 bills and $1,000 in $50 bills, "which had been obtained by Dainard through exchange of the actual ransom currency." The money had been buried in the ground, Hoover said. The bills were placed inside the glass jar, which was in turn "telescoped" in three successive tins.

Tacoma, Wash., May 14 (AP).—J. P. Weyerhaeuser, jr., who paid $200,000 to kidnapers for the release of his son, George, last May, said today he never had received any of the money recovered by Federal officials from Harmon and Margaret Waley and William Mahan.

"Very interesting," was Weyerhaeuser's only comment when told $14,000 had been recovered from a buried can in Nevada by officers following directions Mahan gave them, plus $37,373.47 found on Mahan's person and in his automobile after his arrest.

At the time of the kidnaping, friends asserted Weyerhaeuser, although the scion of a wealthy family, was not particularly wealthy himself.

Only eight remained at large after yesterday's bloody break of 24 inmates from the penitentiary brickyard, where the "dangersous" prisoners were kept.

The five convicts, believed leaders of the break, picked up the young farmer, Wilburn Doaks, as he stumbled upon their hiding place at dusk yesterday. Forcing him into their commandeered automobile with the kidnaped guards, Tuck Cope and Victor Conn, the fugitives headed for the mountains, east of the prison.

Possemen, aided by radio equipped airplanes which circled over the hills, feared for Doaks' life because he may have "seen too much." They were afraid he and the two guards might meet the same fate as Prison Foreman C. D. Powell, whose bullet-pierced body was dumped onto a McAlester street by the escaping convicts yesterday.

The five forced Doaks to lead them to the farm home of a Mrs. Green, where they obtained food.

John P. Nelson, a neighbor, said Mrs. Green told him Cope had been shot in the neck. Conn, the other guard, was ill and one of the convicts, Jess Cunningham, a lifetermer, was wounded in the back.

Deputy Sheriff Clarence Owens, of Pittsburgh County, learned the convicts and their three hostages obtained lodging from a farmer named Taylor, near Kiowa last night. They were armed, probably with two rifles and two pistols they forced prison guards to surrender in their break.

A bullet-riddled motor car stolen by the fugitives was found wrecked late today 9 miles north of Antlers. Posses closed in on the area, believing the car had carried three of the five convicts and Doaks.

Grady Anderson, prison guard and posseman, said the other two convicts in that group and the two guards had been sighted near Red River, the Texas-Oklahoma boundary, south of Boswell. Roads across the river were blocked and officers converged on the district.

Ten convicts were shot down as the 24 dashed from the brickyard and commandeered three prison cars yesterday. Six others were captured nearby, one sped away in a prison ice truck and seven others escaped in another car after shooting and seriously wounding W. W. Gossett, a guard.

They took Powell, Conn and Cope with them. A short time later Powell's body was shoved from the speeding automobile. He had been shot through the head.

Apparently the seven convicts split up near Blanco late yesterday, two of them stealing another automobile and heading toward the Texas boundary.

Night Officer Wiley Napier, at Antlers, said the two raced through town shortly before dawn in an automobile bearing a Texas license. He chased them eight miles eastward and lost their trail.

Two women and two men who answered description of the fugitives held up Charles Findley, Tuskahoma filling station operator, forced him to ride them a mile down the road, then flung him from the car after robbing him of $25.

Homer Garrison, assistant director of the Texas Department of Safety, ordered Texas Rangers to police the State's Oklahoma boundary.

The lone fugitive who drove away in the prison ice truck abandoned it later and disappeared in the woods on foot.

Profit of $200 Weekly Is Cited At Vice Trial

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 14.—Special Rackets Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey struck at Charles "Lucky" Luciano and the men indicted with him as operators of a million dollar a month vice empire with testimony today that one of them collected $200 a week as his share of profit.

Al Weiner, one of 12 indicted with Luciano, but who pleaded guilty at the outset of the trial, told the jury he paid over the sum weekly to "Little Abie" Wahrman, whom Dewey has labeled Luciano's right-hand man.

Weiner is the son of Louis "Cock-eyed Louie" Weiner, now serving a prison term for compulsory prostitution. He pleaded guilty to taking over houses of prostitution his father formerly operated.

Dewey interrupted testimony of half a dozen women held as material witnesses who told stories of how they were "booked" into the houses which Dewey claimed Luciano and his associates operated and how their earnings were distributed.

None of the women directly linked Luciano, but some of them named James Frederico, one of the ten on trial, whom Dewey called the business manager for the ring.

In his opening argument, Dewey described the vice empire at the top of which he placed Luciano and graded others downward as lieutenants.

Wahrman was placed in the first rank.

Weiner said he collected 10 per cent of the earnings of from 60 to 70 inmates weekly and each Monday night turned $200 over to Wahrman.

He said his father went to Florida in the spring of 1933 for a vacation and left him in charge of the business, introducing him to Wanrman.

"He said I could call Jesse Jacobs (another defendant on trial) in the event of any arrests," Weiner said.

Weiner named another defendant, Davie Betillo, rated by Dewey No. 3 in the combination, as the principal speaker at a hearing of "bookers" in Jacobs' office.

"'Little Davie' warned all of us bookers that we hadn't better hold back on any more percentages on houses and that the next case he heard of would rate a $200 fine," Weiner said.

Beating of Nurse Held Slaying Clew

Chicago, May 14 (AP).—An attempted attack on a nurse in St. Luke's Hospital set police on the trail tonight of a powerful, light-skinned Negro as the strangler who last Saturday slew Mrs. Lillian Guild, 50-year-old widow, in her Y. W. C. A. hotel room.

Four suspects were seized for questioning a few hours after a Negro entered the room of Miss Lois Rickert, 20, of Detroit, Mich., early today and clubbed her head with a brick. A brick was used by the killer of Mrs. Guild.

Miss Rickert suffered a three-inch cut on the head from the brick, which her assailant later used to break a window and escape after another nurse, Miss Edna Fletcher, 20, discovered him bending over her comrade.

French Gold Exodus $181,689,000 in Week

Paris, May 14 (AP).—A statement of the Bank of France disclosed today that there was a drain of 2,739,000,000 francs in gold (about $181,689,000) during the week ended May 8.

This loss, the heaviest of the year, followed a Leftist triumph in the Chamber of Deputies election. It brought the loss of gold reserves since March 20, to 7,670,000,000 francs (about $506,220,000).

Gold remaining was valued at 58,029,000,000 francs (about $3,849,296,000). Unofficial restrictions on currency transactions last week curbed the leak. Gold coverage was at 62.33 per cent May 8, a drop from 64.85 per cent of the preceding week. Gold in the bank's vaults has dwindled by 27 per cent within a year.

Registry Writ Against Willson Lifted by Court

D. C. Securities Salesman Denies Charges Made at SEC Hearings.

The injunction against Charles B. Willson, which was cited by the Securities Exchange Commission as its ground for refusing him registration as an over-the-counter broker, was lifted yesterday in the District Supreme Court by Justice Bailey.

Willson, an investment and securities salesman and broker in the Washington-Baltimore area for the last 15 years, with offices in the Woodward building here, is expected to file a second application for registration.

The injunction was filed originally against Willson for his alleged connection with the sale of stock of the Television and Electric Corporation for the Howard M. Roberts Co. of Baltimore.

In his argument to have the injunction lifted, Emmet Bordon, Willson's attorney, denied the securities broker had any knowledge of the fraudulent nature of the stock, or that he had made misrepresentations in selling the stock, as was testified by five witnesses at the SEC hearings. Willson's connection with the Roberts Co. lasted for only six weeks, Bordon contended, and the broker resigned as soon as he became suspicious the company was not all it pretended to be.

'Inside Story' of Naval Pact Told by Davis, Standley to Committee.

By the Associated Press.

Swift approval by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee of the new London naval treaty was predicted yesterday by committee members after hearing from American delegates to the London conference the "inside story" of the negotiations.

Committee members leaving an executive session with Norman H. Davis and Admiral William H. Standley, the delegates, said they had given a detailed exposition of the pact with Great Britain and France and had made satisfactory explanation of several points considered as needing clarification.

A committee vote on ratification of the treaty was tentatively scheduled for today, and even Senator Johnson (Republican), California, who led the fight against the 1930 London naval treaty commented: "I don't think there's much opposition to it."

It is expected that the Senate will consider the treaty for ratification soon after it is reported out by the Foreign Relations Committee.

Chairman Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, told reporters the pact unquestionably was carrying on the American policy of reduction of armaments to the extent possible under existing cricumstances.

Reasons Given.

"Mr. Davis and Admiral Standley have given the reasons for the treaty, its purpose and its effect," Pittman said.

"It is quite clear that it is an effort on the part of the United States to maintain the structure of limitation of armaments as far as it may be done by agreement without releasing any rights or power that we may deem necessary for national defense."

One question understood to have been given considerable attention at yesterday's meeting revolved around the "holiday" in construction of cruisers by the United States, which was accepted in return for concessions made to the American point of view on some other questions before the conference.

There was no discussion concerning the projected British building program, the effect of Japanese naval construction on the American Navy, or the question of fortifications in the Pacific, committee members said.

State Department officials said yesterday that while the United States has not yet received an official communication from the British government seeking permission to exceed the limit tonnage in destroyers set by existing treaties, such a request was expected.

Interest in domestic naval affairs yesterday turned on approval by the House Naval Committee of a resolution requesting the Navy to recommission the dirigible Los Angeles. The proposal, by Representative Sutphin (Democrat) of New Jersey, met with immediate obstacles when the Navy Department announced that, even if requested to do so by Congress, it would not be possible without an accompanying appropriation.

Overhauling Necessary.

The Los Angeles has been laid up since it was condemned and extensive repairs, overhauling and reconditioning would be necessary before it could take to the air again, Navy officers said.

The resolution followed an inspection made of the craft last Sunday by Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Zeppelin Hindenburg, which has just returned to its home port at Frankfort, Germany, after the transoceanic trip from Lakehurst. The Los Angeles was built in Germany.

Sutphin said Dr. Eckener and other German experts aboard the Hindenburg pronounced the Los Angeles "sound," and "fit for flying."

"Commander C. E. Rosendahl, in charge of the Lakehurst base, and other officers there are ready to fly the ship as soon as they can obtain authirization from the chief of naval operations," Sutphin said.

Earnings Tax Opposition

ing to testimony on varying confusing issues from Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., and Chairman James M. Landis, of the Securities and Exchange commission. Morgenthau presented additional figures on how the proposed undivided profits tax would hit large corporations, while Landis sought to explain how SEC regulations would affect small companies seeking capital through new stock issues.

Scribbled on a writing pad at the seat of Senator Tom Connally (Democrat), of Texas, as the hearing adjourned, was the single pungent notation: "Let there be light."

Chatting with Senators at luncheon was a former high figure in New Deal finance, who severed his connections with the Administration following sharp differences over Roosevelt spending policies.

He was Lewis W. Douglas, former director of the budget. Unwilling to be quoted at length on the tax bill, Douglas said nevertheless that every Secretary of the Treasury for the last 16 years has considered various plans for taxing undistributed earnings, but had found none of them workable.

"I am opposed to the principle of taxing the savings of corporations," he told reporters.

Among the many plans thrust forward as a basis for compromise at yesterday's executive session of the Finance Committee, was Harrison's own tax substitute, slightly revised from the form in which he originally presented it to the committee.

Under its terms, a flat 15 per cent income tax would first be levied against all corporate earnings. With this tax deducted, the first 30 per cent of a corporation's remaining earnings, withheld from dividends, would be exempted from any additional surtaxes.

If a company withheld more than 30 per cent of its earnings from dividend distribution, graduated surtaxes would apply in the following brackets: If between 30 and 40 per cent income withheld, a 30 per cent additional tax; if between 40 and 50 per cent withheld, a 35 per cent surtax; all over 50 per cent withheld, a 45 per cent surtax.

The Harrison proposal would permit an initial tax exemption of $1,000 for companies earning $20,000 or less.

Discussing some of the other conflicting plans put forward at yesterday's "exchange of views," Harrison said one proposal was made to increase the present corporate income tax to 18 per cent; another, to a flat 22 per cent, and still another, to 30 per cent.

Senator Connally, one of the first Democratic committee members to devise a substitute for the Administration's original plan, called up his proposal, but asked the committee to wait for additional Treasury data before action. He said he had revised his plan, virtually doubling proposed surtaxes, after the Treasury told him his first proposal would raise only $500,000,000.

Connally's new plan, which he has turned back to the Treasury for estimates, would impose a flat corporation income tax of 16 per cent. On the first 20 per cent of earnings withheld from distribution, there would be no surtax, but on the second 20 per cent there would be a 20 per cent "super tax;" on the third 20 per cent, a 25 per cent additional levy; on the fourth 20 per cent, a 32 per cent surtax, and on the fifth 20 per cent, a surcharge of 40 per cent.

Provides Increases.

Senator William E. King (Democrat), of Utah, also offered his proposal for combining an increase in the corporation income tax to 18 per cent, with increases in individual normal and surtax brackets above present levels.

Morgenthau appeared before the committee earlier in the day to substantiate his claims that many large corporations would have their taxes vastly increased by the bill, after Senator Byrd had developed at previous hearings that 283 out of a total of 600 corporations earning over $1,000,000 would have their taxes eliminated altogether by the proposed measure.

The Treasury Secretary testified yesterday that 75 corporations in the same income class, which paid $27,000,000 on the basis of 1934 earnings, would have had their taxes raised to $96,000,000 under the pending bill. Morgenthau said that 89 corporations, which distributed under 45 per cent of their earnings, would pay $78,000,000 under the bill, compared with $35,000,000 under present law.

British Budget Tip Is Laid to Minister

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

London, May 14.—Minister for Colonies J. H. Thomas was formally named in court today as the person who gave the tip on the recent budget which caused insurance rates against a rise in income and tea taxes to soar.

R. H. Marriott, stock broker, testifying before a special tribunal set up to investigate the budget leakage, said a man named Waterton "burst into my office on April 20 with good information about the budget." Marriott said Waterton received the information from a friend who in turn allegedly received it from his "good friend, J. H. Thomas."

Thomas previously testified in his own behalf and vigorously denied revealing contents of the budget, most guarded of all British government documents.

Phipps, Hitler Discuss Locarno Questionnarie

Berlin, May 14 (AP).—Reichschancellor Hitler and Sir Eric Phipps, the British ambassador, today discussed the British questionnaire on the Locarno crisis.

The questionnaire, among other things, asked Germany if she now considers herself ready to conclude binding treaties.

Der Feuhrer and Sir Eric also were closeted with Baron Konstantin von Neurath, Reich foreign minister. There was no statement concerning the German response.

Kirsten Flagstad Hurt By Glass Powder Box

London, May 14 (AP).—Kirsten Flagstad, Norwegian soprano of the New York Metropolitan Opera Company, was injured tonight when a glass powder box fell on her head while she was watching a performance of "Die Gotterdaemmerung" at the Covent Garden Opera House.

The box was dropped from a tier above the stall in which Miss Flagstad sat. Members of the audience helped to staunch the flow of blood until a physician was summoned.

The singer is scheduled to make her Covent Garden debut Monday as Isolde in "Tristan and Isolde."

New Headmaster

ALBERT E. ROGERS.

Friends School Selects Rogers As Headmaster

Associate Principal Chosen to Succeed the Late Thomas Sidwell.

Albert E. Rogers, associate principal of the Sidwell Friends School for the last year, yesterday was appointed headmaster of the school to succeed the late Thomas W. Sidwell.

Mr. Roger's appointment was announced by J. Austin Stone, president of the board of trustees of the institution.

The new headmaster came to the Friends School last November, after having held positions in several educational institutions over a period of 15 years. From 1921 to 1923 he was assistant to the president, alumni secretary and graduate manager of athletics at Haverford College. During the next five years he was a master in classics at the William Penn Charter School, and from 1928 until his affiliation with the Sidwell School he was a master in classics at Moorestown Friends School.

Mr. Rogers is the autor of several articles on exploratory courses in the junior high school, and belongs to the Quaker Headmasters Association, the Philadelphia Classical Society and the Federal Schoolmen's Club.

Baptists Refuse To Support U.S. In Foreign War

Southern Delegates Fight Convention's Resolution, But Are Defeated.

By the United Press.

St. Louis, May 14.—Delegates representing three-fourths of the Nation's Baptists adopted a resolution today refusing to support the United States in any war "except as might be necessary to repel invasion."

A spirited fight was made against the resolution at the Southern Baptist convention, but a motion to strike it out was defeated. Dr. J. V. Tinnen, Canal Zone missionary, argued that the Baptists' attitude toward war should be decided by circumstances, and Dr. J. W. Porter, of Lexington, Ky., criticized the resolution as being "virtual dictation to the Federal Government."

Modern morals and civic condition were criticized.

"But for our unwavering faith we should be appalled at the magnitude of present-day problems and be ready to despair as to the future of our social order, even of evangelical Christianity itself," Dr. A. J. Barton, of Wilmington, N. C., chairman of the social service commission, told delegates.

Paramount among Christian problems, Barton said, are "the liquor traffic, the gambling craze, vicious and corrupting motion pictures, the general let-down in moral standards and ideals, even including establishment of nudist colonies, unusual experimentations and policies of government, unheard of appropriations for armies and navies and desecration of the Christian Sabbath."

Ballots Fail.

Columbus, Ohio, May 14 (AP).—The eleventh ballot failed to elect in the General Methodist Conferthe fourth of four bishops tonight ence and a move developed simultaneously to re-enter as a candidate Dr. G. Bromley Oxnam, who withdrew Tuesday when he had 327 votes, only 57 fewer than needed for election.

Oxnam's supporters passed the word to re-enter him on the twelfth ballot, which started immediately after announcement of the eleventh.

Oxnam himself said informally that the reasons which caused him to withdraw after the second ballot had changed and that while he would not formally push his candidacy, he would not refuse election.

On the eleventh ballot Dr. Harry W. McPherson, president of Illinois Wesleyan; Dr. Oscar T. Olson, of Cleveland, and Dr. Loren M. Edwards, of St. Louis were leading.

Strikers Picket Motor Agency In Shop Dispute

Picket lines appeared along Washington's strike front yesterday as dissatisfied automobile mechanics announced intentions of "closing every shop in town."

But while pickets paced back and forth in front of the Nolan Motor Co., 1111 Eighteenth street northwest, automotive dealers throughout the city were inclined to scoff at strike efforts, insisting "it wouldn't last long."

Nolan mechanics, reported to have refused union walkout demands, answered the picket line with a placarded picket of their own. Union picket signs read "This shop unfair to organized labor," while the Nolan banner read "It's a lucky strike to keep rollin' with Nolan."

There were no new walkouts yesterday. Five auto dealers are now affected. Union men, however, indicated that additional strikers would be added to the list today.

"The strike is spreading and is going to spread faster," said one union official.

Adjacent to the Nolan company is the Barry-Pate Chevrolet Co. Officials said there were no indications of a walkout, although mechanics had been approached by labor leaders.

Meanwhile, a mass meeting of union mechanics is scheduled tonight at 8 p. m. in Pythian Hall, 1012 Ninth street northwest.

Loan of Billion May Be Asked By Morgenthau

Money May Be Sought to Meet June, August Maturities.

By the Associated Press.

The responsibility of another billion-dollar Treasury refinancing task, exclusive of new cash borrowing, was hinted yesterday for the coming month.

Government securities to the extent of $686,616,400 will fall due June 15, and, in addition, there was speculation in informed circles that the Treasury might seek to borrow enough cash at the same time to meet August 1 maturities of $374,138,000.

This would call for total refinancing of $1,050,754,400, with some observers forecasting that with the heavy cost of the bonus to be met almost immediately the figure might be increased by at least a half billion in new cash borrowings.

Bids to Be Scrutinized.

Future borrowing, it was said at the Treasury, will be accompanied by a rigid scrutiny of all bids, aimed at the elimination or reduction of those which definitely seem "padded"—that is bids for much larger blocks of the new securities than the bidder actually expects or wants to get.

Such offerings have been quickly oversubscribed in the past, and allocations made roughly in proportion to the amount of securities bid for. This has led to a practice on the part of some institutions and investors of asking for much more than they expect to get, in order to increase their proportionate share.

Third Big Loan.

If the June financing operation should run to a billion dollars, it would be the third such transaction in six months involving that amount or a sum close to it.

In December, the Treasury borrowed $900,000,000, of which $418,000,000 was for the rtirement of maturing securities and the remainder was new cash to finance the winter relief peak and swell the general balance of the Treasury.

In March, the Treasury borrowed $1,309,000,000, of which $800,000,000 was new cash. The remainder included $450,000,000 for securities maturing March 15, and $559,000,000 for maturities of April 15.

Borrowing in March to meet maturities of a month later then constituted a new departure in Treasury practice, and some observers definitely looked for a similar move next month.

Hoover to Forego G.O.P. Convention

Philadelphia, May 14 (AP).—Lawrence Richey, secretary to Herbert Hoover, said tonight the former President will not attend the Republican National Convention in Cleveland next month.

He said Hoover, who addressed the Republican Women of Pennsylvania tonight, will go to Richey's fishing camp at Catoctin Furnace, Md., tomorrow "for a day or two."

Concerning the Cleveland convention, Richey said Hoover would be in the East, fulfilling two engagements at that time.

Chinese New Life Group Opens Drive to Ban Idols

Chungking, Szechuan Province, China, May 14 (AP).—Devotees of China's "new life" movement began a drive today to remove all graven images of gods from public places.

Generalissimo Chiang Kia-Shek, leader of the movement, asserted if the "ignorant masses" are allowed to continue praying to wooden and stone deities for favors they never will rise to a true love of their country.

Authorities, following the example of Soviet Russia, it was reported, soon will abolish wayside shrines, incense altars and so-called joss houses.

Mrs. Mollison Forced By Weather to Land

Graz, Austria, May 14 (AP).—Mrs. Amy Johnson Mollison, British flier, attempting to set a new Capetown-London air record, was forced down tonight by bad weather.

After leaving Athens today she was sighted over the air field flying north, but later returned and landed her plane. She plans to resume her flight early tomorrow.

Mrs. Mollison left Capetown Sunday.

John W. Haussermann, Gold King, Urges Liberality to New Nation.

"The Philippines is the richest country in the world, acre for acre, and it has the largest chrome deposit under the American flag and has already outranked Alaska in gold production last year," declared John W. Haussermann, the "gold king" of the Philippines, who has arrived in the city from Manila.

Asserting that he is not an alarmist but only "a loyal American who is pro-Philippine," He said that if Japan should some day control and develop the Philippine natural resources Japan's economic sinews would be immensely strengthened and hence her military power. Haussermann went to the islands 37 years ago as a volunteer and after the pacification of the country became a government official and then practiced law.

"As there is such grievous misunderstanding in America as to the present political status of the Philippines, I wish to state that the Philippines, under the new organic law, are still under the absolute, supreme and plenary sovereignity of the United States, and will be so until complete independence is granted in the future," he declared.

Hopes U. S. Will Be Liberal.

He expressed the hope that the American Government will be liberal and helpful to the Philippines particularly during the first years of the Philippine Commonwealth, especially when that country, unlike the other territories and insular possessions, does not receive any financial aid from the different Federal relief and rehabilitations funds. Above all, he explained, the economic provisions of the Tydings-McDuffie act should be liberalized.

"The Philippines are a positive asset to the United States in every way and the American people don't know it," he continued. "The Philippines can produce the bulk of the tropical products which we import from foreign countries and it can consume sizable amounts of American manufactures." He said that a "complementary economy" could be established between the two countries and economic conflicts could be eliminated or reduced to the minimum if there is a will to do so.

Discussing the future relations of the islands with the United States, he believes that it is to the mutual advantage of the two countries to continue under one flag and with the Philippine dominion standard symbolizing local self-government by Filipinos.

Harris & Ewing.

JOHN W. HAUSSERMANN.

Filipinos Are Loyal.

He said the Filipinos are loyal, friendly and grateful to America, adding that the Filipino is "keen in intellect, ambitious in outlook, law-abiding and eager to achieve a high standard of living." With the Philippine army, which Gen. Douglas MacArthur is organizing and training, the Philippines will be a military asset to the United States, he affirmed.

As to the international aspect of the Philippine situation, he said that as long as the Philippines are under the American flag no nation will covet it and it will not be an apple of international discord. Once the flag is hauled down Japan will move in, as Japanese commercial interests have already started to do, stressing that the whole engulfing process is perfectly obvious.

Hausserman ended his interview by saying that it is a matter of congratulation that the United States and Great Britain, impelled by their common vital interests, have an understanding regarding co-operation in the Far East. He believed the peace in the Pacific will be maintained by an Anglo-American co-ordination rather than by an Anglo-Japanese alliance.

House Asks Return Of Postal Subsidy

The House balked yesterday at the Senate's elimination of $26,500,000 for ocean mail contracts from the Treasury-Postoffice supply bill and returned the $975,112,000 measure to that body with a demand that the mail subsidy be restored.

Nearly three hours were consumed in a heated verbal battle between subsidy opponents, led by Representative Wearin (Democrat), Iowa, and followers of Chairman Ludlow (Democrat), Indiana, of the sub-committee in charge of the bill, who contended the appropriation must be allowed until the contract authorizing law has been repealed.

Like the House, the Senate previously had adopted the conference report proper on the main body of the bill, but stuck to its subsidy-slash. House insistence on this item gave the Senate the choice of backing down or sending the measure back to conference for further efforts to reach an agreement.

Hoover Praises Police Boys Club

A message to members of the Boys' Club of the Metropolitan Police from J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, terming the club movement "the end of professional crooks," was received yesterday by Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown.

Said Hoover: "We have been called a lawless Nation. The Metropolitan Police Boys' Club of Washington is an organization deserving the honest support of all citizens interested in pulling America out of the morass of lawlessness. It affords a healthy outlet for youthful energy."

Naval Officer Drowns As Plane Sinks in Canal

Colon, Panama, May 14 (AP).—Lieut. Harold P. Richards, paymaster of the U. S. S. Ranger, drowned today when a Navy amphibian plane sank in the Panama Canal north of Gamboa.

Pilot Thomas M. Neal and Storekeeper Henry Melville were rescued by a police launch. Melville carried $20,000 in cash, which was recovered and delivered to the flagship Pennsylvania.

The body of Richards, whose home was in San Diego, Calif., was recovered.

The plane also was recovered.

Senator Borah Hints at Bolt On Trust Issue

Party Must Liberalize or Lose Election, Idahoan Says in N. J. Talk.

Newark, N. J., May 14 (AP).—Senator William E. Borah, Idaho, campaigning for the Republican Presidential nomination, said tonight that "no party alignment will control me for a minute" if the Republican Convention ignores the question of monopoly.

"If the Republican Party will turn its face toward the dawn," he said. "If it will liberalize—name a candidate looking to the future—and I am left out, there won't be a fuses to take hold of the question of monopoly, I propose to follow the issue and no party alignment will control me for a minute."

"However, if the * * * party resingle sting in my soul.

Warns of Vote Loss.

He predicted that if the "ultra-conservative reactionary Old Guard" controlled the convention, "seven million who left the party in 1932 will not only refuse to return, but they will take several more with them."

His hint of a bolt came in his first campaign speech in New Jersey as he asked a delegation pledged to him.

Without a change in leadership and liberalization, he said, "there is no chance for the Republican Party to win next November."

Cites du Pont Activity.

"Why are corporations like the du Ponts so active in this campaign? hey want to preserve the power to tax the American people," Borah said. "There will never be an end to penury so long as a few have the power to fix prices. This is the real issue in the campaign. The real question is whether the Republican Party has the courage to put an end to monopoly in the United States."

"If I am elected President of the United States," he said, "I'll break the monopolies. * * * My opponents pay me the compliment of admitting that I'll do so, but they are not willing to take me as a candidate."

Referring to his opponents again, Borah said:

"They keep talking of my bolting. Let them turn their attention to the issues. Then there will be no talk of bolting."

The Idaho Republican, carrying his campaign for he party's Presidential nomination into New Jersey, emphasized that he had no plans to enter the Democratic ranks, and said he had "given no thought to a third party movement at this time.

"I only know that I'll stick to the issues," he said.

Four Cities Reported In Communism Survey

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, May 14.—A preview of the vote from four big Eastern seaboard cities on the question of teaching the facts about Communism and other "isms" in the schools shows majorities in all four in favor of such teaching, the American Institute of Public Opinion announced today.

The cities whose votes were reported are New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Baltimore.

The vote of each of the States and that of large cities farther west will be part of the complete national poll to be reported next Sunday.

Asked whether schools should "teach the facts about all forms of government including Communism, Fascism and Socialism," Eastern voters indicate the following opinion:

Should Schools Teach Facts About "Isms"?

	YES	NO
Baltimore	53%	47%
Boston	56	44
New York	58	42
Philadelphia	59	41

Some idea of what these majorities represent can be had from the following comparison, the Institute pointed out: 53% to 47% is the margin by which McKinley defeated Bryan in 1900; 59% to 41% is the margin by which Roosevelt won in 1932.

Polls of the Institute of Public Opinion are reported every Sunday in The Washington Post.

Clothing Chains Lead Sales Gains

Boston, Mass., May 15.—The index of chain store sales in March was slightly above February and 5 per cent higher than a year ago. During the past year, however, apparel chain stores sold 13 per cent more goods, and grocery chains 6 per cent more. Taken as a whole, the chain store sales have not increased quite as fast as department store sales.

Railway Labor Urges Repeal Of Hauling Act

Senate Group Hears Plea for More Business to Create Jobs.

By the Associated Press.

Railway labor yesterday threw its strength behind the Pettengill bill to repeal the long and short haul clause of the interstate commerce act.

George M. Harrison, chairman of the Railway Labor Executive Association, strongly urged enactment of the bill to permit the carriers to offer lower rates for long hauls than for shorter hauls over the same route in the same direction.

He told the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee it would give the roads "an opportunity to compete for the transportation business of the country" and thereby provide more jobs for railroad labor.

Chairman Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, asked Harrison where the increased business was going to come from.

Harrison said much would be taken away from water shipping and some from trucks.

Wheeler said he felt the amount of added traffic the roads would get had been "greatly exaggerated."

"Where are you going to get it?" Wheeler asked. "I would like some one to present a concrete statement."

"We know," Harrison replied, "that when the law was enacted we saw our business go to competitors. If we had an opportunity to compete we could get some of it back."

Wheeler said he felt ships would meet repeal of the long and short haul clause by lower rates.

Harrison replied it was "grossly unfair for legislation to be enacted that does not give the railroads an opportunity to compete on a fair basis."

The Montana Senator agreed but said he objected to "propaganda" being carried on for the Pettengill bill. He said it was such "cheap propaganda that any intelligent person could not help but resent it."

Farley Assails New Deal Foes In Barre Talk

Reminds Vermonters of Aid to State; Says Policies Led to Recovery.

By the Associated Press.

Barre, Vt., May 14.—Declaring that "there is no longer any such thing as rock-ribbed Republican territory," Chairman James A. Farley of the Democratic National Committee today outlined benefits he said Vermont and the Nation had derived from the Roosevelt Administration.

Addressing the State convention of the party, which will name six delegates to the national convention at Philadelphia, Farley said critics of the Administration find themselves "confronting the undeniable fact" that business in every section of the country is improving.

Result of "Wise Policies."

"This business recovery is the direct result of the wise policies inaugurated by the Roosevelt Administration."

"I go further than that and say it would have been dangerous for this country if the deflation curve had been allowed to continue downward and if the do-nothing policies of the Hoover Administration had been allowed to continue in force."

Defending the relief administration and assailing its critics, he said:

"If these self-appointed experts and so-called leaders had anything to say at the time of the great crisis, no one remembers it * * * but now that the country is on its feet again, they rush out of hiding and spend their days finding fault with President Roosevelt."

Cites Mayors' Report.

He declared the conference of mayors unanimously praised the work relief program, and added:

"Do you realize now why the Republican National Committee, the Dupont Liberty League, and the hostile press always keep silent regarding this report of the mayors?"

He said it had been "conservatively estimated" that the Federal Government, during the depression years, allotted, lent, spent or disbursed $62,000,000 in Vermont, and asked that consideration be given to "the effective work done by that $62,000,000 in protecting your homes, your savings, and your business during the last few years."

Describing the American Liberty League as "a sport model of the Republican National Committee," Farley declared "both cars are headed down the same blind alley and both will arrive at the same disappointing end."

Host of Allenby On Visit Here Tells of Deeds

Hampson Gary, F.C.C. Aid, Recalls War Days With British Hero.

Lord Allenby, Britain's great soldier-statesman, who died yesterday in London, was a visitor to Washington in October, 1928, following his attendance at the national convention of the American Legion. His host on that occasion was Hampson Gary, America's wartime envoy to Egypt and now general counsel of the Federal Communications Commission.

Commenting on Lord Allenby's death last night, Gary said:

"The news of his death comes as a profound shock. It saddens me more than I can say. I knew Gen. Allenby well, having been associated with him closely while I was stationed in Cairo for nearly three years, at which time he was commander in chief of the British armies there and for several years high commissioner for Egypt.

"With his record in those great posts the world is familiar, and in his feat of arms governments and peoples everywhere have applauded a fame that will rank with the greatest soldiers of our time.

"Romance of Crusader."

"It was my good fortune to be his guest at the front beyond Jerusalem for a while during his campaign and to be associated with him in an official and personal way in Egypt, and I had an opportunity to gauge his stature as soldier, administrator and man. As a soldier, his achievements had all the romance of the crusaders of old, for fighting in the open, largely untrenched fields of war, it was he who at Armageddon defeated and captured three armies and restored the historic Bible lands to the freedom of the fathers—one of the outstanding victories in the winning of the war."

Allenby's task as high commissioner for Egypt, Gary said, was even more difficult than those of Cromer and Kitchener. As a man, he said, Allenby was considerate, sympathetic and peace-loving.

During the internal troubles in Egypt, Gary said, Allenby was ever on the alert to protect Americans and their property.

Article on Cavalry.

While Lord Allenby was in this country he wrote an editorial for the Cavalry Journal, quarterly magazine of the United States Cavalry, in which he discussed the future of the mounted soldier. Admitting that the airplane and the tank affected the cavalry, Allenby insisted they had not superseded it.

"The armored vehicle," he said, "requires oil, water and petrol in large amounts; spare parts and skilled mechanics to keep it in working order. Except in arid desert, the horse can subsist on the produce of the country. The horse can live—and do his work—on one good drink in 24 hours. He can stand extreme cold and extreme heat. In hot climates, the heat of a tank is unendurable to its crew.

"In broken country, amid rocky hills, ravines, sand dunes, dense bush and forest, mechanized vehicles are hampered in movement, and may be brought to a standstill. Cavalry is undismayed by suc hobstacles.

"Modern invention has not rendered obsolete the mounted arm. The cavalier retains all his old power, his quick intelligence, his aggressive spirit; his good friend, the cold steel, is ready to hand, and has proved itself—in many an emergency—deadly as of yore; and he enlists to his aid the airplane, the armored machine, and the quick-firing gun, giving truly strength and mobility to a degree never before attained."

Fishing Law to Stand.

Frederick, Md., May 14.—At a public hearing here this afternoon members of the Maryland Conservation Commission decided against changing the fishing laws of Frederick County. The meeting was called at the request of members of the Frederick County Game and Fish Protective Association. Those who presented the petition failed to appear today to support their demands. Opponents of the proposed changes appeared with petitions bearing nearly 2,000 names.

Lord Allenby, British War Hero, in Jerusalem War Zone

lord rector of Edinburgh University and seized the occasion to renounce, amid a shower of flour from heckling students, what he termed the "glory of conquest with its gain of dead sea fruit."

Urged "World Police."

Then he advocated a world peace force to operate in the same manner "as each nation has a national police force."

The affection of Allenby's men for their field marshal brought unstinting praise to the liberator of Jerusalem. He further demonstrated his ability after the war as high commissioner to Egypt, and during his term showed himself a statesman as well as a brilliant soldier.

Allenby returned to England from Egypt in 1925 and since then had taken little part in public life except on state occasions. He cherished the honor of gold-stick-in-waiting, which entitled him to walk close behind the King.

His picturesque title came from the gold-headed staff first presented by King Charles I to the captain of his life guards-in-waiting in 1679.

For one year—1925-26—he held the position of captain of Dover Castle, but resigned, saying:

"There was nothing between us and all the winds that blow except Cologne Cathedral and that was not very effective. The authorities refused to stop the draught or install central heating, so I packed up."

Since then he and Lady Allenby had lived in a quiet house in the South Kensington district of London, where he spent most of his time attending to his collection of birds. Music and the theater were his other interests.

His title passes to his nephew, Dudley Jaffray Hynman Allenby, an officer in the Eleventh Hussars. Allenby's son, Horace Michael Hynman, was killed in France during the World War.

Holy Land Linked to Name.

Although he achieved smashing military successes on the western front in the World War, as well as in the Boer War many years earlier, the name of Lord Allenby was and perhaps always will be associated with Christianity's reclamation of the Holy Land.

His eminence as an army strategist already was secure when in June, 1917, he was detached from his command in France to succeed Sir Archibald Murray as chief of British forces in Egypt and Palestine. Upon his rugged shoulders now lay the burden of wresting the land of Christ's birth, work and crucifixion from the Moslem rule of seven centuries.

It was a proud record as a soldier of the Crown which Allenby bore when he began this campaign, which was destined to make him a Crusader in the original meaning of the word.

Son of an old Yorkshire family, he had trained at Haileybury and the Royal Military College at Sandhurst and immediately thereafter joined the Inniskilling Dragoons at the age of 21. A few years later he got his first taste of active combat in the Zululand campaign and as a participant in the Bechuanaland Expedition.

At the outbreak of the Boer War Allenby was sent to South Africa to command a cavalry squadron. He was present at the relief of Kimberley and the capture of Johannesburg, was cited twice in dispatches and emerged as commander of the Fifth Royal Irish Lancers.

Hero of the Marne.

He had been an inspector of cavalry four years when Great Britain entered the World War. Military experts credit Allenby's direction of his four brigades of cavalrymen with clinching the allies' victory in the crucial Battle of the Marne in the late summer of 1914. Swept backward by the terrific German advance, the shattered columns of British infantry were protected and ultimately restored to combat by virtue of a screen thrown up along a 25-mile front by Allenby's 4,000 courageous horsemen.

Allenby further distinguished himself at Ypres, Arras and other sectors where the fighting was fierce. In 1915 he was named commander of the Fifth Army Corps, only to be given command of the Third Army a few months later.

Whether in command of cavalry or infantry, Allenby was utterly dependable and the swiftness of his attack was almost incredible. Once his men captured 50,000 of the enemy within a few hours.

The general who, in 1917, was sent to Egypt to relieve Sir Archibald Murray was Sir Edmund Allenby, King George V had knighted him for his valor. A sad blow, however, was to fall the very next month. Lieut. Horace M. H. Allenby, only son of the general, was killed in action.

With the painstaking perseverance of a laboratory scientist, Allenby set out to succeed where others had failed. More than three months he worked, building railroads, setting up communications and otherwise preparing for the big push against the Turks which he planned to launch in the autumn.

He issued strict orders that not even a stone of Jerusalem was to be touched by gunfire. Nor were troops to penetrate into the city.

When active warfare finally got under way, Allenby could not be denied. By early fall the Turks had been driven out of Egypt. They were powerless to cope with his seemingly inexhaustible supply of ruses and unexpected maneuvers.

Enters Barefooted.

By mid-November the port of Jaffa had fallen and Allenby was able to concentrate on the drive to Jerusalem. The Holy City capitulated December 9, its conqueror making his official entry two days later. The reverent deliverer's feet were bare when he was received by the inhabitants.

It was the first time Jerusalem had surrendered to a British force. A Christian banner floated once more over the city for the first time since its brief occupation by the Crusaders of the Middle Ages.

After this victory, there was a lull in the Near Eastern campaign, due to the crisis on the western front. In September, 1918, it was resumed. The main Turkish armies were rounded up at Megiddo and soon afterward Damascus and Aleppo were lost by the defenders.

When Turkey sued for peace after the fall of Aleppo in October, 1918, it marked the culmination of a military campaign which was perfect both in design and execution. Allenby was elevated to the rank of field marshal and to the peerage, being created the Viscount Allenby of Megiddo and Felixstowe. With the title went a grant of £50,000.

From 1919 until 1925 he was High Commissioner for Egypt, whose independence was proclaimed in 1922. He had taken little part in public life since 1925.

Lord Allenby held decorations from nearly all the allied nations. The United States bestowed upon him the Distinguished Service Medal.

Ironically, his recent renunciation of "the glory of conquest with its pain of Dead Sea fruit" is supported by the troubles which the British have encountered in Palestine almost from the very beginning. Even as Lord Allenby was lying on his deathbed, British reinforcements were being rushed from Cairo to Jerusalem to quell fatal riots between Jews and Arabs.

Dr. Swem Dies; Installed Fans In D. C. Church

Centennial Baptist Pastor Advocated 'Comfort' for Worshippers.

The Rev. Dr. E. Hez Swem, retired Washington minister who installed fans in the Centennial Church and invited men to take off their coats for comfort during services in hot weather, died here yesterday at the age of 79.

For about half a century Dr. Swem was pastor of Washington churches. He retired two years ago as pastor of the Centennial Baptist Church because of ill health. He had been pastor there for about 22 years.

He died at his home, 905 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

Dr. Swem was an advocate of "comfort in church." He was one of the first clergymen in the city to advocate more comfortable pews. He had electric fans installed in his church. He even invited the men to take off their coats if the weather was extremely hot.

His original methods of preaching and his texts won him Nationwide fame. Some 20 years ago he toured the country conducting evangelical services. Once he was known as the "Capital Lecturer."

He began his ministerial career in Lawrence, Ind., where he was ordained there in 1881. A native of Greensburg, Ind., he came to Washington in 1884 to become pastor of the Second Baptist Church. He held the post for about 25 years.

Then Dr. Swem accepted the pastorate of the Capital Church, which he later consolidated with the Centennial Church. He was leader in a drive to erect funds for a new building for the Centennial Church, which was completed in 1915.

Five times during his ministry here he was elected moderator of the Columbia Association of Columbia Churches.

Dr. Swem is survived by his wife, the former Miss Minnie L. Johnson; two sons, John B. Swem, of Washington, and L. A. Swem, of New York, and a daughter, Mrs. Thomas E. Griffin, The Dalles, Oreg.

Funeral services will be held at 8 o'clock tonight from the Centennial Baptist Church. Burial will be private Sunday morning.

BEST UNDER THE SUN
Sarthe and Sarthe-St. Croix

Best when lying in charred oak casks on the sunny shores of the sleepy Caribbean—best under our own summer suns in a tall glass with clinking cubes of ice.
Get under the sun with Rhum Sarthe in a cool, clinking Collins.
You will marvel at the mellowness and richness Rhum Sarthe attains under the sun. Rhum Sarthe makes a stimulating highball, too—in an old-fashioned it is like bonded whiskey—so versatile and useful, in fact, it has won the distinction of being known as "The One Bottle Bar."
For a Daiquiri or the famous Virgin Islands cocktail insist upon Sarthe-St. Croix. It, too, has that under-the-sun distinctive flavor found only in rums from the Caribbean.
Rum that has never been aged and mellowed under the blistering suns of the tropics lacks the punch and character that discriminating drinkers look for.

Returning Sanity.

The rout of the Townsendites at the hands of a legislative investigating committee provided unmistakable evidence that the House was shaking off its exaggerated and craven fears of minority pressure groups. The decisive rejection of the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage bill is an even more encouraging indication of stiffened resistance to attempted raids upon the Treasury.

This changed legislative temper is far more important than the mere defeat of a measure that stood virtually no chance of being enacted into law. It reveals a restored sense of responsibility on the part of the House—an unwillingness to "pass the buck" to the Senate or rely upon a Presidential veto to save the country from the consequences of legislative folly.

It is doubtful whether a House that voted overwhelmingly last year for the Patman bill calling for payment of the bonus in greenbacks was any more convinced then than now of the desirability of a dose of inflation. But it is highly probable that a much larger number of Congressmen were then afraid to oppose inflationary measures, believing it would mean speedy retirement to private life. Fortunately, a growing realization that the electorate cannot be propitiated by passing unsound measures at the behest of organized minorities has perceptibly improved legislative morale.

The debate on the Frazier-Lemke bill was of unusually hig quality, being especially remarkable for the emphasis placed upon the danger of yielding to the pressure of class or special interests. It is much more important that the House should realize the evil precedent that would have been established by passing that measure than it is to understand the theoretical differences between financing such outlays by voluntary borrowing and by forced loans. As a matter of fact, uncontrollable inflation is inevitable regardless of the method of financing, if spending is not halted before the credit of the Government is destroyed.

The fact that the House is showing new courage to resist the importunities of the Treasury raiders is for that reason much more significant than the reasons advanced for rejection of the Frazier-Lemke bill. Responsible conduct of legislative business is the best protection against those unsound fiscal practices that lead to ruin. Without it, professions of allegiance to sound money and asserted belief in balanced budgets are meaningless formula.

Where Trial And Error Failed.

In face of repeated rebuffs, President Roosevelt still clings tenaciously to his plans for harnessing the tides of Passamaquoddy Bay and digging a ship canal across northern Florida. Both these undertakings, it will be recalled, were launched under an executive order without Congression approval. Preliminary work was begun with funds allocated from the work-relief appropriation, although the PWA engineers had earlier rejected the canal project and the Federal Power Commission had reported that much cheaper power could be furnished at 'Quoddy by building a steam generating plant.

After $12,000,000 had been expended upon these two projects—which can be completed only at a cost of many times that sum—Congress was called upon to authorize additional appropriations to carry on the work. To their credit both the House and the Senate resisted Administration pressure and refused to set the seal of approval upon projects that governmental experts and engineers in private employment had previously condemned.

There the matter should have ended. President Roosevelt's professed willingness to abandon unsuccessful experiments does not, however, prevent him from trying again to secure legislative indorsement of these dubious enterprises. Congress is being asked to authorize a contingent appropriation of $19,000,000 for continuing the work in Maine and Florida, provided a favorable report is made upon the projects by specially appointed Presidential boards of inquiry.

Senator Vandenberg, who led the successful fight against the first attempt to "hold up" Congress, bluntly denounces this latest effort to secure funds as an "adroit scheme for clothing the President with indirect back-door authority to persist in these economically indefensible mistakes." It is patently absurd, moreover, to suppose that boards could thoroughly investigate projects of such magnitude and report upon their feasibility and economic value by June 20. About all they could do within the space of a few weeks would be to scan the abundant data already collected and try to make it the basis for findings agreeable to the President.

Congress has already rendered its decision in the light of available information. It should stand firm in its determination not to permit the President to encroach upon its spending powers or to commit it in advance to extravagant outlays not of its own choosing.

Schuschnigg Vs. Starhemberg.

The struggle long brewing, between Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria and his erstwhile ally, Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, has now come to a head.

In a bloodless coup d'etat sanctioned by President Miklas, Dr. Schuschnigg deprived Starhemberg of his post as vice chancellor and removed him from the command of the Fatherland Front, that far from harmonious coalition of supporters of the existing authoritarian state. But Starhemberg continues to command his personal army, the Heimwehr, which for some years has played an important part in Austrian affairs.

Unless Schuschnigg is able to disarm and dissolve this body his coup will be without much value to himself and his followers and may only lead to an intensification of the rivalries that have shaken Austria to its foundations. It was, indeed, with this purpose in mind that he recently announced that Austria, following Germany's example, would restore conscription. Actually this move has not yet been carried out, first because of the opposition of the Little Entente; but no less because of the unwillingness of the Heimwehr to lose its identity.

The differences between Schuschnigg and Starhemberg are partly personal and partly matters of principle. Starhemberg's dictatorial ambitions are well known. He aspires to the role of an Austrian Mussolini and has sought to establish in Vienna a regime similar to that in existence in Rome. Schuschnigg, on the other hand, is a representative of those monarchist, clerical and conservative elements that were dominant in the empire of the Hapsburgs.

He and his group believe that only a restoration of the monarchy can save Austria from absorption by Germany. They are far from enthusiastic about the enforced alliance with Italy and have accepted it only for want of an alternative. Starhemberg's flamboyant pro-Italianism, most recently expressed in his enthusiastic telegram of congratulation to Il Duce following the capture of Addis Ababa, has always irritated them.

Exactly why Schuschnigg should have waited as long as he did before asserting his authority over Starhemberg is not entirely clear. Possibly he did not until now feel himself strong enough to play his hand. But an additional reason may be the crisis in Geneva arising out of Italy's victory in Ethiopia and the League's refusal to withdraw sanctions.

This controversy may lead to Italy's withdrawal from the League. Naturally, in that case, Mussolini would expect Austria, his ally, to follow suit. But for at least two reasons Austria would be embarrassed by any suggestion that it leave the League. In the first place, it has benefited a great deal by the League's disinterested aid. And, secondly, there is the fact that Austria's departure from the League would create a barrier between it and the Little Entente nations, particularly Czechoslovakia, which is one of the League's strongest supporters. Recently, it will be recalled, the Czechoslovak government has shown a marked willingness to aid Austria by supporting the lowering of tariff barriers in the Danube area.

Whatever his motives, Schuschnigg's coup is not without its great dangers. The situation in Austria has been very disturbed of late. Should there now break out an open struggle between the supporters of the present regime and the Heimwehr it would give Hitler that chance to fish in the troubled waters of the Danube which many believe he has been eagerly awaiting.

The Prison Problem.

The speed with which the kidnaper of Mrs. Stoll was convicted—48 hours after his arrest—is an added testimonial to the efficiency of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The case against him had been made so watertight that he had no reasonable alternative to a plea of guilty, which brought down upon him a life sentence. For a country that is accustomed to delay and inefficiency in its court system, this achievement is by no means devoid of significance.

No sooner was Robinson started on his way to Atlanta, however, than news came from Oklahoma of a prison break, with its usual quota of prisoners and guards killed and wounded. The coincidence only points up another weakness in the system by which the country seeks to protect itself from inner viciousness. Robinson himself may never escape, but unless some sudden improvement in penal technique is developed, other convicts may be expected to shoot their way out of penitentiaries at regular intervals.

The United States, being still a relatively new country, has a particularly difficult prison problem. The persistence of outbreaks is a grave challenge, the more so since the F. B. I. has shown such progress in the allied problems of arrest and conviction.

Reason Points The Way.

When a conference committee becomes deadlocked over an essential piece of legislation, differences can usually be overcome by resort to reason. Some encouragement may be found, therefore, in the fact that both the Senate and House conferees on the District appropriations bill have questioned L. H. Parker, Congressional tax expert, regarding his excellent study of tax burdens in Washington and other cities. As yet, however, there is little indication that the House conferees are willing to place facts ahead of prejudices.

From a thoroughly objective viewpoint, Mr. Parker has shown that Washington's per-capita tax rate is far above that of any comparable city. The tax burden here exceeds that of the average Southern city by 65 per cent. Still the House conferees contend that the Federal allowance to the Capital City should be cut $3,000,000, which would mean a thoroughly inadequate budget or a tax increase. If the conferees have any disposition to be fair, they will recede from this untenable position.

Additional data to emphasize the necessity of a Federal contribution of at least $5,700,000 may be found in a recent report by the Census Bureau. Out of 94 cities, only four spend more for the operation and maintenance of local government than does the District. Those four are Northern cities—Rochester, Buffalo, Boston and New York—in which, as Mr. Parker has carefully explained, expenses are increased because of cold weather. In the case of New York City and Boston the concentration of many people into relatively small areas is also a factor.

In 1934, the Census Bureau shows, Washington's governmental expenses exceeded similar outlays in St. Louis, Baltimore, Pittsburgh and San Francisco, in spite of the larger population of those centers. On a per-capita basis, Washington spent $69.55 for operation and maintenance of government, compared with an average of $46.22 for cities in the same group, and with $54.47 for the first group of cities, all of which are larger than Washington.

Expenses run far above the average here because Washington is the National Capital. District taxpayers are compelled to support elaborate parks, extensive streets and some national institutions, such as the Zoo, while a large percentage of its area is exempt from taxation. In such circumstances it would be utterly unreasonable to slash the so-called Federal contribution to a pittance.

The Senate conferees have earned the thanks of all Washingtonians by taking this position. Yet they are not, in a strict sense of the word, championing the District's cause. They are merely insisting upon fair treatment for the Capital City, in which the entire country has an interest. Since the alternative to this stand would be a surrender to prejudice, and would mean further crippling of essential municipal services, the Senate cannot be reasonably expected to yield.

A Needed Plug.

As it is today, a District motorist found guilty of reckless driving in another State may well have his right to drive in that State revoked. Additionally, when the local traffic authorities came to learn of this action, they may even revoke his license to drive in Washington as well.

Sauce for the goose is not sauce for the gander, however. The worst that can befall a visiting driver arrested within the District limits is a fine from the traffic court; his right to drive here may not be affected by local authorities. To end this anomaly, a bill has passed Congress empowering the District Commissioners to revoke or suspend a nonresident's right to drive in Washington when found guilty of a serious infraction of the traffic law.

Under present statutes, the District is already empowered by Congress to co-operate with any State in the control of traffic to the same extent that the State will co-operate with the District. Thus, if the authorities in a visitor's home State allow out-of-State drivers 90 days' grace with regard to new license plates, the District in return will permit the visitor the same latitude here. This reciprocity, however, does not give the District adequate control over the driving habits of nonresidents who, incidentally, made up 35 per cent of last week's local speeding cases.

With Washington the mecca for thousands of tourists it is the more important that this gap in the city's traffic regulations be plugged up. And the House is to be congratulated for showing so effectively that Representative Zioncheck's attitude toward these regulations finds no sympathy among his colleagues.

Insurance statistics show that a farmer lives five years longer than a city dweller. There are also other disadvantages in being a farmer.

"What is the greatest thing accomplished by the current generation?" someone asks. We'd say the introduction of the soft-collar shirt.

It's mighty convenient to have a lot of modern conveniences, but it's inconvenient as the deuce to pay for 'em.

Commencement Orations.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Time is now at hand for the annual closing of our schools, for commencements, for graduation. Orators in other days followed the usual line of "inspiration" and led their young hearers to a mountain top to let them view a land of promise flowing with milk and honey—power, greatness and wealth. It was a crowning day of inspiration for these young people. But what of today? Where are the positions these young men and women can fill? Where may be found the golden opportunity once held up before them by those who had achieved greatness and fortune? Where are the outlets for ambitions that have been mothered in the breasts of our offspring? How shall we answer their questions on these subjects?

For generations we have been preaching the doctrine of utilitarian education. We have pointed out the road to financial success, but have not called sufficient attention to the real purpose of education—good citizenship, stronger character, higher altruistic motives, and the building of a happier and more contented society. All too long education has meant the dollar sign, for long have we made the basis of education a means to personal and commercial achievements. It is for this very reason that millions have said: "I am not going to do so-and-so in life, so why bother with an education?"

Speakers on approaching commencement occasions have their greatest opportunity of stressing education's primary purpose. They have no apologies to make the graduates they face. If speakers measure up to the opportunity afforded them, commencement will have its full significance correctly and rightly portrayed. C. B. R.

Noise-Mangled Days.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If the District of Columbia Commissioners cannot end the street car noises of Rhode Island avenue northeast, then it is but the decent thing for the city, regardless of the Commissioners' desire to stay in office, to put them out.

Street cars bring their infernal bang, clank, junk-car clatter, uproar and racket at 5 a. m., even on Sundays. It is devilish enough on week days, but it is intolerable when Sundays, too, go into the noise-mangled succession of days, weeks, months.

London, with its 8,000,000 of humans, is a heaven compared with this Rhode Island and Fifteenth street northeast, where huge apartment houses and homes shelter victims of this detested car racket-eering. B. LOUDUN.

A Floridian Views Soil Conservation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On the sixth instant, I received this letter from our local county agent inviting me to a meeting "for the purpose of discussing the new farm program, or soil conservation program, which is to take the place of the old AAA program."

There were present probably 40 or 50 farmers, including a scattering of men like myself, with dual interests. The county agent acted as chairman of the meeting only. There was present a State agent who acted as chief interpreter of the program.

I will not attempt to go into detail, but not once was "farm relief" mentioned. We were offered 50 cents an acre for this, 70 cents an acre for that, $1 per acre for something else, $1.50 per acre, $2 per acre, etc. We were not even asked if "relief" was needed. Just as the old AAA program, if program it can be called, was based on the economy of scarcity, the new program is identical, but the objective is to be reached by subterfuge. We are to be paid for raising something we cannot sell, in order that we may not have room on the farm to plant the usual cash crops.

It was stressed at the meeting that this was not a "soil building" program, but a "soil conserving" program. Can one conserve that which he has not?

Fully 90 per cent of this cut-over pine land lying all around the Gulf Coast will produce practically nothing the first year without a heavy application of fertilizer. In other words, it must be built up. The usual procedure is a crop of sweet potatoes, heavily fertilized with 800 to 1,500 pounds of commercial fertilizer per acre, followed the next year by sugar cane, also heavily fertilized. Corn may be grown the third year, but it is usually advisable to plant a crop of cow-peas or velvet beans to be turned under before a satisfactory corn crop can be produced.

The point that I am trying to bring out is the fact that the soil as a general rule, all over this section, must first be built up, and then conserved. And this is what the farmers of this section have been doing for years. They do it because it is necessary. Now, the Government proposes to pay us for doing what we have found it necessary to do along.

As far as "farm relief" was concerned, it took us by surprise. I dare say that not one farmer in the county would have actually suffered, had he received no relief at all. Thousands of hogs and cattle are raised at no expense to the farmer at all. He merely marks and brands them, and turns them loose on the free range to shift for themselves. Some times he loses a lot of animals in this manner due to seasons of short natural feeds or disease, but he is not often out much actual cash.

Why does this Administration feel that it is necessary to squander the taxpayers' money? And who asked for such a program, anyhow, outside of Congress? There is only one logical answer, and that is, politics. As far as I am personally concerned, I have never drawn one cent of "farm relief," never asked for it, never expected it, and don't want it.

I have one farmer neighbor whom I believe to be the typical relief client. He has a well-filled corn crib and slaughtered or sold about 20 of as fine hogs last autumn as I ever saw. He possesses about 50 head of range cattle, owns his own farm and makes a trip to market once each week with a load of truck. This man possesses two acres of tillable land to my one, but I never knew him to miss the "relief" truck when it arrived with its load of assorted commodities. In addition to what he drew in his own name, he carried home in the name of a widowed sister-in-law, another turn. Thus it goes 'round and 'round, and comes out where it is least needed. Don't ask me how he got it. The only answer of which I am capable is, "He must be a good Democrat."

At our meeting my only question was: "This money to pay us for this soil conservation program must be borrowed. Who is going to foot the bill? The speaker arose and replied, "The program will of necessity be finally paid for by taxation in which we shall all share, but meantime the Government is going to pay out for this program $490,000,000 and I believe that every farm in the country is eligible."

My inference was, "In addition to the billions already appropriated and spent and spending, we are going to spend $490,000,000 more, and more than that if necessary, to make the farmers vote as we want them to vote in the next election. Well, perhaps, but if every farmer is he-man enough and has the intestinal fortitude to say "no" to something which he does not need, there will be just $490,000,000 less to be paid off by our grandchildren.

A Patient's Testimonial.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A humanitarian element in your editorials has never been lacking. I have admired your attitude on the need for more financial assistance to hospitals, especially in caring for those who need medical attention and have no money.

At this particular season the National Homeopathic Hospital is putting forth efforts to raise money for the assistance of such patients and if any hospital deserves a hearty response to an appeal for funds it is this particular institution. I am a convert to both homeopathy and the Homeopathic Hospital and would rejoice if my own personal experience could be of assistance to others.

During the greater part of last July, I was a patient in the Homeopathic Hospital. Anticipating a hot and uncomfortable forced residence there, I was happily disappointed. The nurses were delightfully human, anxious to do all possible for my comfort, every assistant was equally solicitous. The rooms arranged for one or two patients made for complete or semiprivacy and for economy. The atmosphere was decidedly cheerful. My physician and surgeon were the best and converted me to a sincere respect for the medical profession and admiration for their own ability and personal interest.

I look back upon that period as a pleasant experience and would never hesitate to again undergo an operation if it were at that hospital, with those kind nurses and with the splendid doctors who have given me back health and an interest in everything worth-while. Within the year I have met a number of people who have been patients at the same hospital and all express themselves with enthusiasm as to their experience in that fine institution.

I am glad that the Lace Ball was so well attended and hope it has brought a goodly sum; and that individuals will continue to contribute money for the assistance of those without funds who demand the best medical care and can obtain it at the National Homeopathic Hospital. ISABELLE STONE.

Votes In The District.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post is to be congratulated for its policy of not rewriting or trimming letters from its forum contributors so as to emasculate articles or make the contribution favor its editorial policies. A forum that prevents discussion of controversial issues or tends to the presentation of but one side of a question is insulting to intelligence, however it may appeal to prejudice.

This writer was glad to read the article entitled "Better Off Voteless," of May 5 by Alexander Sidney Lanier. His article frankly puts forth the most vexing issue the contenders for District suffrage must meet. Among his arguments he cites: "There are 165,000 Negroes in the District, which number would be greatly augmented from Virginia and Maryland if suffrage is given." . . . "that the result would be a coalition among a certain class of whites and Negroes who would absolutely control the elections." Then he goes on to say: "The results would be disastrous socially and politically" . . . and "should be opposed by all the decent elements," which, by inference, are "the wealthy and better class or those who have any substantial material interests here."

It seems that Lanier does not believe in democracy. With regard to the Negro and society, does Mr. Lanier still believe that all Negroes are of the illiterate stratum? Are the cities of the South where Negroes do not vote governed better than the cities of the West and North where Negroes in large numbers do share suffrage? There are as many Negroes voting the Democratic way as the Republican ticket these days.

After all, Washington may be better governed as a non-voting municipality, and the reasons given for opposing suffrage may be the real reasons, but they are unfair to the Negroes in the District, who are more intelligent and far more cultured than their jobless and depressed economic status gives evidence of. E. B. HENDERSON.

"The Town Time Forgot"

Post Office, Friday.

NEVER seen the site of Fort Casimir?

Never gone to Fort Trefalldigheet?

Or Fort Trinity?

Never been to Nieu Amstel?

Then you should feel uncommonly like the Aude peasant who never had seen Carcossonne.

They're not far from Washington—as automobiles go. And lots are going in that direction tomorrow.

We spoke of them, these places, only a week or so ago, when talking of towns that had been fortunate enough to escape the temptations of modern taste, the slugs and machine-guns of modern misfortune.

Fort Casimir, Fort Trefalldigheet, Fort Trinity, Nieu Amstel; they're all four one and the same. They're New Castle, Del.

But the charming thing about New Castle is that it is still so largely those others.

As you will have guessed, from all those forts among its names, it has been well fought for:

Just about 285 years ago—when Holland was getting ready for naval victories over England, and Cromwell was getting ready to deal with a Stuart invasion—the Dutch sailed up the Delaware and built Fort Casimir.

In 1654—the year that Voltaire's hero, Charles X, ascended Sweden's throne—the Swedes captured the place on Trinity Sunday and called it Fort Trefalldigheet: Fort Trinity.

Next year, cleaning up New Sweden, the Dutch retook Fort Trinity, old Peter Stuyvesant being personally present, and changed its name to Nieu Amstel.

Finally, in 1614, about the time the British captured Nieu Amsterdam and called it New York, British Sir Robert Carr seized Nieu Amstel and called it New Castle.

There, in a building on the spot where Immanuel Church now stands, William Penn—whose "first stop" in America was New Castle—went through the ceremony of assuming formal possession, 1682. The present rector of the church, the Rev. Joseph H. Earp, writes us:

"Penn locked himself in, then emerged to receive the twig, turf and water that the Commissioners of the Duke of York presented to him as symbols of his proprietorship. It was Penn's first public act in America."

The very center of that schoolboy-puzzling half-circle, that 12-mile long arc which forms the northern boundary of Delaware, New Castle was, a hundred years ago, terminus of the N. C. & F. R. R.—the New Castle & Frenchtown—among the country's earliest railways. Before that road was built, Southerners "visiting North" took boat to New Castle and there got a stage coach for Philadelphia. John M. Clayton lived in New Castle, and George Read and the Janviers. Why, there's still a Strand in New Castle—still a Harmony street!

Old houses? Lots.

There's Old Dutch House, dating from the sixteen hundreds. There's Immanuel Church, founded in 1689, built in 1703. There's Amstel House (1730), where, you'll remember, George Washington stopped when he went to New Castle for the marriage of Gov. Nicholas Van Dyke's daughter. Ann, to the elder Kensey Johns; intact, and in use, is the colonial kitchen where the wedding breakfast was cooked—portraits of the bride and groom in the drawing room——

And, speaking of portraits, New Castle has portraits of Signers Read and Ross by Gilbert Stuart and Benjamin West. There's a 1580 "command" portrait of Queen Elizabeth, by Nicholas Hilliard, for which that short-tempered lady posed in person. Moreover—what we like best—there is an excellent Sir Peter Lely.

There's a graveyard a bit crowded by distinguished Delawareans, and there must be many miles of the old-fashioned gardens . . .

Andirons from Arlington, clocks that have been ticking for a century and a quarter, colonial silver, Lowestoft china, revolutionary manuscripts, pre-Revolutionary books and shawls and quilts: that's New Castle. There is no end to its old furniture, from botanist Bartrim's easy chair (until we visited New Castle, we never knew that he ever took his ease) to the mahogany of Lydia Darragh, Quakeress and spy, with whose 1780 rescue of the American Army you are perfectly familiar—if you have been reading the Post-Impressionist regularly.

And, unless our memory plays us false, there used to be a whipping-post in New Castle, as surely as ever there was a Whipping Post attached to this Column.

Isn't there a whipping-post in New Castle now?

When you go up there tomorrow (tomorrow's the day when New Castle's old houses will be "open to the public") you'll see all these things. And, when you come back, you might tell us about that whipping-post.

No. 4,567—Lawson Little and Haile Selassie.

Haile—It's a tough world.

Lawson—You're telling me! What are you kicking about?

Haile—I have just lost my kingdom.

Haile—What is the National Open?

Lawson—It's the same as the Ethiopian war except that there are about 40 Mussolinis in it.

Haile—I can't imagine 40 men as inconsiderate, as dangerous or as disrespectful of others as Mussolini.

Lawson—You could if you ever played in those golf tournaments.

Lawson (after an absent-minded pause)—Where did you play?

Haile—The Addis Ababa sweepstakes.

Lawson—What was your score there?

Haile—I dunno; I picked up.

Lawson—Were you in many traps?

Haile—Yes, but I didn't know it at the time.

Lawson—Why not? Anybody knows when he is in a trap.

Haile—That's what I thought, but the League of Nations kept insisting it was just ground under repair and that I wasn't really in any trouble.

Lawson—I guess that's what anybody gets when he plays around with pros. I didn't have any trouble when I stuck to the amateurs. Were you an amateur?

Haile—Yes, but my mistake was the same as yours: I listened to advice that I should turn pro.

Lawson—Did you really think you were qualified to play pro golf?

Haile—No, but they told me all I had to do was to keep my head down and listen to my caddies.

Lawson—How about keeping your head down. Did you look up?

Haile—Yes, and when I did I was all alone and somebody had taken everything I had, including my ball.

Lawson—Well, anyhow, we have one thing in common.

Haile—What's that?

Lawson—Neither of us qualified for the next war.

Public Benefactor

By William Lyon Phelps.

Emile Coue.

I wonder how many individuals are still saying aloud in solitude "Every day in every way I am getting better and better." The French druggist, Emile Coue, who gave currency to this speech, died ten years ago, and I am pleased to observe that he is to be honored this year by the city where he was born, Nancy, in France.

A bust in his honor will be formally dedicated there on Sunday, June 28, in St. Marys Park.

A good many Americans may have forgotten him, for his reputation was so sudden and so widespread, that, like a very blazing fire, it could not continue in its full power. But in France he founded the Lorraine Society of Applied Psychology, where his particular method of mental encouragement continues to be taught. Furthermore, this society sponsors the Coue Institute of Nancy, which gives regular courses every week. His wife is the president, and she devotedly continues the work of "cheering everybody up."

I remember very well when Coue came to America. I heard him speak to an immense audience, and what he said was both encouraging and sensible. But I fear that that journey to and through America shortened his life. It was impossible for him to get any rest; not only were thousands of notoriety hounds on his trail, but in every town individual sufferers made emergency calls on him, which, like any good physician, he found it almost impossible to refuse. He was a martyr.

• • • •

He succeeded often in a very difficult task. It is easier to persuade a healthy person that he is ill than vice versa. I remember a dirty practical joke played once on a perfectly healthy man, by three persons who called themselves his friends. He walked to business every day. By a preconcerted plan, each of the three met him at a different street corner and professed himself shocked by his appearance.

Although nothing was really the matter with him, he went home and took to his bed.

Now Coue did just the opposite of that. He cured a large number of persons—some of them were ill and others thought they were—by auto-suggestion. Courage and hope can accomplish wonders.

He was a public benefactor.

Canada's Budget

Dominion Gains In Income During Fiscal Year But Relief And Railroad Jumped Outgo, Leaving $162,000,000 Deficit.

By William Marchington.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Ottawa.

THE CANADIAN people are now somewhat gloomily taking stock of their public finances as disclosed by the annual budget which Mr. Dunning, the Minister of Finance, presented to the House of Commons on May 1. For the fiscal year 1935-36, which ended March 31, the Federal revenues, estimated at $272,100,000 showed a gain of roughly $10,000,000 over the sum collected in the previous year, but they did not quite suffice to meet the ordinary expenditures.

Swollen by the increased cost of social services, the obligations incurred in supporting the wheat market and other items, expenditures totaled $373,987,000 as compared with $359,700,000 in the previous fiscal year. But there had to be added to the debit account capital expenditures of $6,500,000, special expenditures of $102,500,000, of which about three-fourths had been devoted to unemployment relief in some form or other and about $51,000,000 to make good deficits on the Canadian National Railway system and other state-owned enterprises.

The result was an aggregate deficit of $162,191,000 instead of the $140,000,000 which the financial experts had predicted and there was considerable dismay both in Parliament and throughout the country at its size and at the realization that during the year the national debt had increased by $153,500,000 until it stood on March 31 at $3,008,291,000. Nor did this include indirect liabilities of $994,500,000 chiefly assumed on behalf of the Canadian National Railway system. Since Canada has roughly one-twelfth of the population of the United States, her federal debt obligations are substantially heavier than yours but on the other hand her deficit during the last fiscal year is proportionately smaller.

King Government Handicapped From Start.

THE KING Government on assuming office had repeatedly announced its intention of achieving a balanced budget. It found itself commited by the main and supplementary estimates to expenditures for the current fiscal year, 1936-37 totaling $509,000,000 and a prospect of securing only about $388,000,000 on the basis of the present taxation. To bridge this gap of $121,000,000 would have required a general increase of the taxation burden by almost one-third. The government decided that it could not risk the unpopularity which would be involved by such drastic action. So Mr. Dunning announced that it would content itself with aiming to keep the deficit of 1936-37 below $100,000,000 by imposing additional taxation calculated to yield about $30,000,000.

Of this some $23,000,000 is expected to come from an increase of the rate of the general sales tax from 6 to 8 per cent and another $6,000,000 by stepping-up the rate of the corporation income tax from 13½ to 15 per cent.

Mr. Dunning also found it necessary to draw a very somber picture of the state of provincial finances in which the Federal Government is now deeply involved as the result of advances now totaling $116,500,000 made from time to time in the last five years to financially embarrassed provinces.

Majority Of Tariff Changes Move Downward.

UNDER THE British parliamentary system a budget always embodies the tariff policy of the government of the day and while no sweeping revision of the tariff was undertaken, changes of considerable importance were made. Of these, some 12 were upward changes, some of them designed to give additional protection to Canadian industries which had been complaining that they were exposed to unfair competition by the concession of the intermediate tariff to the United States; but 104 were in a downward direction.

A very valuable concession to British exporters was made by eliminating from the British preferential schedules the heavy specific duties on cotton and rayon goods which the Bennett ministry had imposed over and above the quite substantial ad valorem duties. The net effect is to cut the protection enjoyed by the manufacturers of these commodities virtually in half. On other commodities, notably certain iron and steel products and machinery the British preferential rate is either eliminated or reduced and although the British government which has been pressing for kindlier treatment of British goods has not got all that it wanted, the Canadian budget has had a very favorable reception in Britain.

Pressure from the low tariff western wing of the Liberal Party has resulted in the duty on farm implements which had been cut from 25 to 12½ per cent by the Canadian-American trade agreement, being further reduced to 7½ per cent and a sop is thrown to the motoring public by a decrease in the rate of the gasoline tax from 2¼ cents per gallon to 1 cent, a change which infuriates the oil refining companies.

Naturally such interests as foresee that their fortunes will be adversely affected by the budget do not like its terms and say so, but on the whole it has had a good press and a sympathetic reception from the general public, which has come to regard the high protectionist regime followed since 1930 as a failure. Moreover, the King Government had very shrewdly insured itself against any violent attack by the Conservative Opposition by basing most of its important tariff changes upon specific recommendations made in reports of the Canadian Tariff Board, which the Bennett Ministry had appointed. So when former Premier Bennett came to open the budget debate for the Opposition he pitched his criticisms of the partial reversal of his ministry's tariff policy in a comparatively mild key.

Bennett Speaks For Opposition.

HE DID however take strong exception to the exemption privilege conferred upon returning travellers and hazarded the estimate that as a consequence an additional $100,000,000 worth of goods would come in free of duty every year and the loss of revenue would be disastrous! We also denounced the terms of the settlement of the trade war with Japan, which he held was a humiliating capitulation to Japanese demands. But most of his speech was devoted to an elaborate defense and justification of his own policies, while in office.

The comparative acquiescence of the Conservatives, who moved no amendment, in the budget aroused the suspicions of the leftist groups and Mr. McInnis, a member of the Co-operative Commonwealth Party, proceeded to denounce it as "the most Conservative and Tory budget I have ever listened to." A group of Social Credit members also expressed their disapproval of the budget and seized the opportunity to expatiate upon the merits of their own particular scheme of monetary reform. But there seemed to be very little life in the debate.

However, if as is probable the additional sales tax raises the cost of living, it may soon begin to generate unpopularity for the Government. Meanwhile it has been making steady progress with its sessional program and, since the Opposition seem anxious to facilitate the dispatch of business and wind the session up as soon as possible, the session may end early in June.

Ethiopian Sent Home From China by Italy

Shanghai, May 14 (AP).—Abraham Hawariat, a stranded Ethiopian, walked into the Italian consulate here today and demanded a free ride to Addis Ababa. He got it.

"I see in the newspapers that Ethiopia lost the war and that I am no longer a subject of Haile Selassie, but a citizen of the Italian empire," Hawariat told consular officials.

"I want to go home, if you will be so good as to buy me a ticket."

Body of Missing Farmer Is Found by Searchers

Rockford, Ill., May 14 (AP).—Members of searching party which had hunted all night for Jacob Groenhagen, 54, retired Oregon (Ill.) farmer, found his body in a tract of timber today.

Coroner Jesse Aiken, of Ogle County, said Groenhagen apparently had died of a heart attack while hunting mushrooms. The farmer disappeared yesterday. For a time it was fear he had been kidnaped.

2 Townsendites Oppose McNary In Oregon Race

Roosevelt, Borah Without Opposition on Tickets for Presidency.

By the Associated Press.

Portland, Oreg., May 14.—A Townsendite threat to Senator Charles L. McNary's renomination held the interest of Oregon voters tonight, the eve of the State primary election.

President Roosevelt and Senator William E. Borah will have no formal opposition as Presidential contenders. Voters have permission by law to write in the names of other candidates, however.

McNary, minority floor leader in the Senate, is opposed by Sam Brown, Gervais Farmer, and Theodore Nelson, once prominent in North Dakota politics. Both claim Townsend support.

Bennett on Ticket.

On the ballot for President and Vice President are Franklin D. Roosevelt and John N. Garner on the Democratic ticket and Senator Borah, of Idaho, and William S. Bennett, New York, on the Republican.

Each major party will choose ten delegates to its national convention. The delegates are pledged by law to use their "best efforts" to nominate the candidates receiving the largest number of votes in the State primary.

In the past, Oregon delegates have switched to other candidates when it appeared in the early balloting theirs had no chance of nomination.

Seek Townsend Vote.

The McNary-Nelson-Brown race has counterpart on the Democratic ticket. Willis Mahoney, Mayor of Klamath Falls, and John A. Jeffrey, Portland attorney, are seeking Townsend votes in an effort to oppose the Republican nomineee for the Senate in the fall.

The three Congressional districts also will name candidates for United States Representatives.

Registration totals 478,182, including 271,145 Democrats and 198,322 Republicans. Registration for the general election in 1932 totaled 486,146, including 319,840 Republicans and 154,466 Democrats.

Knox Assails New Deal.

Spokane, Wash., May 14 (AP).—Col. Frank Knox, Republican Presidential aspirant, tonight accused the Administration of repudiating major campaign promises and said returning prosperity was not due to New Deal measures.

The Chicago publisher, campaigning for the Republican Presidential nomination, ended his Pacific Northwest tour tonight.

He is not so much interested in his own candidacy, Col. Knox stated in an address prepared for a meeting tonight, as he is in "preserving the freedom of opportunity," counteracting the effects of the New Deal, and "seeing that the people of this Nation recognize the real issue—liberty and the right of the American people to govern themselves."

He expressed the belief the Republican Party, if restored to power, would supplant the Roosevelt policies with a "positive program" which would include:

Balance the budget, chiefly through reduction of expenditures; re-establish confidence in the dollar; administer relief of unemployment through local authorities, with necessary contributions from the Federal treasury; immediate and rigid enforcement of the anti-trust laws, and re-establish prosperity on the farm through industrial recovery.

Ambassadors Returning.

By the Associated Press.

Three American ambassadors, either already have come home on leave, or plan shortly to return to the United States.

Breckinridge Long, ambassador to Italy, arrived about ten days ago on a 90-day leave. He has been in frequent conferences with President Roosevelt.

Long was a member of the committee on platform and resolutions at the Democratic National Convention in Houston, Tex., in 1928.

Ambassadors William C. Bullitt, at Moscow, and Josephus Daniels, at Mexico City, are taking leaves soon.

Bullitt took part in the 1932 campaign, and Daniels long has participated in national Democratic councils and is a former national committeeman from his State.

Well informed circles here would not be surprised if Claude G. Bowers, ambassador to Spain, and Jesse I. Straus, envoy to France, also return to the United States on leave within the next few weeks.

Bowers was the keynote speaker at the Houston convention in 1928. Straus, a New Yorker, is identified prominently in organizations of businessmen and industrialists.

Hughes Sets Mark, Chicago to Coast

Grand Central Airport, Glendale, Calif., May 14 (U.P.).—Riding at a 300-mile clip on the trial of a $50 bet, young Howard Hughes, millionaire sportsman and speed flier, brought his sleek silver transport plane whining out of the sky tonight to set a new air record from Chicago.

He sent the plane skimming over the airport hangars at 7:15 p. m. (Pacific standard time) and was clocked for an elapsed time of 8 hours 10 minutes 10 seconds.

The slender, black-haired flier climbed out of the cockpit, grinning and ready for dinner.

His record flight was the result of a $50 wager with a friend that he could have lunch in Chicago and dinner in Los Angeles.

He took off from the Midwestern city at 2:05 p. m. Eastern standard time (11:05 a. m. Pacific standard time). The elapsed time was officially clocked by O. D. McKenzie, American Aeronautical Association timer.

Votes—at ANY Cost

long with people whose stories were an unending tale of woe.

The record of the WPA people in my own office is roughly like this: December and January checks paid at the end of January; one check in February; one in March; no check in April; one payment just made for the lucky ones; many checks for other workers last Friday were still in arrears from two to five weeks.

The WPA Department of Accounts closed down on one occasion because everything was in such confusion that nobody could make head nor tail of the situation. The WPA officials actually have no accurate idea whom they have paid. Reliable records do not exist. Some people have been paid twice while others report their checks already indorsed when they come to collect.

Last Christmas Eve was one of the saddest experiences for WPA workers. All day rumors that the checks were on the way flew about. First they were supposed to be in one part of the county, then in another. Finally word came that the paymaster would arrive at Pleasantville at 11 o'clock that evening for some of the local workers. The group flocked down to the station. Checks had been given to half of them when the paymaster discovered he had taken a wrong pile of checks. The rest of those men went home Christmas Eve without money.

About April 1 things became so bad that even the WPA officials knew drastic steps were necessary to pull them out. With the help of a Washington emissary they decided that they needed $100,000 of extra money to clean up back pay rolls. Bryan, WPA director, asked the county board of supervisors to serve temporarily as his agent to secure from Mr. Hopkins $100,000 of old FERA funds, as he could not himself legally do so, and to use them in the emergency to pay overdue WPA wages. Our board of supervisors not only did this but had the checks made out and distributed to avoid any miscarriage of this money. As Mr. Bryan was quite hazy as to whether this sum would cover his unpaid responsibilities, the resolution asking for this allotment had to be rewritten to leave a loophole for unknown factors.

Explanatory of these lax conditions is the picture of WPA headquarters in the old high school building in White Plains where the labor inventory department is located. A reporter sent there repeatedly found in a room about 30 feet square, where the records of men assigned to jobs are cleared, between 40 and 50 clerks, stenographers, and typists wandering about, talking, laughing, reading magazines or looking out of the window.

Detectives Hunt Equipment.

The other day one youth idling about tossed a piece of chalk at a girl across the room. She shouted, squealed and threw a gum drop back at him and then for good measure tossed another gum drop down the neck of the dress of another girl. So much equipment was lost in this office that detectives are now looking for it. In the field, equipment also disappears in mysterious ways and the park commission has been obliged to file a protest with the county's own co-ordinating committee in an attempt to protect their property from loss and destruction.

This confusion has had its humorous aspects, tempered, to be sure, by the human suffering which is always involved. On January 3, for example, the WPA office sent a request to the skeleton staff of the county work bureau to locate a squad of WPA men, and, having located them, to inform them that they were "fired." On another occasion, the county officials were again asked to locate a group of white-collar workmen whom the WPA office could not find. Investigation by the county office proved that the men had been at work a month during which they had been checked daily by WPA timekeepers.

There was all the less excuse for such goings-on because the county work bureau had spent days and nights in careful preparation for the advent of WPA. After five months of preparation, WPA took over our relief cases from TERA on December 2. Under TERA a case load ranging from three to six thousand persons was paid weekly, the pay rolls being staggered so that about half were paid every three days. Checks were never delayed longer than 48 hours beyond the pay roll date and this delay occurred only three times during the four years in which the local county work bureau functioned. In the initial transfer of the active working load from TERA to WPA, care was taken by the Westchester department heads that pay rolls were filed with the WPA officials and it should have been a comparatively simple matter for the WPA pay roll organization, drawing from this as a basic foundation, to meet the first pay roll due under the new regime.

Ability of Workers Ignored.

Further cause for confusion and breaking of morale was the W. P. A.'s lack of method in the classification of personnel. Although the relief workers had already been rated by skilled personnel officers and project heads under TERA, according to qualifications and experience, no consideration under the new political regime was ever given these prior classifications. Men were assigned without regard to ability and the strange situation of one man performing a function at $94 a month with another right beside him, better trained, performing a similar function at $65 per month, is still common on the various projects.

By this time it must be clear that relief workers in Westchester have no more chance to protect themselves against the crude fascism of WPA than a German workman would have to escape Hitler's decrees. In the absence of any nonpartisan Adjustment Bureau there is absolutely no place where these poor people can get help.

It must also be remembered that if $60 per month is a security wage, $60 paid every two months or even haphazardly as WPA is still doing, means a severe discount. When the workers were paid at the end of six or seven weeks delay, they expended this lump sum for payment of past bills, and for clothing, leaving them once more without funds to meet current expenses, whether for food, rent or heat.

Disillusionment and disappointment have forced many WPA workers in Westchester to abandon all hope of securing payment of their wages.

It goes without saying that the National Reemployment Service, in spite of WPA lip service to the contrary, has been to a large extent short-circuited by this political set-up and is practically wrecked—this in spite of the fact that NRS is assigned in the WPA regulations (Section 500, Part II, Manual of Procedure for Local Relief, N. Y. State) as the agency from which all persons eligible for work relief should be drawn.

What WPA has cost the county through this lax procedure is incalculable. The Welfare Department of the City of White Plains refuses to give temporary relief unless the payroll is overdue at least 17 days. White Plains uses $3,000 a month to meet this relief to relief. Mount Vernon spends $3,000 a month but tries to make the men pay back what they can when their checks come in, the small towns all together lose about $5,000 a month in the same way. Figures for the rest of the county are missing, but the total sum which the county has to pay out needlessly every month after six months of WPA operation is still substantial.

Unemployed Census Feared.

The WPA naturally fears to take a new census of the unemployed because it will reveal the fact that a high percentage of the people whom they should be helping are still without work while their pay roll is loaded to about 20 per cent with nonrelief cases, unless the shake-up which my research activities created last week, has now cut down this figure somewhat. Up to last Friday, so far as I could ascertain, the WPA offices had set up no dependable statistical department and accounting record. They have good reason to avoid that moment for the smoke-screen they throw over their activities is the only thing that protects them. Most of our county people do not even realize how bad the conditions are but as they learn more and more about the waste, inefficiency, and political profiteering of WPA they are bound to arise, Democrats and Republicans alike, in violent protest against this exploitation.

Before presenting some figures to show the comparative costs for the same work under WPA and under TERA, it might be well to indicate a few of the ridiculous and fantastic proceedings that have skyrocketed the expenses while they decreased the percentage of efficiency. It is amusing to think in this connection that Congress has just passed legislation to pay regular union rates on WPA projects. Even at present rates the Democratic district leaders, the barkeepers, garbage collectors, etc., who are in charge of so many of our construction jobs, frequently earn more than they ever did before. With union rates they will be sitting prettier than ever. What the decent union members will think of being put upon a par with these people remains to be seen.

A road building job at Grasslands (later given number PW18) had already been running a month to the tune of about $7,000, without any official approval when it was discovered. There were, of course, no funds available for this bootleg project, nor was there a county sponsor. Mr. Bryan thereupon asked county officials to find a legal sponsor which they properly refused to do. How the accounting will be straightened out remains to be seen.

P. C. 42 had been in operation nearly two years when WPA came along. TERA had 40 men on the job. WPA threw in 200, used up the money and wanted the county bureau to sign the request for supplementary funds which again they refused to do.

Funds Give Out, Jobs Dropped.

P.C. 16 was a small project amply estimated. WPA took the men and Park Commission trucks off the job and used them for snow removal in Pelham, charging it to the parkway project. When funds become exhausted in such ways WPA usually blames the Park Commission for underestimating costs.

It is a commonplace to see tools sent to a job waiting for men, and large groups of laborers sitting around on other projects waiting for tools. The county files are piled high with letters recording these mad developments.

Several jobs in the county are now half finished because funds gave out. There is no use piling up more examples except to add that such occurrences are so frequent as to be commonplace.

Here are a few figures on WPA work in White Plains, proving how extravagantly and slowly it progresses:

24	132	69
42	71	23
43	76	24
48	101	19
51	88	60

On approximately $400,000 total of work in White Plains, an average of 61 per cent of the Federal allotment has been used up and 25 per cent of the work accomplished.

In Congress last week legislation which provided that localities should be obliged to furnish 25 per cent of the cost of each project, failed of passage. In Westchester WPA forces the county on pain of nonacceptance to furnish not merely 25 per cent, but even more on some projects. Thus it can be estimated how much local as well as Federal money is wasted when comparative costs run as follows on exactly the same type of project according to figures just compiled.

Some Random Costs Comparisons WPA, TERA Projects.

Town.	Type of Work.	TERA Cost.	WPA Cost.
Mamaroneck	Laying 10" C. I. Sewer Pipe (same job)	$4.06 per foot	$9.66 per foot
Scarsdale	Laying storm water drain (same job)	1.36 per foot	2.62 per foot
Mamaroneck	Laying up dry walls (same job)	.46 per cu. ft	1.10 per cu. ft.
New Rochelle	Earth excavation —trench	1.63 per cu. yd.	4.85 per cu. yd.
Mount Pleasant	Rock excavation —trench	3.08 per cu. yd.	18.32 per cu. yd.
New Rochelle	Building conerete bench standards	2.50 each	4.10 each
Glen Island	Earth excavation	1.65 per cu. yd.	5.90 per cu. yd.

And yet President Roosevelt, on pretext of the high production cost, opposes firmly the earmarking of moneys to Public Works Administration (PWA), which in our county appears to be effective and honestly administered. It seems incredible that members of Congress would turn over the entire billion and a half to President Roosevelt for WPA if they knew conditions in Westchester County. Surely the facts and figures stated here are an unanswerable argument for turning work relief back to local authority even if Federal participation is provided. It would seem as if Congress were devoid not only of all feeling of responsibility to the American people, but of ordinary common sense if the WPA is supplied with another fortune to squander without any check other than Mr. Hopkins' supervision.

For what I have shown here is merely a hasty summary of what is actually going on in Westchester County, and, therefore, presumably throughout the country. Even my own material is more ample. What forms of skulduggery the large and extremely secretive forces of WPA are able to conceal can only be surmised. An official investigation of WPA would make my story look like Sunday reading for a neophyte.

To sum up the case:

I accuse WPA of using large sums of public money intended for the alleviation of unemployment, to build a Democratic political machine.

I accuse WPA of discriminating between American citizens in a most despotic way for political purposes.

I accuse WPA of petty extortion from defenseless relief cases to finance local political organization.

I accuse WPA of waste, extravagance, and rank incompetence.

I accuse WPA of having so intimidated the people that its tyrannical power is a menace to a free nation.

And, finally, in the light of the facts presented in these articles, I accuse the present Administration of seeking vast new appropriations from Congress for WPA, not in the interests of the Nation, but to insure its own continuation.

hours. He said Tugwell told of a project in Sioux Falls, S. Dak., which cost $180,000 and which gave relief to 13 families. Steiwer said he believed that constituted some kind of record.

Steiwer said there may be available to Tugwell a $60,000,000 revolving fund, now in the hands of State corporations set up under FERA. He said these corporations were controlled by the Resettlement Administration and that they made loans to farmers, with money available for new loans as it is paid back.

Tugwell made it clear that he had not asked the committee for a specific appropriation and that he had appeared only because he had been called.

Any attempt to obtain an appropriation for the Tugwell organization is certain to precipitate a fight in the Senate. Some Administration leaders were attempting to avoid such a fight, fearful of the political effect of the possible airing of Tugwell's "visionary" views as expressed in speeches and books.

Meanwhile, Secretary Ickes indicated that if the PWA could be given as small an appropriation as $75,000,000 it would not be necessary to carry out the planned 25 per cent cut in his administrative pay roll. The original request for an appropriation of $1,500,000,000 was cut $75,000,000 in the House, and it was suggested this might be restored for the PWA. On the basis of 45 per cent grants for non-Federal projects, this would permit the PWA to go ahead with about $160,000,000 in new construction.

The committee has under consideration an amendment adding $700,000,000 to the appropriation for PWA.

Commenting on proposal either to add to the bill or to earmark some of the relief appropriation for Ickes, Senator Steiwer said that there was little choice.

"If we give some of the money to Ickes now," he said, "Hopkins will be back here next January asking for an additional appropriation."

President Roosevelt has opposed earmarking any of the money for the PWA.

Senator Adams (Democrat), Colorado, chiarman of the Senate subcommittee, said he hoped to finish hearings this week. It is expected that the bill will be reported early next week and immediately taken up in the Senate, leaving the tax bill as the last piece of "must" legislation in the session.

ASKING BIDS PROOF AGAINST INTERFERENCE.

The new technique of slam bidding through the use of asking bids has proved so deadly accurate that it has induced a mad scramble on the part of slam defenders to find effective interference methods. As a matter of cold fact, the asking bid system is aided rather than obstructed by opponents' attempted interference. Instead of shutting out the correct responses, opponents' bids often save a round of bidding for the side approaching the slam. I have yet to see a hand in which the defenders could have interrupted successfully the flow of information conveyed by asking bids.

4 clubs*	Double	Redouble†	Pass
4 hearts‡	Double	Redouble§	Pass
5 clubs¶	Double	Redouble£	Pass
6 spades‖	Pass	Pass	Pass

*Spades having been agreed on as the trump suit, South now makes an asking bid.

†Without West's double, North having no ace would have to sign off, at least temporarily, with four spades. The redouble, however, shows merely second round control of the asked suit.

‡South now investigates how many heart tricks must be lost, by making his second asking bid.

§Exactly the same situation as before. North shows second round heart control by redoubling.

¶South now knows that only one heart can be lost but still is uncertain about the club situation. North may have the K x x. To find out, South makes a repepated asking bid in clubs, inquiring about third round control.

The six spade bid now is made in almost absolute safety, as accurately as though North and South had seen each other's hands.

Obviously, the only thing that could have defeated the beautifully bid slam would have been a fantastically bad adverse lay of cards, such as an opening lead of a heart and immediate ruff. As it was, the declarer had a "cinch," winning the opening king of clubs lead with the ace, ruffing a second round in dummy, ruffing a diamond into his own hand, and ruffing a third club with one of dummy's high trumps. Since the club suit broke 4-3, only one more club had to be ruffed, but even against a 5-2 division there was no danger. Without the opening lead of the heart ace, declarer, of course, could have made an overtrick, but this would have involved a slight risk and he wisely considered only his small slam contract.

Jury Unable to Agree After 17-Hour Deadlock

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chambersburg, Pa., May 14.—After deliberating 17 hours, the jury in the case of the Farmers & Merchants Trust Co. against D. O. Allday and J. Edgar Crider, jr., reported to Judge Watson R. Davison in Franklin County Court yesterday that it was unable to agree upon a verdict.

The question was whether the signature of Crider to a renewed promissory note for $3,800 was genuine. Handwriting experts disagreed on the authenticity. Crider contended it was a forgery.

A verdict for the Citizens National Bank, of Greencastle, was directed by Judge Davinson in the suit of Miss Mary I. Speck, of Greencastle, in which she sought to collect more than $14,000 in stock certificates which she alleges were removed from her safety deposit box.

Collapse Investigated.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., May 14.—City Engineer Samuel Greenawalt began an investigation today in an effort to ascertain cause of the collapse of a section of the second floor of the Southern Shoe Co. factory here yesterday. A preliminary investigation indicated that shearage of a hanger, which supported a large girder, had caused the accident. Fifteen workers on the floor beneath the section that fell, had gone to lunch 10 minutes before.

Teachers Appointed.

Warrenton, Va., May 14.—A meeting of the school board of Fauquier County today appointed the faculties for Fauquier schools. P. B. Smith, jr., principal of the Warrenton High School, was reappointed.

Throng Attends Fair.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., May 14.—The eighth annual Y. M. C. A. community mercantile and industrial fair opened here this evening with a record attendance. There are about 50 exhibitors, occupying three floors in the "Y" building and 10 automobile dealers are showing cars in the annual auto show outside.

Hospital Stock Lending 'Deal' Charged to RA

Medical Society to Take Inquiry to Roosevelt, if Necessary.

By the Associated Press.

Kansas City, May 14.—The American Medical Association's house of delegates instructed its judicial council today in a formal resolution to investigate a charge that "plans are about to be consummated for the loan of Federal money to individuals to enable them to subscribe for stock" in a co-operative hospital.

Dr. McLain Rogers, of Clinton, Iowa, who made the charge, said the hospital was at Elk City, Okla.

The resolution instructed the judicial council to carry the matter directly to President Roosevelt, if necessary.

Dr. Rogers said he had been informed the Resettlement Administration's regional office at Dallas, Tex., was ready to lend money to farmers with which to buy stock in the hospital for "contract service." He said that the hospital promised complete medical service as its part of the contract.

An electrical detective device which points to brain surgery—the removal of what seems to be a "spare" part of the brain—as a possible cure for epilepsy was reported to the association today.

This place now appears to be the "frontal lobe," a section of gray matter in the forward part of the brain, which can be safely removed by surgery. Moreover, due to other brain diseases or head accidents, it has been demonstrated that removal of this area does not seriously affect the mind.

It is certain that the electrical clews picked up at Harvard all come from this frontal lobe. But it is not yet sure that epilepsy comes solely from this area. It might originate deep down in the brain and merely use the frontal lobe as the delivery depot.

In that case, the medical men were informed here today, surgery on the fore part of the brain would not be expected to help. The epilepsy studies were reported by William G. Lennox, Frederic A. Gibbs and Erna L. Gibbs, of Boston.

The association elected today as its next president, Dr. John H. J. Upham, of Columbus, Ohio, a strong advocate of "keeping medical practice individualistic," and chose Atlantic City for the 1937 convention.

Dr. Upham, 64-year-old dean of the Ohio State University College of Medicine, will take office next year.

Dr. Charles Gordon Heyd, of New York, was elected vice president of the association, a choice commanding more than usual interest because of the critical illness of the A. M. A. president, Dr. J. Tate Mason, at Seattle. The vice president cannot assume the title of president, but fills the duties of the office in case of the latter's death.

Garner Greets Quadruplets

Underwood & Underwood.

Marie Dionne, smallest of the Canadian quintuplets, has a black eye. Which one of her four sisters gave it to her is not known, and trying to find out probably would be like trying to pick out the guilty thorn in a rose bush.

News of Marie's shiner was brought to Washington yesterday by Roberta Key, one of the famous Key quadruplets of Texas.

"They said Marie had just run into a door," said Roberta, and added with a faint trace of bitterness: "I know that kind of door. I was always the member of the Key family to encounter them."

"I think that the Dionnes are very cunning," Mary Key said, "but all they did while we were there was to howl and fight."

The 20-year-old quadruplets, Roberta, Mary, Leota and Mona, issued a blanket invitation to Washingtonians to attend the Texas Centennial Exhibition next month. They delivered a special invitation to Vice President John N. Garner in person.

He called attention to the widespread civic interest in the slum-clearance project, and cited editorials in newspapers and resolutions adopted by local organizations.

The group submitted a list of names of persons and organizations who asked that the Alley Dwelling Authority be continued. Many of these persons were on hand Wednesday but were turned away by the sub-committee so that it might hear Federal relief officials.

Lusk Submits Rider.

Rufus Lusk, executive secretary of the Washington Taxpayers' Protective Association, submitted a legislative rider to the sub-committee asking that A. D. A. property purchases outside alleys be limited to 5 per cent of the land within any one square.

He explained that his organization is opposed to the A. D. A. engaging in low-cost housing construction as one of the methods of alley slum eliminations.

Ihlder insisted that the A. D. A. is building low-cost apartment houses only where there is no market for a garage or commercial shop. He also pointed out that the purpose in providing cheap housing is to set up available living quarters for tenants evicted by the slum-clearance program.

Of the 10 squares acquired to date, he added, no street property has been bought in four, while purchases outside alleys in the other six squares have varied. In two of the six, he said, the street frontage constitutes part of the alley areas.

Details Unexplained.

Ihlder did not explain in detail how he estimates the A. D. A. will have $250,000 under a mere reappropriation of unexpended balance and an authority to utilize anticipated revenues.

Testifying before the House subcommittee, he said the Alley Dwelling Authority has $408,396 in actual cash on hand, but $350,772 of this is encumbered. There are also unpaid obligations amounting to $45,324.

In the absence of any appropriation, he said, the authority would have only $9,000.

Queen Mary Sets Sail For 24-Hr. Test Cruise

Southampton, England, May 14 (AP).—The Queen Mary, Britain's new supership, put out to sea today for a 24-hour cruise along the south coast, probably its last trip before the maiden voyage to New York late this month.

Mrs. Appleby Rites To Be Held Today

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. today for Mrs. Hattie Appleby, prominent in Washington social circles, who died Tuesday in Emergency Hospital. Mrs. Appleby was 43.

The services will be held from her late residence at 1601 Minnesota avenue northwest. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

A native of Nokesville, Va., Mrs. Appleby was the wife of Charles A. Appelby, prominent business man and master of the King Solomon Lodge of Masons.

Mrs. Appleby was the daughter of the late James William Fultz and the late Mrs. Esther P. Fultz.

She has been a resident of Washington since her early childhood. She was a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution and other social and religious organizations. She was a member of the Foundry Methodist Episcopal Church.

Lemke to Push Farm Debt Bill InCampaigning

HouseVote Only Skirmish,' He Says; Measure to Be 'Election Issue.'

By the Associated Press.

Describing defeat of the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage refinancing bill as "the first skirmish," Representative Lemke (Republican), of North Dakota, asserted yesterday the fight for the measure would be continued until it became law.

Lemke reintroduced the bill yesterday in the amended form which was rejected 235 to 142 by the House on Wednesday. It would authorize issuance of $3,000,000,000 in new currency.

"My purpose in this is to give a clear copy of the legislation which was voted upon and to attempt to clear up misrepresentations of the bill which have been spread throughout the country," he said.

Smiling grimly, he received condolences of his friends over the beating handed the bill.

"It wasn't so bad," Lemke said. "We'll get back here next January, and there won't be quite as many familiar faces as there are now—at least not from the farm States."

When reporters asked whether he expected to make a strong political issue of the bill, Lemke said:

"Absolutely. It already is."

A decision as to just where he personally will carry on the campaign against enemies of the measure, Lemke said, must await a check of how the voting went on passage.

The North Dakotan added that the campaign for the bill would be carried into the coming elections and undoubtedly would be a major issue in many farm States.

Backers of the bill conceded that the unexpected action of Speaker Byrns in taking the floor to read a letter from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in opposition to the measure contributed largely to the defeat.

Spokesmen for the House leadership said defeat of the bill was a sure sign "there will be no inflation."

Car Theft Charged After Fatal Crash

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., May 14.—State Officer R. E. Baylias today obtained a warrant charging W. J. Gardner, of Frederick County, with the theft of an automobile in which he was injured last night near Pikeside, W. Va., and Charles R. Cain, 24, of this city, was killed.

The car crashed head-on into a truck laden with 7 tons of steel wheelbarrows. The truck was driven by J. W. Largent, Harrisburg, Pa.

West Virginia authorities were quoted as saying Largent ditched the truck in a vain effort to avoid the collision. Both occupants of the automobile were said by Virginia authorities to have been intoxicated.

Gardner attempted to escape from a Martinsburg hospital during the night and is now under guard. Cain is survived by his parents, a small daughter, a sister and a brother.

Drive Is Made To Bring Back Favorite Star

Demand for Dorothy Gill's Return With Savoyards Is Unprecedented.

"Savoyards!" began a cryptic announcement in the public notice columns of several New York newspapers last week, and the lovers of Gilbert and Sullivan, to whom it was addressed there, learned for the first time of a report that when the D'Oyly Carte Company returns next fall the principal contralto, Dorothy Gill, will not be with it.

It is dangerous, however, to offer the dyed-in-the-wool Savoyard less than he expects to get. The public notice, inserted in the hope of doing something about bringing back the singer who starred two years ago as Katisha, Buttercup, the Fairy Queen, the Duchess of Plaza Toro, etc., aroused a response that within a few days blossomed forth into an organization christened the "Bring Back Dorothy Gill Campaign Committee," with headquarters at 28 West Forty-fourth street, New York City.

The Drive Begins.

In another day or two cables were being dispatched to the no doubt very much surprised Rupert D'Oyly Carte expressing the hope that Miss Gill will be with the company when it returns to the United States. Postal cards and petitions were being signed to the same effect, in order that the management could know the extent of the demand for the contralto's appearance here.

This campaign on behalf of a particular star, believed to be without precedent in the theater and of which doubtless only Savoyards would be capable, has already resulted in the receipt of 500 replies, with more coming in by every mail.

Prof. William Lyon Phelps, of Yale, who has taken an active interest in the campaign and has cabled his opinion to London, writes: "Of course Dorothy Gill must come back." Another Savoyard indignantly cries: "If Miss Gill is not to be with us, why not just hold public readings?" From Chicago comes word, "Do not care to attend the performances when the company plays in Chicago unless Miss Gill is a member of the cast."

Distinguished Advocates.

The American Gilbert and Sullivan Association has offered its support, and among others who have joined the movement are Mme. Alma Clayburgh, Arthur Guiterman, who is always mentioned as one of the few possible librettists when an American Gilbert is being sought; his wife, Vida Lindo Guiterman; President Parke S. Kolbe, of Drexel Institute, Philadelphia; New York Supreme Court Justice William Harman Black; David Loth, author of "Lorenzo the Magnificent," Henry Bennett and others.

Among the cities from which response to the demand for Miss Gill has come are Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, Reading, Chattanooga, Washington, New Haven, Detroit, and, of course, New York and many New Jersey towns.

It all adds up, the Bring Back Dorothy Gill Campaign Committee believes, to a sufficient total to convince the D'Oyly Carte Company that it cannot afford to leave Miss Gill at home.

Slayer of Wilson Starts Life Term

Ernest Wellington Myers, sentenced to life imprisonment for his participation in the "mistaken identy" murder of Allen B. Wilson, was taken from his cell in Rockville Jail to Baltimore yesterday, where he began serving his term.

Last month a jury in Montgomery County Court found Myers guilty of first degree murder in the killing of Wilson, a newspaper route carrier, who was slain October 23, 1934, when he was mistaken for Edward (Mickey) McDonald, flashy District gambler.

Myers was the driver of the automobile in which Claude Bailey and Anthony (Tony the Stinger) Cugino, both dead, and Albert McDermott and William Cleary went out to kill McDonald at the request of Albert (Bumps) Sutton, who paid them fr the "job."

Both FcDermott and Sutton began their terms in Maryland State Penitentiary las tMonday. They were found guilty and given life sentences in Cumberland last wek.

Balloonist Plans Flight Across Atlantic Ocean

Paris, May 14 (AP).—The Belgian balloonist, Ernest de Myter, twice winner of the Gordon Bennett Cup, today announced plans for a transatlantic flight in a spherical balloon, starting from a point on the North American Coast.

He said he expected to land in Norway within 80 or 90 hours after the take-off.

The balloon, De Myter asserted, would have a capacity of between 8,000 and 10,000 cubic meters, "with an extremely light basket."

M. Charlier, a French engineer, will accompany him, De Myter said. His announcement, appearing in Le Petit Journal, did not set a date for the attempt.

Nelson B. Bell

About The Showshops

CONSTERNATION has been thrown into the ranks of theater men in the Washington territory by the proposal pending before the city council of Alexandria, Va., as reported in The Post yesterday morning, to legalize dog races and authorize the erection of a costly plant at Four Mile Run. The fear of competitive encroachment upon indoor entertainment is based upon observation of the conduct of dog racing in other communities where it has flourished from time to time.

BELL.

Those who remember season before last's dog racing in the huge Convention Hall at Atlantic City will understand the fear and trepidation the comparatively local proposal has caused Washington and nearby showmen.

The Atlantic City plant was a miniature Belmont Park, conducted after the identical plan of the finest of the horse tracks, with parimutuel betting a part of the elaborate setup. A daily-double was paid nightly and it had to be played early in the evening, before the first race was run. With a card of eight or ten events, the final results were not posted until 11:30 or 11:45 p. m. This was ruinous competition to theaters, night clubs and every other form of entertainment the Boardwalk had to offer. So much pressure was brought to bear against it that the track finally was closed and no license could be obtained for the resumption last season of a sport that netted its backers millions, while it lasted.

This is a condition which the sponsors of the trans-Potomac project contend will not obtain if their bill is passed by the Alexandria city fathers next Tuesday night. There will be no pari-mutuel or other form of wagering permitted, they declare. This being true, it is difficult to perceive where the profits to the track are to come from. Paid admissions alone will hardly pay off on an original investment that is estimated at $250,000 and a weekly pay roll of $15,000 to $18,000.

Betting has always seemed to be an integral part of this sort of sporting proposition, with the bettors' losing risks increased at the dog tracks by reason of the absence of any human element in the running of the heats. Without the guiding hand of any jockey, winning a race is strictly dependent upon the ability and inclination of the whippet. Anything can, and usually does, happen.

One night I saw the daily-double pay $1,338 for $2. It was that sort of thing that kept the plant crowded from opening, until the last dog to finish had yipped his last yip on his way back to the kennel.

Without any form of betting, I doubt if the Washington entrepreneurs have a great deal to fear. Without your two meg riding, when you've seen that mechanical rabbit do one of its sprints, you've seen him do them all!

Mention of the 22-acre plot of ground just south of Four Mile Run that is made in the pending dog-track bill will recall vague memories to old-time amusement seekers. That is where Luna Park, Washington's Coney Island, was situated a mere matter of 30 years ago. Remember?

As-the-Weather-Man-Says-It Note.

"Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your earmuffs!"

Hollywood

By Sidney Skolsky

Movie Boners.

Hollywood, May 14.

Robert Taylor, between "takes" of "The Gorgeous Hussy," tells of a movie boner he saw in the Charlie Chaplin flicker, "Modern Times." in the sequence in which Chaplin gets a job as the night watchman in the department store, and his duties are being explained to him, it is plainly seen that the escalator is not running. Later, according to Taylor, when the burglars enter the store, the escalator is in action. No one was seen putting it in motion.

Shirley Temple.

Another movie boner star, who joins the Movie Boners Club, is George Raft, who discovers a flicker flaw in "Snowed Under." When Frank McHugh carries Glenda Farrell upstairs, her feet sweep the bric-a-brac off the table near the stairs. The next shot, however, says Raft, shows the table with the bric-a-brac on it.

• • • •

Now for the movie fans and the boners they found. "In the flicker 'Petticoat Fever,'" writes Paul Fromm, "the mistake occurs in the scene where Robert Montgomery has set the table for the special dinner for Myrna Loy and Reginald Owen. As the camera is focused on the table, four candles are seen standing in one direct line. A few scenes later, and, presto, the four candles have miraculously separated themselves into two candles at each side of the tables. There's nothing like watching a picture to really see feats of magic performed."

• • • •

It was Cecil B. DeMille's script girl who once said to me that there were several boners in a certain DeMille picture, and that no one would be able to find them except movie ushers.

The main reason a picture can't escape without a flaw being seen is ushers. They are the best finders of movie boners. They see the same picture again and again, and therefore notice details.

A letter from an usher: "I've worked at the Astor Theater since the opening of 'The Great Ziegfeld' until two weeks ago," writes M. Howard. "I've seen the picture for one week, at two shows a day and three on Saturday. As ushering was my job and pictures a great interest to me, I am sure I detected a movie boner.

"The screen flashes the headline, 'Sandow to Fight the Lion,' and this paper is dated some day in May, 1894. Later, there is another flash of a paper with the headline reading, 'Sandow Fight With a Lion a Fraud,' this is dated April, 1894. Nice, eh?"

• • • •

Guy Kibbee was making a birthday cake for Shirley Temple in the flicker "Captain January," writes Steve Kish. Kibbee was applying the icing to the cake when Slim Summerville came in and asked Shirley to come outside to see the birthday present he bought her. The three went out of the lighthouse to look at the crane. When they returned to the lighthouse, the cake was on another table with candles on it. The table was all set.

"Only the three of them were supposed to be in the lighthouse," says Kish. "Who set the table and lighted the candles?"

William Powell is working on the case now and you can wager any amount that he will solve it.

• • • •

Fred MacMurray, in the flicker "Thirteen Hours by Air," is asked by Joan Bennett, "How does the weather look?" according to M. Granat. "MacMurray looks out of the window and answers her. The windows had their shades drawn. So how could he look out of the window and tell Miss Bennett how the weather is?" But the fact remains that Fred did, and he told her correctly.

"Don't know if the boner I saw in the picture 'Snowed Under' will qualify me as a member of the Movie Boners Club, but this is it," writes Grace Weiner.

Oh, yes. They do.

New Costars in Technicolor Film

When Pioneer Pictures' production of "The Dancing Pirate" opens its engagement on the screen at RKO-Keith's today, two romantic leads new to feature-length films will make their bows to Capital audiences. They are Charles Collins, famous stage and ballroom dancer, and Steffi Duna, who was the heroine of "La Cucaracha," first of the new three-tone, Technicolor pictures. They are pictured above as they appear in the new production, which is said to set new standards by which future color subjects will be judged.

Hit Tunes.

Richard Rogers and Lorenz Hart, whose "On Your Toes" is the current New York hit, contributed four new tunes to "Dancing Pirate," Pioneer Pictures' new Technicolor romance.

Sidney Coiffure.

Finishing her part in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," in which she played a Tennessee mountain girl, Sylvia Sidney had her long brown locks clipped off into a short, crisp bob.

Valet's Death Holds U. S. Girl in Paris

Paris, May 14 (AP).—Police tonight said they had found a 21-year-old American society girl in the luxuriously appointed apartment of an Italian valet, who died when removed to a hospital.

After questioning the girl, police were uncertain whether the Italian, Luigi Mayer, 35, had committed suicide by drinking poison or had taken a fatal draught by accident.

The girl's name was withheld, but authorities described her as "the daughter of a rich American industrialist, who had come to France to perfect her French." They added that she was "merely a victim of misfortune."

She told them, police said, that Mayer wooed her after a chance meeting in a Montparnasse cafe, representing himself as an interior decorator.

A friend described Mayer as an "excessively emotional type." An autopsy will be performed to determine the manner of his death.

Police were puzzled as to where Mayer found the money to maintain his apartment. He earned only a few hundred francs monthly as a combined valet and janitor for an art dealer, but apparently lived expensively.

Britain Seeks U. S. Aid In Chinese Smuggling

London, May 14, (AP).—The British government is understood to be in contact with the United States and other interested powers over the possibility of joint action in an effor to halt smuggling into North China.

Consultations are proceeding following the failure of individual representations to Japan from Great Britain and the United States to better the situation, it was disclosed.

Curfew Extended In Arab-Jew Riots

Jerusalem, May 14 (Palcor).—The Palestine government tonight extended the curfew law to the New City of Jerusalem as racial tension heightened with the death of an Arab and injuries to four Jews.

(The curfew was proclaimed for the Old City yesterday, prohibiting street movements between 10 p. m. and 6 a. m.)

Arabs attacked a train running from Haifa to Tel Aviv, breaking the windows in several cars with stones. Three Jews were slightly injured.

The Arab was fatally shot by British policemen near the Jaffa gate after he had attempted to stab another Arab, apparently for breaking the anti-Jewish general strike. Arabs wounded a Jew in a clash in the Old City.

6 Dancing Units Present Joint Spring Recital

Diversified Program Given by School and Studio Organizations.

Six dancing units combined forces last night to present at Gordon Junior High School their annual spring recital. Appearing were groups from Gordon Junior High School, under Ivy Randall; Francis Scott Key School, under Amalie M. Preische; Stoddard School, under Margaret McDowell; Ivy Randall Studio, E. V. Brown School, under Miss Randall, and Oyster School, under Miss Randall.

The organizations offered a diversified program of 18 members.

The Gordon School's advanced military tap routine, the Stoddard School's "Rhythm in Nursery Rhymes," the Randall Studio's "Modern Number," the Key School's "Flowers routine", the Brown School's "School Days" and the Oyster School's "Pickininny Shinny" were among the better selections.

Mirabel Lindsay played the piano accompaniments for the Gordon Junior High School dancers, Elsie Harvey Weaver for Francis Scott Key School, and Evelyn Brothers for Stoddard School. Special music for the "Triflin" number by the guest artists from Bancroft (who were not named) was played throughout the courtesy of Charles Daw. The entire program was arranged by June Scribner.

Among those participating were:

Gentleness Touches the Battlefields

On this May 15, 1936, the 116th anniversary of her birth, it seems highly fitting to pay tribute to the memory of Florence Nightingale, the first voice to be raised in the land against the horror and suffering of war. The picture reproduced above is a scene from the Warner Brothers production of "The White Angel," commemorating the life and achievements of the first advocate of universal peace, the nurse heroine of the battlefields. Kay Francis is cast in the stellar role of Florence Nightingale, as will be observed in the lower center of the picture, with the wounded officer whose head is pillowed on a cannon.

Group on Arts Holds Dinner, Hears of Work

The American Federation of Arts concluded the second day of its three-day convention here with an informal dinner at the Mayflower last night.

Miss Jessie Doe, vice president of the New Hampshire League of Art and Crafts, told the group about the work being done in handicraft.

She explained that the materials used were, insofar as possible, indigenous to New Hampshire. The aim of the craftsmen, she said, was to produce a true New Hampshire art with New Hampshire materials.

Miss Doe exhibited wood carvings, pottery and jewel work done by New Hampshire craftsmen with native material. Included were examples of woven basketry.

Emphasis in the discussion last night was placed on handicrafts. Allen Eaton, of the New York City Russel Sage Foundation, told the group about mountain and rural handicrafts.

Philip N. Yountz, a director of the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Museum, spoke on the benefits of co-operation between architect and craftsman.

Charles J. Connick, president of the Boston Society of Arts and Crafts, was unable to be present last night. However, a paper written by him, "Thirty-six Years of Art," was read.

At the morning session Richard Selling for Craftsmen," was read. Lahey, head of the Corcoran School of Art, pointed out to the group the stimulus provided to the people by the public and semipublic art collections in the United States.

Another morning speaker was Francis P. Sullivan, local architect and vice president of the American Institute of Architects. Sulling material values, true art values van said that in the midst of changwould remain unchanged.

The convention concludes tomorrow after a reception at the White House and a banquet at the Mayflower.

Village Notes.

New York, May 14.

Study in Irony: Herbert Hoover got $75,000 a year and the White House; J. Edgar Hoover gets $10,000 a year, or $192.30 a week . . . It would cost more than that to cut the grass that grew under Herbert's feet.

Bette Davis.

No jealousy so keen as that of the restauowners of the town . . . Lindy doesn't talk to Arnold Reuben, Reuben doesn't talk to Dave, of Dave's Blue Room . . . Young Billy Lahiff and Willie Moore are about the only ones who talk to each other . . . Frank Morgan, always a good actor, has become a great actor in this year of grace, 1936 . . . His performance in "The Great Ziegfeld" was entitled to bravos . . . He clicks solidly again in Jock Whitney's "Dancing Pirates" . . . He is the rarest of all celebs . . . He was born in New York City . . .

* * * *

John Boggiano will operate a 3,000-seat night club at the Texas centennial . . . He'll make a lot of dough checking those ten-gallon hats . . . Sheila Barrett, formerly of Washington, will sign with Paramount . . . Jackie Osterman denies he is breaking in a new black eye on Broadway, insisting that he always breaks in new acts out of town.

* * * *

Only cafeteria in town which gives you that Frank Buck Bring 'Em Back Alive sensation is in Central Park, at Sixty-fourth street . . . As you munch on a sandwich, the immediate foreground offers monkeys, tigers, lions and seals . . . Park Commissioner Moses should pep up the cafeteria menus, however . . . He should name dishes after Frank Buck, Martin and Osa Johnson, P. T. Barnum . . . There'd be excitement to us villagers in a chicken salad, frinstance, if it were billed as a "Lawrence of Arabia" Special.

* * * *

Study in Frustration: Cain's Warehouse, on West Forty-first street, paved with good intentions of fallen angels, a "flop" house, in the theatrical sense of the word.

Best looking ankles on the Stem: Those of Marion Harvey, showgirl addition to the Hollywood ensemble . . . Dorothy Mackaill lives in "21," which offers Southern exposure in the form of mint juleps . . . This is the only place in town which caters to dogs, with a special room featuring miniature fences and lamp posts.

* * * *

I like Variety's story on the theater owner who tried to perk up business with bank night prizes . . . The first night, he gave away $15 in prizes . . . The second night, he tilted it to $25 . . . The third night, he gave away $40 . . . The fourth night, he gave away the theater.

Aisle of Caprice: Peter Arno, most sophisticated of caricaturists, holding hands with his wife, the former Timmie Lansing, in Aisle S at the Strand . . . Funny that Academy Award winners always bob up immediately thereafter in poor flickers . . . Victor McLaglen, who excited raves in "The Informer," was not so fortunate in "Professional Soldier," which followed . . . Bette Davis, who won with "Dangerous," subsequently was mangled by "Golden Arrow."

From the publicity fotos released to date, you can conclude that Gov. Landon is good to his folks, likes horses and dogs, knows all of the neighbors by their first names . . . Me, too, but nobody even runs me for the board of trustees.

Christy Walsh, who managed Babe Ruth into big money, will get the custody of his son for two months this summer . . . As a result, the youngster will see the Olympic Games . . . I was sitting with Milton Berle in a restaurant last nite: "What time is it?" Berle asked a passing waiter . . . "I can't tell you. It's not my table," said the waiter . . . Recommended: RKO's plan to star either Katharine Hepburn or Claudette Colbert in "Joan of Arc" . . . La Hepburn was this column's suggestion, but I'll settle for C. Colbert . . . Award of Merit: Alvin Austin wants me to serve as one of the judges in a tootsie-roll slogan contest . . . How about Okay Toots? Please send me check—or tootsie roll.

Police Network Way Is Cleared By Commission

Band, Formerly Used for Television, Made Available for Project.

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday cleared the way for a police radio network that some day may cover the Nation.

With such a network in operation, it would be much easier to coordinate a hunt for a fleeing criminal, and for cities to exchange information concerning the identification of a criminal.

The commission yesterday made available for the proposed police network the 2,000 to 3,000 kilocycle wave band, which formerly had been used in television experiments. The commission found that these particular wave bands were not suitable for television.

The International Association of Chiefs of Police and the Associated Police Communications Officers have been advocating a country-wide police network. Already experiments with intercity radio are being conducted by New Orleans, St. Louis, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Indianapolis, Detroit and Davenport.

Now that the commission has cleared a band of air, so to speak, it is expected that various groups of States or cities will file applications to use it.

Under plans so far discussed, "police communications zones" would be created and in each would be a "key station." This station would have control of the air for its territory and would decide which messages should be relayed to other zones.

Messages from one zone to another would be sent by radio telegraph rather than by voice. However, a dot-and-dash message sent from Washington to Baltimore concerning a fugitive would, after its receipt in Baltimore, be broadcast by voice to Baltimore radio cars.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Choral Group of the Arts Club (Otto Torney Simon, condactor; Katherine Morrison, accompanist), will give its spring concert Thursday night in the clubhouse, assisted by Grace Powell, violinist, and Lyman McCrary, pianist. Program: "Spring Enchantment," "On Himalay," "The Tyger" (Sir Granville Bantock), "Annabel Lee," "A Memory" (Hugh Roberton), Choruses of the Sons of Shem, Ham and Japhet from "The Tower of Babel" (Rubinstein), "Cherubim Song" (Glinka), "The Land of Amorea" (Musorgski). Slow Ayre and Hornpipe from Violin Suite (Purcell), Adagio-Allegro from Sonata in D major (Handel).

When this mixed chorus of some 40 voices presents its occasional concerts for fellow members of the Arts Club and their guests, the small auditorium seems to house a family reunion, and the formality of the concert hall is non-existent. The choristers sing, as they have rehearsed, for their own enjoyment in making music together, and whatever reward they seek is found in the pleasure of their friends. Mr. Simon, a lion in the defense of musical ideals and a lamb in disposition, directs with fervor and relaxes in the quiet humor of his interpolated remarks.

This concert was especially interesting because of the refreshing predominance of unfamiliar compositions. Perhaps it is only the critic who experiences a positive exhiliration when hearing music that is not threadbare with usage, but I surmise that others share that feeling. On the program which Mr. Simon and his singers had prepared there were no items that savored of staleness.

Sir Granville Bantock is one of the most skillful choral writers of our day, and moreover a composer whose imagination is kindled by a poem into sympathetic rapport with the poet. This intuitive perception of the poet's concept colors his music and imparts to each song its peculiar beauty. No better exemplification of his sensitiveness in this respect could be found than in his treatment of Shelley's "On Himalay" and William Blake's "Tyger, Tyger, Burning Bright."

Those who know Anton Rubinstein only by his piano music would have a better idea of his artistic personality if they could hear more of his larger works. The three choruses from "The Tower of Babel" contain admirable choral writing, and the harmonization is so surprisingly "modern" as to anticipate here and there the total tints of Honegger's "Le Roi David." The manner in which the singers intoned them and the rousing chorus by Musorgski showed the loyalty with which they respond to their director's zeal.

Civilian Gas Masks.

London, May 14 (AP).—Geoffrey Lloyd, undersecretary of the Home Office, announced today that the British government plans to produce 30,000,000 gas masks to safeguard civilians against any type of gas in war time.

Film Star Had Varied Career In Early Days

John Boles, Here in Person This Week, Was Meant to Be a Doctor.

Few personalities have come to the screen with so varied a background as John Boles. A champion pitcher in his college days, he became an American spy during the World War, taught school afterward to pay for his music lessons and broke into films by way of the musical comedy stage.

John Love Boles, was born October 27, in Greenville, Texas, and as a heritage of his nativity he still uses such words as "larrupin." Both his mother and father are from fine old Southern families, and are Texas pioneers.

Boles' training as a singing screen star began in high school at Greenville, where he sang with the glee club. He also was the baseball team's star pitcher and continued in that role at the University of Texas. Three important ball teams offered him contracts while he was an undergraduate.

Was to be Doctor.

Although he intended to enter Johns Hopkins medical school to become a physician, Boles, instead, joined the Army upon America's entrance into the World War. He was assigned to the Intelligence Department in France and had many exciting and dangerous experiences as a secret operative.

Soldiers who enjoyed Boles' singing in the rest billets advised him to take up music seriously. Abandoning thoughts of a medical career, Boles, on leaving the Army, began studying in New York under Oscar Seagle, the famous vocalist. He made a living by teaching French and voice in Glens Falls High School, in upper New York.

After a year's study Boles organized a band of students and, as their business manager, took them abroad for a year while he studied under the best masters, among them Jean de Reszke, former leading tenor at the Metropolitan.

Got Lead in Musical.

Back in New York, the young singer pounded pavements until he landed the lead in "Little Jesse James," an outstanding musical comedy success. Boles was a sensation, and later sang opposite Geraldine Farrar in "Romany Love Spell," and in a musical comedy hit, "Kitty's Kisses."

Boles' latest assignment is opposite Barbara Stanwyck and Wallace Beery in "A Message to Garcia."

The singing star is 6 feet 1 inch tall, weighs 198 pounds, has dark brown hair and blue-gray eyes. He is married to Marcelite Dobbs, a non-professional from his home State, and they have two daughters Marcelite and Janet.

How Does America Feel About 'Isms'

"Should schools teach the facts about all forms of government, including Communism, Fascism and Socialism?"

Recently the American Institute of Public Opinion asked that question of thousands of American men and women. And here are a few typical comments made on some of the first ballots returned:

Alabama University student: "If schools do not present the 'Isms' in their true lights, we will get false ideas of them from other sources."

Illinois copywriter: "There is enough of this bunk spread now without putting it in the schools."

Kansas laborer: "If the information is picked up outside of schools from radicals it might be misleading."

Volga Boatman Moves to Roof Spot Tuesday

Summer Headquarters of Russian Club to Have New Orchestra.

By Chanticleer.

There's a distinctly Russian atmosphere about the city this week. The Volga Boatman moves to its new roof for the summer and Helen Hamilton closes her Russian Troika for the summer.

The date for the Club Volga Boatman's opening is set for next Tuesday night, with a new band, a new outdoor atmosphere and a new floor show. It's to be known for short as the Russian Roof. And remains at the familiar address, No. 1 Thomas Circle.

Matt Windsor, the impresario, has completely remodeled and redecorated the breeze-swept roof (even made it larger) and, of course, did it in the Russian motiff—sophisticated, subtle things set off by a new and shiny dance floor. The band has been recruited from the ranks of the best musicians Washington offers, so says the host.

Tomorrow night is a paradoxical event over on Connecticut avenue with the joyousness of the festival marking the finale of another Troika season.

Of course, there's a special invitation to you to be present tomorrow night. It's a gala occasion only matched by the fall openings at La Hamilton's rendezvous.

It may be several weeks before the Shoreham terrace is formally opened, but guests already are using the terrace lounge, overlooking the gardens and the park, while relaxing in the cool of the evening. Margaret Arrow is amusing the people these days with her numerology.

Special at the Willard corner this week: Three days of the Preakness. The big race may be run only one day at Pimlico, but the mixologists at the corner will hold the new Preakness cocktail available to you for three days.

Add informal touches at the Ambassador's Hi-Hat Room: Leon Ackerman singing "Madelon" in French; Clyde Nelson, Texan who tickles a guitar and warbles Mexican ditties, and Harry H. Hitzeman, of Chicago, who does a most creditable job as M. C. When he did a particularly good job of "When My Baby Smiles at Me," he grinned and said he was Ted Lewis' lawyer and ought to know that tune well.

Brinkley's was busy the other night pointing out Petey Sarron's manager and his party.

Tuesday night also sees the opening of the Cocoanut Grove Restaurant, Fifth and K streets northwest. As a little pre-opening event, a number of the city's luminaries will foregather in the early hours while the whole corps and cast is paraded. At the usual hour for such affairs the citizenry in general will arrive for a gala opening show. Floor shows will be given three times nightly instead of the usual two. The atmosphere is tropical but the temperature distinctly air cooled.

Al Norton's presentation at the Lotus this week is headed by Beryl and Martinez, Don and Jean, Marion Lawler and Judy Ellington. Bill Strickland has all the fun, though, playing hot swing tunes in competition with the air-cooling system. The revue, incidentally, comes here from the Great White Way.

The Russian Influence

Sorority to Install.

Installation of officers of the Theta Mu Sigma Sorority of the Trinity Episcopal Church, Takoma Park, D. C., will be conducted at the banquet tomorrow at 7 p. m. at the Congressional Club. Miss Ethel Jean Lamond and Miss Laura McKenzie are in charge of arrangements.

Schools Reopen In Puerto Rico; Guards Posted

Troops Remain Mobilized After Student Rioting at San Juan.

By the United Press.

San Juan, Puerto Rico, May 14. San Juan schools, closed yesterday by order of Gov. Blanton Winship after student rioters had damaged classrooms and trampled the American flag, reopened today, but the insular government kept police and National Guard forces in readiness.

Guard units under command of Col. Raul Esteves native West Pointer, remained mobilized as a precautionary measure and were assigned to strategic positions. The police also took steps to cope with any surprise move by demonstrators.

Capt. Rafael Diaz, new San Juan police chief, named to replace Chief Ramon Martinez Chapel because of the latter's alleged weakness in handling the situation, said everything was orderly and that no trouble was expected. He added that the schools were functioning normally.

Arrival of police cars broke up a minor demonstration in front of the high school last night. The demonstrators caused a traffic tangle, but fled at the approach of the police.

No demonstrations were reported outside the capital.

By the United Press.

Warning By Ickes.

Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes yesterday warned that the United States Government would maintain law and order in Puerto Rico at all costs, as reports from San Juan indicated a serious political disturbance might be brewing in the Caribbean territory.

"So long as the United States is responsible for the government of Puerto Rico we will maintain order," Ickes said.

The head of the department which has jurisdiction over the territory said that Insular Gov. Blanton Winship had the right to call on the Federal Government for "any help he needs."

Zioncheck on Warpath.

St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, May 14 (U.P.). — Representative Marion Zioncheck declared war on Puerto Rico today.

"Puerto Rico as an island is all right," he explained, "but the people are beasts. I had no intention of coming to the Virgin Islands, but my personal safety demanded that I seek safety. I choose St. Thomas as a haven of refuge after telephone wires to my San Juan hotel room had been cut and our room was attacked."

The Seattle Representative, honeymooning with a former Washington stenographer, said: "If I have to land in Puerto Rico on my way to Haiti, I shall be fully armed. I shall engage in encounters, entirely unafraid."

He explained that the student riots and anti-American demonstrations in Puerto Rico were aimed more at him than at the United States Government. It was recalled that Zioncheck asked to have the marines sent to protect him in San Juan. Officers refused the request so the Congressman resisted the siege by cracking coconuts, drinking the milk and hurling the shells out the window.

"As soon as I return to Washington we will cut Puerto Rico loose from the United States," Zioncheck said.

Miami Widow Wins $175,000 Balm Suit

Miami, Fla., May 14 (AP).—Mrs. Sarah Wyman, Miami widow, won a $175,000 judgment today against Edward L. Newhouse, jr., New York metals executive, for breach of promise and seduction.

The 42-year-old Mrs. Wyman had asked $500,000 damages.

The circuit court action, uncontested by the middle-aged New Yorker, consumed less than an hour. Mrs. Wyman, modishly attired in black and nervously fingering white gloves, was the only witness.

She did little more than identify the exhibits — letters, notes and checks—handed her by counsel to support the claim of loaning or spending more than $32,000 in Newhouse's behalf after his promise to marry her.

Mrs. Wyman, mother of sons aged 11 and 13, made no comment on the verdict.

Budget Items Topic.

Budget requests for 1937, which the City-wide Playground Council will recommend, will be discussed at a meeting tonight in the District Building. Dr. Edward E. Richardson, president, will be in charge.

The Federal Diary

By Morgan Baker.

Another "typical blow at the merit system" was revealed yesterday by Gertrude McNally, secretary-treasurer of the National Federation of Federal Employes, in a bill just introduced in the House. The measure would provide for court stenographers in the Federal District Courts and to fix their duties and compensation.

BAKER.

"Stenographers may be engaged by the United States District Courts regardless of the civil service act," Miss McNally points out, quoting the last paragraph of the bill, "as amended: Provided: That such expert stenographers shall be entitled to leave under the leave statutes of 1935 and shall be entitled to annuity as provided in the retirement act, as amended, as applicable to civil service employes in the United States."

"This blow is typical of unnumbered attacks upon the Federal merit system during recent years," Miss McNally declared. "However, it is interesting to note that, while the bill provides that appointees shall receive all the benefits under the civil service system, it omits any demand upon the prospective employes for a qualifying test to prove fitness.

"Court stenography is specialized work of the highest importance. There is no possible excuse for excluding such positions from the civil service system and tossing them to the spoilsmen for patronage distribution.

"This provision of H. R. 12659 is one of a seemingly endless succession of evasions and attempted evasions of the civil service laws and regulations during the past three years. The result has been the most complete breakdown of the Federal merit system in generations."

Miss McNally concludes with a question:

"When will the public, that pays the bills, call a halt to this work of destruction?"

The bill to change the name of the Department of the Interior to the Department of Conservation and Works, pending in Congress and the passage of which has been favored by President Roosevelt and Secretary Ickes, has passed the Senate and is now before the House.

Exodus to New York.

According to reports of its sponsors, the New York trip of the District Department, American Federation of Government Employes, seems likely to be the largest ever operated by an organization of Government employes. So many tickets have been sold for the tour leaving today at 1:20 p. m. over the B. & O. that two dining cars will be made available for the party, Ira Y. Bain, (P), Internal Revenue, says. There have been numerous registrations for the tour leaving tomorrow at 1:20 p. m., also, Bain reports.

The last opportunity to make reservations for the Saturday trip will be at the A. F. G. E. national offices, 900 F street northwest, from 4 to 6 p. m. today.

Two bulletins by the late Dr. David Griffiths, senior horticulturist, Bureau of Plant Industry, have just been issued by Agriculture. They are of particular interest to the flower gardener. Dr. Griffith died last year.

Diary Guest Tickets.

If F, P or C follows your name in this column call on the Federal Diary editor today only between 3:30 and 5 p. m. You will receive tickets to one of the following Loew's theaters: F, Loew's Fox (stage, John Boles, Don Costello Revue and other acts; screen, Barbara Stanwyck and Wallace Beery in "A Message to Garcia"); or to P, Loew's Palace (Janet Gaynor and Robert Taylor in "Small Town Girl"); or to C, Loew's Columbia (Sylvia Sydney, Henry Fonda and Fred MacMurray in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine").

So They Say!

There is turmoil in the office
And excitement in the air,
Voiced by Public Works employes
Here and there and everywhere.
In the corridors of buildings,
In the hallways, on the stairs,
And in washrooms, too, they gather;
By the dozens and in pairs.
If you want to know the reason—
It's because PWA,
Will soon have its ranks depleted
By nine thousand—so they say.
FRED J. BERBERICK (F),
Interior.

Two losses are reported at Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Edward L. Dent, Finance Division, has been transferred to Social Security Board. Hubert B. Smith, Foreign Trade Zones Board, resigned to enter private industry.

Agriculture Dramatic Club.

Agriculture Dramatic Club will present three one-act plays tonight in the Agriculture auditorium at 8:15. The plays are "Suppressed Desires," "The Singapore Spider" and "The Flower Shop."

K. of C. Aid Invited In Chinese Exhibit

Five local councils of the Knights of Columbus were invited yesterday to participate in an exhibition of Chinese art and to attend a musicale at Carroll Hall Sunday night.

The exhibit and musicale are being held for the benefit of a drive to raise funds for the Chinese school on H street northwest.

Alfred Sze, Chinese Ambassador to the United States, is one of the sponsors. Dr. J. DeSiqueira Countinho, of the Catholic University of America, and Dr. Stephen Pan, a graduate student, are in charge of the committee on arrangements. They are being assisted by Sing Lee, teacher at the local Chinese school; Kenneth Lee, director of the Chinese school; Dr. and Mrs. Boyd Carpenter, Francis Anthony McCann and Mrs. John Fitzgerald.

Agent Is Slain In Rum Battle; Suspect Seized

By the United Press.

Hammond, Ind., May 14.—Federal agents revealed tonight they had seized a man for questioning in the murder of John Foster, Internal Revenue agent shot down early today in a running gun battle with illicit liquor racketeers near St. John, 10 miles south of here.

The man, described as James Jones, 40, of Indianapolis, was arrested a few hours after the shooting by Chicago Heights, Ill., police, and turned over to officers of the Treasury alcohol unit here.

Foster was killed by a rifle bullet which struck his heart as he and his partner, Guy Goodwin, 35, chased two members of a northern Indiana liquor running gang and attempted to close in on the automobile in which they were fleeing. Three bullets pierecd the agents' car, striking Foster in the leg and chest.

Goodwin returned to Hammond with Foster's body and gave the alarm, but the killers, riding in a black sedan, apparently escaped before State and county officers closed all roads leading from the scene of the killing.

Indiana State and Federal agents immediately closed in on main highways leading into Indianapolis, where the gang is believed to have headquarters. E. C. Yellowley, superintendent of the Federal district alcohol tax unit, rushed here from Milwaukee to take charge of the investigation.

The Federal agents said they had several leads but declined to reveal them. They said they did not think Jones had anything to do with the killing, but believed he knows something which might lead to apprehension of Foster's killers.

On the Air Today

Just when it looked as though the radio production man's rule No. 1—"Always give the audience some sort of an illusion"—seemed to be on its way to the archives, or, at best, tempered to the tempo of the listeners' pulse, along comes the incident of last week, and we find that production still is based on the theory that the artificial is the keystone of a successful program.

The illustration at hand has to do with the series of "Radio Visits to Washington" under joint sponsorship of N. B. C. and the Washington Board of Trade. The episode was the radio "visit" to the White House, in which the first half of the program was studio dramatizing of interesting incidents in the history of the Executive Mansion, and the second half an informal chat with the chief housekeeper, gardener and chef, as I recall.

My first question, when informed of the White House as the week's subject, was whether the quarter-hour from Washington actually would be picked up from the White House. The prompt answer was: "No, indeed. No one is permitted to broadcast from the White House, except Mr. Roosevelt." Which seemed proper and understandable enough.

From my point of observation it seems one of the most interesting facts that could have been brought out in the entire program—the fact that one of the inviolable rules of the White House, the subject at hand, was that no broadcasting could be done from its premises. And so the busy housekeeper, gardener et al, had made trips to the studio in accordance with that regulation.

But could such a thing be done? No, indeed. It would be heresy and high treason. The "illusion" would be spoiled. And, so far as I know, the listener in Chicago or Cleveland was permitted to believe the broadcast originated in the Executive Mansion.

This week's chapter of the series is a "visit" to the Capitol, with interviews with Roger Sanford, page in the House; Headwaiter Paul Johnson of the Senate Restaurant, and others. The Washington portion of the program originates in this case at the Capitol. WMAL, at 10:30 a. m.

For Love or Money

By ROB EDEN

Brenda Fayre, 22, has been hired by Walter Jason to play the part of "siren" in his stock selling schemes. Brenda is unable otherwise to provide a livelihood for her sister, Lally, who is confined to a wheelchair. She does not know that Jason and his partner, Ethel Bush, are selling worthless mining stock, but she suspects this is the case. On taking the job, Brenda provides that Lally shall not learn that she is being hired to entertain prospective stock buyers.

CHAPTER FOUR.

Grace Ivar was a plain, serious girl. Her best feature was her glowing white skin. Her eyes behind her glasses were sharp, small brown eyes, and her hair was dark, too, mousy hair, which even with its permanent seemed eternally straight. She had the gift, a good one, of appearing always to be busy, snowed up with work. That was what Ethel Rush wanted of her, that was why she had hired her four years ago. Also she had a pleasant business-like voice, and a brisk efficient way of greeting people.

"So you're the new—" she was going to say siren, but she hesitated and instead said, "girl." She looked Brenda up and down, as she had when Brenda had come into the reception room that morning asking for Mr. Jason. Grace's glasses and Grace's eyes behind the glasses made the scrutiny embarrassing.

She realized they were necessary to Walter in his salesmanship schemes, but nevertheless she didn't like them. Perhaps it was because they were so much prettier than she was, and she knew their wardrobes were provided by the company. Leora, Silvie, Mary, Anne, and now Brenda. She had known them all in turn, at least the ones who had been with the company since she had come. Leora in Los Angeles, Silvie in New Orleans, Mary in Denver, Anne in St. Louis.

This Brenda seemed younger than any of them had been . . .

"Ethel wanted me to show you around?"

"Please."

Grace got up reluctantly from her chair. She didn't like to be polite to the sirens, but Ethel's orders were orders she had to obey if she wanted to remain with the company, and she did want to stay. She liked the work, and more than that she liked the pay—and the commissions. In four years she had built up for herself a tidy little fortune, for in addition to her salary, she got a bonus of 1 per cent on all stock sales.

Homey Room.

Brenda looked around the reception room again. A small, rather homey little room, slightly shabby, but with good rugs on the floor and comfortable well worn leather chairs. Grace's desk was not a large desk, but the wood in it was solid and hand carved, and the lamp behind it, simple and plain, reflected the light properly, for there were no windows. On the walls hung a few maps, one of New Mexico, one of Mexico and another of Brazil.

Ethel's office had given Brenda the same impression although it was larger and held two desks. Homey, comfortable and slightly shabby.

Grace opened a door next to the one which led into Ethel's quarters. This was marked, "Walter Jason, Private." The two girls went in.

Brenda had expected Walter's office to be ostentatious, but it wasn't. It was a bigger room than either Ethel's office, or the reception room, but it was furnished in much the same way. Good rugs, a few comfortable easy chairs, Walter's big desk, some filing cabinets, a long table piled with maps, papers and samples of ore, a great globe in one corner. The east wall back of his desk was hung with photographs, views of the Gold Oak mine, views of the country around the mine, enlarged snapshots of Walter in old clothes talking with his men, prospecting, group photographs of the engineers who were running the mine, a large picture of John Hays Hammond.

The west wall contained a litle library of mining books, several hundred. All these were well worn volumes and looked as if they had been read and reread.

The room was a light one with three windows on the north wall.

"Not very showy, but Ethel and Walter don't go in for showy offices," Grace explained. "Walter would, but Ethel doesn't believe in them. She does all the furnishing, and she chooses everything very carefully."

Grace saw Brenda's look of surprise. "Oh, it's all right. We're really one family. We have to be. Besides I've been with them four years, and I know about everything there is to know about the business. They want it that way because we might have to be on the move any minute."

A chill started in Brenda's heart and raced all through her body. Grace was watching her closely, and smiled to herself when she saw the other girl's eyelids quiver. She enjoyed getting hold of Walter's sirens and telling them what was what. Her information usually took them down a bit.

The Mine.

Brenda saw a large tin shed in the foreground, and machinery in the background. The shed was huddled at the base of a hill, the top of which she could not see. The roof of the shed was painted with the name of the mine.

"And these are the men working at the mine." Grace touched another photograph to the right. Several hundred workmen were grouped together before the shed, many of them Mexicans. "That is there were men there when this picture was taken, but they aren't there now. Oh, there are some, about six, I think, but the others were brought in for the picture. Sort of extras to make the picture look good. It does look good, doesn't it?"

When Brenda didn't answer, she repeated her question. "Doesn't it?" and Brenda nodded, and the same chill came.

"Walter and Ethel are proud of that picture. They had an enlargement made of it for our last office in St. Louis, and they may use the enlargement here. They don't know yet. Ethel arranged the pictures on this wall—she knows just what strikes the eye—and this one strikes the eye right away. Ethel's really a very smart woman. She sets the stage and Walter gets the business. You're part of the stage, we're all part of the stage. George Rush is part of the stage. That's right, you haven't met him."

With that Grace took Brenda out of Walter's office, back to the reception room, and opened a door opposite her desk.

This door was marked only "Private," and led to an office as large as Walter's, but more sparsely furnished. There were no rugs on the floors, no draperies at the windows, and four desks in a row. Only one of them was occupied, and the only occupant was a stoop-shouldered, white-haired man in shirt sleeves.

To Brenda, George Rush's face was a kindly face, and his hand a kindly one as he took hers. She forgot her fears as he spoke, and the chill left. His daughter didn't resemble him in the least—there was nothing brisk about George Rush, nothing efficient. He looked nothing more than a pensioned bookkeeper, pottering around as best he could. His desk was cluttered with circulars which he was folding. On another desk was an addressing machine, and piles of envelopes. In the big room, he looked lonely, a little forlorn, and his smile was the shy one of someone who is not visited very often.

"George takes care of the circulars for the firm," Grace said later in the reception room. "Sends out the literature, what we send out of it, which isn't much, for we don't go in much for mail stuff. Too dangerous. Ethel doesn't like it, but feels we have to do some of it to keep our standing. Nobody pays much attention to George, but in his day he was a smart man. A mining professor. We use his name on the circulars. He's got a string of degrees a mile long. Well, I guess that's all for you to see, and meet."

"Aren't there—any other people in the office—"

Small Organization.

"Ethel and Walter and George and you and I—that's all. Our organization is small. That's the way Ethel and Walter want it. Too many people, too much danger. They know what they're doing. Walter has a magic for selling; Ethel has a magic for stage setting; the money comes in. Isn't that enough?"

Brenda didn't say anything. She couldn't. She could only look at Grace and see the hard amused smile on her lips and the small dark eyes, which were set a little too close together, twinkle behind the glasses that gave her an owlish expression.

"Think you're going to like sitting on a keg of dynamite?" Grace drawled.

"I've got to like it."

"It isn't as bad as that. There's really not much danger. Ethel is too careful. It's Walter who isn't, but Ethel holds him down. Now are there any questions you want to ask?"

There was the question she had been wanting to ask Ethel, but hadn't had the chance. She asked it of Grace, and her voice when she heard it didn't sound like hers at all. It seemed so far away, so small.

"Is there any gold in the Gold Oak mine?"

Grace laughed. "Really, I don't know. There was in the last mine, only Walter and Ethel didn't know it until they sold it outright, weren't they furious! That was the Spanish King mine in Nevada."

All the way home Brenda worried how she could satisfy Lally's curiosity about her job. The first day, and Lally would be so curious. She would want to know about the offices, about the people in the offices, about the mine. She would sit in her chair pegging question after question, her eyes getting brighter and brighter, a flush creeping up to her temples, as it always did when she was excited. For Lally only had the flat at the Corwin. Brenda's life within the flat and out of it in the world she didn't know—and Peter. The world she didn't know was fascinating to her. She never could ask enough about it to satisfy her. Brenda needn't have worried for when she got home the table was set for three places and Lally was saying importantly, "Mr. Sargent is coming down for dinner." Then anxiously, "You don't mind, do you? Peter got away and Mr. Sargent brought him back to me—and Brenda, I couldn't help asking him to dinner, could I?"

Skin Diseases Cured by Baths And Lean Diet

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

The Problem of Psoriasis.

Whenever an expert dermatologist (specialist in diseases of the skin) takes thought unto himself that he possesses all knowledge, let him be confronted with a baffling case of psoriasis. The chances are that he will meet his Waterloo.

Those with this affliction may be thankful that they do not live in the period when it was mistaken for leprosy. For three or four centuries these unfortunates were compelled to undergo the degradation meted out to the "unclean." The anesthetic character of the skin area, after the scale had been removed, was probably one of the factors that led to its confusion with leprosy. It was not until 1798 that an English physician, Robert Willan, carefully differentiated psoriasis from other diseases and gave it its name.

The scales are dry, silvery-white and leave a reddish to pinkish, sometimes raw-looking, area of skin when removed. Scales should never be dislodged forcibly. Daily warm baths, scrubbing the lesions gently with mild soapsuds, is the best method. A brush or a stiff turkish towel may be required.

Comes and Goes.

Apparently regardless of what is done or what remedies are prescribed, the condition will come and go, improve or become worse. An individual may be free from it for weeks, months or even years, but sooner or later—usually when the symptoms of fatigue and intestinal toxemia increase—the blotches will reappear. It is a common observation on the part of patients that whenever they lose sleep, become worried, are compelled to forego regular meals, or consume undesirable types of food, the lesions become more numerous.

Curiously enough the victim is otherwise in excellent health. No single disturbance of any function of the body can be identified or located. Heart, lungs and kidneys are acting normally. The condition has no relation to lack of vitamins or to the failure of any gland to supply its normal secretions. Slight injuries such as a scratch on the skin may, however, give rise to the typical raised areas. It remains true, nevertheless, that as the body drops in that intangible factor called resistance the patches tend to increase in number and extent.

Ultraviolet Rays Valuable.

Every remedy in the long category of therapeutic agents has been tried. Within the last year or two, due to the report that a high protein diet increases the extent of the disease, a menu free from animal and vegetable protein has been recommended. On the other hand certain authorities have noted that a diet from which fat has been largely if not entirely eliminated is far more useful. It is not a rare experience to find patients in whom the skin will become completely clear of scales through the use of a fat free diet. On resuming the consumption of fat many cases will coincidentally develop the blemishes.

Of the numerous drugs employed Fowler's solution of arsenic is probably the best, but physicians have learned that care must be exercised lest it be taken for too long a period with resulting arsenic poisoning.

In the field of physical therapy, artificial ultraviolet or ultraviolet from the sun is of value. Exposures are continued until there is a definite browning of the skin. This plan of treatment appears to be rational, because more patients improve during the summer months when out of doors a larger percentage of the time.

A few months ago Elson of New Orleans advocated the use of large doses of pancreatic extract and his plan calls for several doses each day. This is given in conjunction with baking soda (soda bicarbonate) so that the pancreatic enzyme will not be destroyed by the acid gastric juice. Perhaps this is the way out—or it may be just another drug added to the already long list of cures.

Everything Is Barred To Chinese 'Flippers'

The freedom of Chinese women is slipping. With edicts to right and left of them, they are finding it difficult to follow fashions of their sisters across the Pacific, or to have a good time according to Western standards. A recent proclamation—the most drastic so far announced—bars unstockened legs, permanent waves, lipstick, low-backless gowns, mixed bathing and mixed dancing.

Juvenile Swank

Dainty and sweet and still incorporating many of the style details of adult fashions, this dotted Swiss frock would be a splendid addition to any little girl's summer wardrobe. In color it is an elusive tone of pink which belongs exclusively to the younger set. Pleats give the skirt a graceful fullness and ruffly white organdy finishing the neckline, add a bit of swank and just the right juvenile touch. Virginia Weidler, child picture star of Paramount Studios, posed for this photograph.

*EGG CROQUETTES WITH CREAMED SPINACH

4 hard-cooked eggs
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup rich milk
1 teaspoon chopped parsley
Little onion juice
Salt and pepper
½ cup grated cheese
Flour
Beaten egg
Bread crumbs
Fat for frying
Creamed spinach

Make a white sauce of the butter, flour and milk, seasoning with parsley, onion, salt and pepper, then add the cheese and last the eggs cut in dice. Cool the mixture on a well buttered plate and shape into croquettes. This amount will make eight. Dip these forms into flour, beaten egg and sifted bread crumbs, and fry in hot, deep fat. Place them in the center of a platter and surround with chopped, cooked spinach moistened with a few spoonfuls of cream and well seasoned.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I don't know where to turn, and therefore am writing to you for advice. I am 17 years old and the eldest of six children, the youngest of whom is not quite a year. I shall graduate in June. We have an extremely unhappy home life. We live in terror of father, and are slowly but surely growing to hate him. He drinks to excess, comes home and beats us all up. Many and many a night he has kept us all up.

* * * *

One can be ill-treated and take it, but one can't stand by and watch little children and one's mother being ill-treated. It simply isn't human. What he earns does not keep us. For two winters I have worn a spring coat. The first winter I felt the cold bitterly, but by this past winter I had become so accustomed to the cold that I no longer felt the need of a winter coat. My 14-year-old brother wore the coat which was bought for him when he was 9. So you can see father's income doesn't keep us.

* * * *

We are all in a state of nervous tension the moment he comes into the house. We never know what is coming from one moment to the next. What we want to do is rent a house in a cheap section of Washington or Alexandria and start a shop. We cannot go on as we have, and although we should still be poor we wouldn't mind that. Once we got out of the present atmosphere we could be perfectly happy.

* * * *

The problem is money. All we have is $150 which mother started for the six of us as each was born. Any fool can see it would be useless for us to attempt to start a shop on that. We need at least $300 clear to back us. Where are we to get it? You might say, "borrow it from a bank." Everyone knows the first year of a business is the most difficult. If we borrowed from a bank at the end of a year or so we would have to pay back the full amount of the loan plus interest. That would be absolutely impossible.

* * * *

Isn't there someone who could afford to who might help us in the beginning? Someone who would not expect repayment until we are actually on our feet? We are not asking charity. We merely want help to help ourselves. All of us are more than willing to work. All of us are fairly well educated. I have always managed a scholarship to a priavte school. We speak French almost as fluently as we speak English, and mother speaks German as well.

We shall greatly appreciate any advice you can give us. Sincerely yours MARY S.

Readers' Help Asked.

DEAR MARY S.: I am sorry to say I have no suggestion to offer as to where you might obtain a loan of $300. It seems to me the only possible sources of help for you are the pastor of your church; the family service agency in your community, or the local Domestic Relations Court or its equivalent. There is no reason why your father should not be placed under a peace bond and thus legally restrained from visiting physical abuse upon his family. If his conduct is as violent as you indicate, it is quite possible the court might ban him from the home, while insisting that he make financial provision for his family.

* * * *

Opening a shop will prove a hazardous enterprise at best, and for that reason it seems to me the initial venture should be started under your present roof. I believe you might get a more sympathetic response and support from long-time neighbors and friends than you could expect from strangers in a new community. And as I say, if escape from your father's tantrums is the consummation devoutly to be desired, that can be taken care of by legal means quite as well as by running away. To do the latter, in these economically unsettled times, might be to jump from the frying pan into the fire.

* * * *

Perhaps some of our readers can give us helpful advice to apply to this problem. I should be deeply grateful for any constructive contributions, for I well realize it is more than human nerves can bear, to watch loved ones terrorized by a drunken brute. M. H.

Tasks of Child Can Be Turned Into Fun Game

Play Is Life, and if All Life Could Be Play, 'Twould Be an Ideal World.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

In the days of strict Sunday observance, a father once saw his daughter sewing on Sunday afternoon, and reproved her for working on a day of rest. Her reply amazed him.

"I like to sew and do it for relaxation. There is no time on school days, so I do it on Sundays."

What is one man's meat is another man's poison. There are people who look on work as play, and others who look on play as work. The only difference between the two forms of activity is in the individual's point of view.

Work Not All Drudgery.

If parents and teachers could rid themselves of the old puritanical notion, which still clings to many of them, that it is in some way sinful to play, and that work to be productive and useful must be unpleasant, there might in time be fewer middle aged drudges and discouraged wage earners.

Strange as it may seem, there was once an algebra class where the children every day did dozens of problems over and above the required number, and enjoyed doing them. The teacher of the class was one of the inspired few who enjoyed teaching, and her attitude was reflected in her pupils.

All of life could and should be play, and would be in an ideal state. Of course such a state is still out of reach, but the only way to bring it nearer is to give up the idea that play is wasteful and childish, and must in time be given up for the serious business of life.

Children reflect their parents' attitude. Hearing their parents complain of the burden of work and regret their carefree youth, the children come to believe that the future holds little pleasure. Perhaps the parents have failed to find congenial work which would be play, but there is no reason for their children to make the same mistake.

German Births Gain.

According to the annual report of the Reich board of health, there were 34,500 registered births in 1935 in Germany's 55 cities of more than 100,000 inhabitants.

Mr. Thebaud Weds Widow Of Lockwood

Rev. Heaney Performs Marriage Ceremony at St. Matthew's.

Mrs. Marjorie P. Adams Lockwood, widow of Mr. Chester Lockwood, of Washington, became the bride yesterday of Mr. Jules Mathieu de Rochefermoy Thebaud, of New York. The ceremony was performed at 4:30 o'clock in the sacristy of St. Matthew's Church by the Rev. Francis J. Heaney, of New York.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hearne Oliver Adams, of New York, formerly of Dallas, Tex., was given in marriage by her father. She wore an afternoon gown of beige lace with slippers to match and a large leghorn hat trimmed with a green velvet ribbon and a small bunch of old-fashioned flowers in the front. She carired an old-fashioned bouquet.

Brother Is Best Man.

Mr. Reynal de St. Michel Thebaud, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man.

A small reception followed in a suite at the Shoreham Hotel, for the members of the family and a few close friends who attended the ceremony. The bridal couple was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Adams, mother of the bride, who wore a gown of periwinkle blue lace, a large brown taffeta hat and a corsage of brown orchids, and by Mrs. Thebaud, mother of the bridegroom, who wore a gown of royal blue flowered crepe with a large straw hat to match.

Mr. Thebaud and his bride left for New York to sail tomorrow aboard the Georgic for England, where they will spend about a month. On their return they will spend the summer at Nantucket with the bridegroom's mother.

The bride attended the Laurel School, Cleveland, Ohio; the French School, New York, and spent two winters studying in Paris. She is a member of the Junior League of Washington and the Chevy Chase Club.

Attended St. George's.

Mr. Thebaud, who is the son of Mrs. Paul Gilbert Thebaud, of New York, and the late Mr. Thebaud, attended St. George's School, Newport, R. I. He is a member of the Union Club, American Yacht and Nantucket Yacht clubs, and of the Sons of the Revolution, Colonial Wars and St. Nicholas societies.

Out-of-town guests stopping at the Shoreham for the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Adams, parents of the bride; Mrs. A. H. Belo, aunt of the bride; Mrs. Edward H. Dodd, cousin of the bridegroom; Mrs. N. C. Reynal, aunt of the bridegroom, and her daughter and son, Miss Natalie Reynal and Mr. N. Jules Reynal; Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. Thebaud, jr., and their daughters, the Misses Dorothy, Eugenie, Cynthia, Natalie, Renee and Paula; Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Barker, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Thebaud, uncle and aunt of the bridegroom; Maj. and Mrs. E. G. Schermerhorn, Mrs Watson B. Dickerson, Mrs. Arthur Lord Murphy, Mr. George Hulings and Mrs. Davies Taintor, all of New York City.

Mrs. Allen T. Morrison, of Asheville, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Reynal Thebaud, of White Plains, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Heard, of Boston; Mr. Carl Satler, of Pittsburgh; Mr. George Gordon 3d, of Rochester, N. Y.; Mrs. Gregory McIntosh, of Chagrin Falls, Ohio, and the Rev. Francis J. Heaney, of Staten Island, N. Y.

Talk on India By Mrs. Sanger Heard at Fete

Mrs. Archbold Is Hostess at Her Estate to 100; Mrs. Morgan Present.

Mrs. Anne Archbold was hostess at her estate on Reservoir road yesterday afternoon to 100 guests at a tea for Margaret Sanger, recently returned from nine weeks in India, Burma, and Malay. Mrs. Sanger spoke briefly on her experiences.

She described the population problems of India, where, she said, there are in some places 2,000 people to the square mile. Invited to visit that country by the All-India Woman's Conference, she established 50 centers for birth control.

Her meeting with Gandhi was not a success in her opinion. She spent several days conferring with him at his farm where with his disciples he tries to manufacture necessary articles so that it will not be necessary to buy British goods. "A rather pitiable farm" she said, explaining that their attempts to make articles for their own use were clumsy and ineffectual.

"Gandhi could see no population problem where India was concerned," she said yesterday. "In his opinion, the only stumbling block to his country's progress is British rule."

The guests at Mrs. Archbold's yesterday divided their time between the long dining room, with its great stone fireplace, and the grounds outside, where chairs were placed on the terrace which overlooks a wooded hill. Flowers in pots at every window were in full bloom and in the hallway was a great bowl of pink hydrangeas.

Mrs. Sanger was accompanied by Mrs. Bancroft Davis, with whom she is staying until her departure for New York late today. Others present were Mrs. Carroll Morgan and Mrs. John Dryden, who poured; Mrs. William Phillips, wife of the Undersecretary of State; Mrs. Reeve Lewis, Mrs. Myron Whitney, Mrs. Page Hufty, Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, recently returned from Europe; Mrs. Henry Parsons Erwin, Mrs. Frank Baldwin, Mrs. Harold Marsh and Mrs. Montgomery Blair.

Dr. Schippell to Speak.

Dr. T. M. Schippell will talk on "Cosmic Vibration" Saturday at 8 p. m. at the League for the Larger Life, 1414 Sixteenth street. After the lecture there will be a reception in her honor.

Mr. Richling Entertains At Party in Carlton Hotel

100 Attend Reception Given by Minister of Uruguay; Mrs. Cordell Hull and Mrs. Sol Bloom Present at Informal Afternoon Gathering.

The Minister of Uruguay, Mr. J. Richling, was host at a reception yesterday afternoon at the Carlton Hotel at which he entertained about 100 guests. The room in which he received was decorated with garlands of smilax, palms and bouquets of spring flowers.

Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State, and Mrs. Sol Bloom, wife of the Representative from New York were among those who assisted at the tea table. Mrs. Hull wore a gown of black lace with a large black hat and Mrs. Bloom was in a rust-colored costume.

Members of Washington society were there, enjoying the atmosphere of pleasant informality which prevaded the party. Senoritas Marta, Graciela and Rebecca Trucco, daughters of the Ambassador of Chile, and their brothers, were among the guests, as were the Ambassador of Cuba, Senor Guillermo Patterson, and his daughter, Senorita Olga Patterson, and the Ambassador of Mexico, Senor Don Francisco Castillo Najera.

The Minister of Czechoslovakia and Mme. Veverka, their daughter, Mulle. Nella Veverka, and their son, were present, accompanied by Prince and Princess Loewenstein, of New York City, who are guests at the legation for two days. Also present were Senora de Alfaro, wife of the Minister of Panama, and Senora de Alfaro, wife of the Minister of Ecuador, and Mme. van Haersma de With, wife of the Minister of The Netherlands, who wore a small white hat and a tailored costume of black, with a short black cape, trimmed in white.

Representative Bloom was entertaining a small group, telling of hearing someone at the Capitol whistling a familiar tune. "What is that?" he inquired "Oh, I don't know," replied the whistler. "I do," said Representative Bloom, "It's 'Coon, Coon, Coon, I Wish My Girl Could Sing,' which I wrote years ago for Anna Held."

Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie was among the guests, as were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Talman and their daughter, Senora de Rodriguez.

Convent Garden Open Tomorrow

Public to View Spot for First Time in More Than a Century.

Mrs. Joseph Leiter will pour at the tea table tomorrow in the garden of the Convent of the Visitation, which will be open to the public for the first time in 137 years, as a part of the Georgetown Garden Tour for the benefit of child welfare in Georgetown. Tea will be served on the lawn outside the new gymnasium from 4 to 6 p. m.

Among those acting as hostesses will be Mrs. Godwin Ordway, Mrs. Francis W. Hill, Mrs. Lawrence Crawford, Miss Margaret Shea, sister of the Mother Superior; Mrs. Victor Whitlock, Mrs. John Vance, Mrs. Abby Scott Baker, Mrs. Frank Jelleff and Mrs. Alvin Barber.

Mrs. Ernest Lewis and Mrs. Lloyd B. Wight are in charge of the tea arrangements. Mrs. Lewis is giving a luncheon on Saturday for her daughter, Miss Phoebe Carey Lewis, who, with a group of friends from the Holton Arms School, will assist with the serving of tea. The guests include Miss Giovanna Bianca Stewart, Miss Marguerita Sterling, Miss Betsey Greene, Miss Lydia O'Neill, Miss Catherine Clement, Miss Stratton Nicolson, Miss Anne Smith and Miss Carol Woodward.

Another special feature for the 16th will be a demonstration of the art of Japanese flower arrangement to be staged in the garden of Mrs. John Ihlder, 2811 P street. Mrs. Herbert Greger, who has lived in Japan for 12 years and has made a long study of this art, will make three arrangements during the afternoon at 4, 5 and 6 o'clock, and at each hour will give a brief talk explaining the principles of her work.

Other gardens open on Saturday are those of Mrs. Gordon Dunthorne, 3304 N street; Mrs. Henry Leonard, 3038 N street; Mrs. Lincoln Green, 3025 N street; Mrs. Walter Peter, 3027 N street; Miss Looker and Miss Hedges, 1312 Thirtieth street; Mrs. Ruth Hanna Sims, 1224 Thirtieth street; Mrs. Herman Hollerith, 1633 Twenty-ninth street; Miss Cecil Jones, 2908 P street; Miss Lucy Bentley, 2918 P street, and Miss Katherine Dougal, 3030 P street.

Booth for Palm Reading To Feature Garden Fete

One of the popular features of the G. W. U. garden party tomorrow afternoon at Chevy Chase School grounds will be the palm reading booth, in which Mrs. Gustav Emery will preside.

Another feature will be the Children's amusements, in which the Camp Fire Girls will play a large part. Pony-riding will begin at 2:30 o'clock for the children; and there will be other entertainment for the youngsters while their elders play bridge.

Mrs. Frederick V. Coville, in charge of the refreshment tables, will follow the international scheme of the fete. Those who serve at the tables will wear colonial costumes, Polish costumes, Japanese costumes, and Belgian tea and cakes will be served at one table.

Mrs. William Howard Taft will be a patroness for the garden party, also Mrs. Henry Wilder Keyes, Mrs. Fulton Lewis, Mrs. Camp Stanley and Mrs. John C. Boyd.

Legal Sorority Will Celebrate Its Anniversary

Epsilon Chapter, Kappa Beta Pi, Will Hold Dinner Tomorrow.

The twentieth anniversary of Epsilon Chapter, Kappa Beta Pi International Legal Sorority, will be celebrated at a dinner tomorrow evening at the Mayflower Hotel. Among the honor guests will be Justice Harold M. Stephens, of the District Court of Appeals, and Mrs. Stephens, and Justice F. Dickinson Letts, of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, and Mrs. Letts.

Kappa Beta Pi International Legal Sorority is the oldest legal sorority in existence, having been instituted in Illinois on December 15, 1908, at the Chicago-Kent College of Law. Since that time chapters have been formed throughout this country and in several foreign countries. The sorority numbers among its members outstanding women lawyers in Holland, England, Germany, Switzerland, China and Brazil.

Epsilon Chapter, at the Washington College of Law, is the mother chapter of the sorority in the District of Columbia, having been instituted May 15, 1916. Since that time Nu Chapter at George Washington Law School, Omicron Chapter at National National University and Eta Alumni Chapter have been formed.

Kappa Beta Pi's outstanding members in this country include Judge Florence K. Allen, of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals; Judge Genevieve Cline, of the United States Customs Court of Appeals; the late dean of all women Judge Katheryn Sellers, who served lawyers, Ellen Spencer Mussey; for many years as judge of the District Juvenile Court; Judge Ellen K. Raedy, of the Municipal Court bench, and many others who have been pioneers in the legal field for women.

Albertinis Hosts At Dinner Party

Cuban Embassy Officials Among Guests at Event Marking Anniversary.

The Counselor of the Cuban Embassy and Senora de Baron were among the guests entertained at dinner last night at the Shoreham by Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Diaz Albertini. The party was in celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Albertini's twenty-second wedding anniversary.

Other guests were the First Secretary of the Cuban Embassy, Senor Carlos Blanco; the Attache of the Embassy, Senor Jose Maria de Lasa; the Chief of the Division of Latin-American Affairs of the State Department and Mrs. Lawrence Duggan; Mrs. Henry Meneses, of Havana, and Miss Margarita Montero.

Mr. and Mrs. Albertini are making their home at the Shoreham during an extended visit in the United States. Miss Montero, their niece, is staying with them, and Mrs. Meneses, who is Mrs. Albertini's sister, is also visiting them.

Committee to Meet.

The final meeting of the committee on arrangements for the Woman's National Democratic Club's spring fete to be given on the Washington Hotel Roof Garden on Wednesday will be held this morning. Mrs. Samuel Herrick, general chairman, will preside.

Mrs. Lewis Emory, Jr., Hostess At Party at 16th Street Home

Mrs. S. D. Clyde Assists in Entertaining; Refreshments Are Served in Garden; Cuban Envoy Is Among Guests.

By Francesca McKenney.

Mrs. Lewis Emory, jr., entertained yesterday afternoon at a garden party in her home on Sixteenth street, which she leased from Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Phillips, jr. The house had been unoccupied for some time, as Mr. and Mrs. Phillips spend their time in their home in Pennsylvania.

The terrace garden, with its border of bright-colored flowers, had small tables with gay-colored striped umbrellas, where the guests gathered in groups for refreshments.

Mrs. Emory, who received her guests at the entrance to the garden, wore a printed chiffon gown of lettuce green and yellow with a large leghorn hat trimmed with green and yellow flowers. The hostess was assisted in receiving by her guest, Mrs. Samuel D. Clyde, of Swarthmore, Pa., who is spending several days here. She wore a printed crepe gown of shaded purple flowers on a white background with a large straw hat trimmed with a bunch of roses and forget-me-nots on the front.

Mrs. Emory, who is spending her first season in the Capital, has a beautiful estate in Jamaica, which the Duke and Duchess of Kent occupied during their wedding trip.

Among the guests were the Ambassador of Cuba, Senor Dr. Guillermo Patterson; Mme. Peter, wife of the Minister of Switzerland; Mrs. William E. Borah, who wore a lilac colored ensemble with a large straw hat to match. Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr wore a flowered crepe gown; Baroness Von Below also was there as were Mrs. William A. Scully, Mrs. Charles V. Wheeler and Mrs. Victor Kauffmann.

Senora de Alfaro, wife of the Minister of Panama, who recently returned from Old Hickory, Tenn., where she spent ten days visiting her son, Senor Ivan Alfaro, arrived later in the afternoon as did the Naval Attache of the German Embassy, Rear Admiral Robert Witthoeft, who was accompanied by Mr. Ralph S. Hill. Mrs. Cresson Newbold, was chatting with friends as were Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, Miss Ida Guffy and her sister, Miss Pauletta Guffy, and Miss Sarah Cushing.

The feature of the afternoon was the strawberries and Devonshire cream, reminding many of the lovely English garden parties where they are always served.

Mr. Louis B. Mayer Is Guest at Dinner Of Mrs. Willebrant

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt entertained 100 guests at dinner last night in the patio room of the Carlton in honor of Mr. Louis B. Mayer, of Hollywood. Following the dinner Miss Agnes Davis, a protege of Mrs. Willebrandt, who several years ago won an Atwater Kent audition, gave a concert. Miss Davis is visiting Mrs. Willebrandt at her home in Georgetown during her stay here.

Mr. Mayer will leave today to return to the West Coast.

Congressional Club Tea Hostesses Announced

The group of hostesses who will assist at the weekly tea, to be given at the Congressional Club, 2001 New Hampshire avenue this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, includes Mrs. Gerald P. Nye, Mrs. Allard H. Gasque, Mrs. Hampton P. Fulmer, Mrs. John M. Baer and Mrs. James H. Patten.

The speaker for the afternoon will be Mrs. Georgette Ross Howard, well known political commentator who has conducted series of current topic lectures during the winter months for the past eight seasons.

Mrs. Dillard to Give Luncheon for Visitors

Mrs. F. M. Dillard will entertain at luncheon tomorrow in her garden at 317 South Saint Asaph street, Alexandria, for a group of friends who are making the tour of historic homes being shown under the auspices of Saint Paul's Episcopal Church. Mrs. Dillard's house will be open to the public that day.

Mrs. William Hulfish will also entertain in her home in Alexandria at a luncheon, taking her guests afterward on the historic homes tour.

THE WASHINGTON SCENE

By the Poe Sisters.

In keeping with the traditional hospitality of "Friendship," Mr. John R. McLean, jr., will entertain at a "bachelor dinner" for Mr. John de Sibour, who on June 1 is to marry Miss Valerie Prochnik, daughter of the Minister of Austria and Madame Prochnik. The Friendship dinner will take place the night before the marriage, according to present plans.

This latest international romance interests society in Washington, where such affairs have been known in practically every administration. The prospective bridegroom and bride-elect have been friends since childhood. Both are popular in the younger set here.

On June 3 Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean will entertain at a dinner at Friendship in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davies, who have returned from their honeymoon and are passing part of the late spring in Washington.

The pretty French wife of Charles Louis Marburg, chief of the American delegation to the plenary conference of the League of Nations Societies, meeting in Glasgow, Scotland, next month, knows her American history. Mrs. Marburg held her own in a discussion of historic landmarks and houses in and around Washington at a recent dinner in Washington. In addition to this, Mrs. Marburg has made a special study of Maryland history, especially that section adjacent to the Marburg estate in the Green Spring Valley. Mr. and Mrs. Marburg will sail this week-end for Europe. She will pass some time with her father, Count Ludovic de la Forest-Divonne, at his country place at Divonne-les-Bains, France. Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Marburg, parents of Mr. Marburg, will occupy their son's Green Spring Valley place during his absence in Europe.

An important guest at the reception to be given by the Minister of Norway, Mr. Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, in honor of Norwegian Day Sunday, will be Col. Worthing Hollyday, of Baltimore, owner of a splendid collection of Norwegian works of art and author of "Pictorial Interpretations" of the land of the Vikings.

Col. Hollyday has had a most colorful career and has traveled widely in Scandinavian countries. He saw service in France in the A. E. F. during the World War and was also military attache in the American Legation in Denmark, Finland and several of the Balkan states.

Col. Hollyday made a close study of the people, the customs and the countryside of each nation he visited and is the owner of an unusually fine collection of photographs and motion pictures of these lands.

The colonel will come to Washington with the Baltimore chapter of the "Nord Kap," a national organization of Sons of Norway in this country.

Dance Patrons Named.

Signor Augusto Rosso, Ambassador of Italy, the Minister of the Irish Free State and Mrs. Michael MacWhite, and the Secretary of the Irish Free State and Mrs. Robert Brennan will be patrons at the annual Holy Trinity Alumnae Association dance to be held in the ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel Saturday night, it was announced.

Charity Party Stage All Set

Grand National Premiere Will Be Feature of Frolics.

Guests attending Mrs. John R. Williams' Thrift Shop Frolics at the Sulgrave Club tomorrow night will have the thrill of seeing the "Grand National," Washington's premiere showing of the great English race. This will be but one of the features of the ball for the benefit of local children's clinics.

Ethel Barrymore Colt is coming for the event and will sing a group of her songs. There will be a beer garden set up in the old garden, and Miss Audrey Campbell, who is staying with her aunt, Mrs. Joseph Leiter, will preside over a "snack" booth, where all sorts of appetizers will be served. Miss Marian Shouse and Miss Abigail Sard will be her aids.

The old-fashioned breakdown dance has proved such a popular feature, several additional dancers have "signed up," among them Mr. Thomas Leiter, who recently has joined his mother here; Mr. Myron Parker, Col. Harry N. Cootes and his daughter, Miss Mary Cootes; Mr. James Mitchell, Mrs. Edward Reed and Mr. and Mrs. Emmons Smith.

During the evening, weather permitting, the old plantation band will play in the garden, where small tables will be set up and dancing will go on upstairs in the club. The orchestra will be in country costume.

Tickets of admission to the Frolics include supper and the various entertainment features. Mrs. Williams makes but one request—"bring a Thrift Shop donation to help Washington's sick and convalescent children." Hampers will be provided for all gifts.

★★★★ WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, MAY 15, 1936 21

'37 May End Blanton Rule Of D.C. Funds

Choice of War, District Chairmanships Likely to Face Texan.

The District next year may be relieved of the fiscal policy dictatorship of Representative Thomas L. Blanton, it appeared yesterday, through a realignment of sub-committee chairmen on the House Appropriations Committee.

Because of the failure of Representative Tilman B. Parks (Democrat), of Arkansas, to file for re-election, the chairmanship of the War Department sub-committee will become vacant, even though the Democrats retain control of the House.

The nominal chairman of the District sub-committee, Representative Clarence Cannon, of Misouri, has already assumed the chairmanship of the agricultural sub-committee since Representative Sandlin, of Louisiana, became a candidate for the Senate. Blanton was acting District chairman this year.

As a consequence, Blanton, if re-elected, will be in a position of ranking member of both the War Department and District sub-committees, to become chairman of one, but not of both.

Because the War Department is the more important of the two, nationally, it is expected the Texan will choose it. While he might retain a place on the District sub-committee, he would lose his dominating position.

Jacobsen Next in Line.

Representative Jacobsen (Democrat), of Iowa, would be next in line for the District chairmanship under the present seniority lineup.

Another possibility favorable to the District is that Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, will be chosen to replace the late John T. Buckabee, also an Illinois Republican, on the Appropriations Committee.

Dirksen, who is now ranking minority member of the House District Committee, is very friendly to the District. It is not impossible that he might be assigned to the District sub-committee should Representative Ditter (Republican), of Pennsylvania, move up to a more important assignment.

Tax Report Attacked.

With no more conferences on the District appropriations bill in prospect before next week, Representative Blanton late yesterday attacked the local tax report drafted by L. H. Parker, Congressional tax expert, at the instance of the Washington Board of Trade and submitted to the Senate subcommittee on District appropriations.

The Texan charged that questioning of Parker by the House conferees this week disclosed that "he doesn't know a thing under God's green earth about District taxes."

He declared that Parker, who draws $9,600 from the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, was paid $5,400 by the Board of Trade for his "ridiculous report."

Chided by Representative Hoffman (Republican), Michigan, about the amount of propaganda he has printed and mailed to members, Blanton asserted that he had spent $900 of his own money for reprints and asked leave to place a receipt from the Government Printing Office in the Record.

Georgetown R.O.T.C. Praised For Example in Preparedness

Georgetown University and its R. O. T. C. department were praised by Assistant Secretary of War Harry Woodring for setting a national example in military preparedness and patriotic education yesterday afternoon in addressing the battalion of cadets during the closing ceremonies of the annual field day.

His address followed the awarding of numerous trophies to winners of competitive events and honor cadets of the unit, prizes in which District of Columbia students won a liberal share. Cadet Lieut. Col. Frederick R. Tansill, commander of the battalion, figured prominently in the prize awards, and Cadet Capt. John J. O'Connor commanded B Company to win the annual company drill.

With Brig. Gen. C. D. Roberts, acting commander of the Third Corps Area, and members of his staff occupying seats in the reviewing stand with Rev. Arthur A. O'Leary, S. J., president of Georgetown, and a number of foreign military attaches, the battalion staged a colorful parade. Junior officers took command and passed in final review before the outgoing senior officers.

Prominent among the honor cadets was Capt. Vincent F. Beatty, commanding Company C. He was presented the award of the military department as the best company commander during the spring drills preceding yesterday's events, the presentation being made by Mr. Woodring. Beatty also was awarded the Knights of Columbus Cup as the best commander during yesterday's competitions.

Still another award was to be made to Capt. Beatty and his co-officers in the form of sets of officers' insignia presented by Maj. John D. Cutter, District commander, Military Order of the World War. The other officers were Lieuts. Arthur R. Kennedy, Joseph F. Finley, Robert H. Schombert, Francis S. Ainsa and John G. O'Brien.

The senior cup for highest scholarship in the advanced course was awarded Lieut. David C. Kean. Lieut. Frank S. Swain was awarded the Corps Area Commander's Cup. The award was made to Swain as the senior contributing the most to the R. O. T. C.

To Tansill, the battalion commander, was awarded the still higher honor of the American Legion Cup as the most valuable member of the unit during his entire enrollment.

Following the competitive company drill in which three units contested, Lieut. David Horowitz was declared winner of the platoon commander competition for the cup of the District Reserve Officers Association. But the keenest of all the competitions was won by Private W. A. Boyce, a freshman, who was adjudged the best drilled individual in the battalion. He won the cup of the Civilian Military Education Fund. As runner-up in the individual competition, Bertram Ingoldsby was awarded the cup of the Military Order of Foreign Wars.

Distinguished service ribbons were awarded to each member of B Company for winning the company drill, the presentation being made to First Sergt. George J. Fleury, jr.

Honor roll trophies, silver cups, were presented to the cadet of each class attaining the highest rating in military efficiency. In addition to Capt. Keane, who received the President's Cup, the other awards were: Sergt. Fleury, junior year, with a rating of 98.50 per cent; Corpl. George A. Dies, sophomore year, 97.37 per cent, and private Walter L. Smith, freshman year, with 97.75 per cent.

The six District of Columbia students in the graduating class were presented with a year's membership each in the Reserve Officers Association. Maj. John Casewell, department president made the awards to Donald W. Lamm, John J. O'Connor, Robert H. Schombert, Frederick R. Tansill and John W. Wibel.

As director of athletics, the Rev. John J. Kehoe, S. J. presented "G" sweaters as prizes to the high scorers of the varsity rifle team. W. F. Carpenter, A. D. Lachman, J. F. Lang, R. E. Alfaro, G. J Fleury, jr. Awards to high scorers on the freshman rifle team were made to J. D. Switzer, P. H. Hoffman, B. S. Kernan, G. P. Copeland and M. F. McCahill.

Father Kehoe also presented awards for service to E. J. Bernard, R. P. Campbell, J. J. Corrigan, J. C. DeBarry, W. J. Demer, J. E. Glancy, A. D. Lachman, J. E. Lombardi, J. G. Lanigan, H. M. Lawler, T. D. Maher, R. K. Martin, J. P. McGinnis, G. I. Mishtout, J. W. Mullen, W. T. Mulroy, F. E. Nattier, jr., A. J. Nicholette, C. R. O'Hara, J. J. Pappas, A. M. Riche, F. B. Schults and J. R. Sullivan.

A board of Army officers headed by Lieut. Col. J. G. Ord, commanding at Fort Washington, Md., acted as judges of the competitions. He was assisted by Second Lieuts. J. M. Pittman, Douglas G. Gilbert and Royal Reynolds, of Fort Washington.

Mass Strength Wins Eventually, Even in War College Ball Game

The principle of "mass"—one of the essential principles of military strategy—was turned to good account yesterday afternoon in a softball game between two groups of "future generals" studying at the Army War College.

The softball championship of the college was at stake when the two teams of student officers and faculty members, all of major or colonel standing and from whose ranks will come the Nation's future generals, lined up on the diamond in the rear of the college.

"Mass," in the military sense, means the concentration of troops in strategic spots, and so when the "Red" team captain found himself with the required ten players, he felt he had done quite well. His joy, however, was short-lived, for the "Grey" team captain had mobilized 13.

In wars the size of the opposing force is never fixed, and so true to their military traditions both teams trotted out their full "mobilized" strength, reserves as well as regulars.

For a time it seemed that the technique of the "mass" strategists would prove worthless as the "Reds" drove in five runs in the first inning by adopting the sandlot tactics of "hitting them where they ain't."

But after the second inning the "Greys" had spread their 13 men over the field in such close formation that only a "Stonewall" Jackson could have hit a Texas leaguer.

When the ball game was over, it was discovered that the "mass" technique taught at the war college had been vindicated with the score, 11 to 7, in favor of the "Greys."

Neighborhood Children Open May Day Fete

Several hundred children dressed in "sewing class" costumes and ranging from a child of 3 to important young ladies in the older clubs, took part yesterday in the opening of the thirty-fourth annual three-day May Festival of the Neighborhood House, 470 N street southwest.

The smallest children of the house began the celebration with an afternoon performance, while the older ones presented the "Pied Piper of Hamelin" at night on the natural stage in the garden of the institution.

The climax of the celebration is scheduled tomorrow, when the street outside the house will be roped off for a fair, with dancing around six Maypoles. The curbs will be lined with booths displaying wares the children and their mothers have made during the year.

The afternoon performance was patterned after the spontaneous celebrations of May in England. The garden trees and bushes were decorated with blossoms and the children sat in circles to do honor to the month. Many of the countries of Europe were represented in the costumes of the players, but the littlest ones of all, the kindergarten children who are cared for during the day at the house while their mothers are at work, were dressed in white. They went through their games and songs for the audience composed largely of members of the board of directors.

The program was under direction of the music instructor, Mrs. Cosette Marvick, and the dancing instructor Miss Virginia Griffith. The youngest member of the troupe was 3-year-old Nettie Eustace, who was crowned queen of the kindergarten children by her brother, Arthur, 4.

Standing on her throne (a kindergarten chair) little Nettie's blonde head could hardly be reached by her brother, but the youthful queen declined to stoop and it was a moment or two before the audience was sure the coronation would take place.

The All-Star Glee Band, composed of boys from 5 to 10, beat their rythm instruments at the beginning of the entertainment and at its close, when a May pole was wound in green and white ribbons by 20 pink and blue clad dancers.

5 Boys Seized, Admit Series of Auto Thefts

Five Negro youths, ranging in age from 14 to 16, who admitted they had stolen five automobiles since April 29, were arrested last night and charged with "taking property without a right."

They were arrested at Eighth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest, as they put oil into a stolen car on which they had substituted stolen plates. The youths also admitted they had stolen innumerable licenses, substituting stolen tags on the stolen autos.

Foreign Affairs Group To Hear D.C. Speakers

Two Washington experts on international affairs tomorrow will address the Institute of Foreign Affairs in session at Earlham College, Richmond, Ind.

Fred K. Nielsen, of Georgetown University Law School, will discuss "Confused Concepts of Neutrality," and Prof. Ellery C. Stowell, of the American University, will talk on "Collective Action and Peace."

Auto Permit Test Is Filed In D. C. Court

Alleges Kelly, Lamb Are on Revocations Board Unlawfully.

Determined to test the right of the District Commissioners to take away automobile drivers' permits on conviction for first-offense speeding, Nathan M. Lubar, an attorney, yesterday sought in District Supreme Court an injunction to restrain the District Commissioners from suspending his permit for 3 days.

Lubar was charged with driving 42 miles an hour and was fined $10. Thereafter, he stated, he was notified that by action of the Board of Revocatoins and Restorations of Operators' Permits his permit had been suspended and that, at the expiration of 30 days, when he applied for its restoration, he would have to take an examination on the traffic regulations.

Among other contentions raised by Lubar were the allegations that, first, two members of the Police Department, Inspectors Edward J. Kelly and B. A. Lamb, were on the board unlawfully, and that the punishment meted out to him was "cruel and unusual" and as such was pronounced unlawful by the Constitution.

Justice Oscar R. Luhring ordered the Commissioners and members of the Board to show cause by next Tuesday why they should not be enjoined from taking away Lubar's permit.

Two Hurt in Accidents.

Two men were injured yesterday in traffic accidents.

John Martin, 74, of Upper Marlboro, Md., was treated at Emergency Hospital for cuts and bruises suffered when he was knocked down at Fourth and F streets northwest. He was struck by an automobile driven, police said, by Oswald R. Hill, of 522 Second street northwest.

John C. Fitzpatrick, 50, of Chevy Chase, Md., an employe of Congressional Library, suffered a brain concussion and severe cuts when the automobile he was driving collided with another in the 2800 block North Capitol street.

Fitzpatrick was treated at Casualty Hospital. His condition was said to be undetermined. William Wardman, 35, of 6025 Tewkesbury place northwest, operator of the other car, was not held.

Seven driving permits were revoked, and 14 others were suspended for temporary periods yesterday when the cases of 21 motorists convicted of speeding were acted upon by the Revocations Board.

Those who lost their licenses were Alexander Barnes, 1104 Forty-second street northeast, 50 miles; George V. Brown, 119 Sixteenth street northeast, 55 miles; William H. Dyer, 300 Sixth street southeast, 60 miles; Helen M. Reid, 317 Tenth street northeast, 50 miles; Joseph A. Solem, Takoma Park, Md., 50 miles; Marie Soper, 527 Fifth street southeast, 55 miles; Seiton E. Williams, 220 Third street southeast, 60 miles.

Suspensions of 30 days went to Robert R. Chambers, 1027 Twelfth street northwest, 45 miles; Creston F. Crown, 3715 Veazey street northwest, 40 miles; Martin M. Cummings, 4113 Thirteenth place northeast, 48 miles; Alexander Kelly, 1624 Fifth street northwest, 40 miles; George E. Miller, Silver Hill, Md., 44 miles; Anthony J. Senes, 425 Oglethorpe street northwest, 42 miles; Marvin L. Smith, 1724 Webster street northwest, 38 miles, second offense; Warren C. Summers, 1325 Thirteenth street northwest, 46 miles.

Uncle Sam

Yankee Meat Inspector, WPA Writers Agree.

After considerable booning and even more doggling, WPA workers have determined conclusively the identity of the first "Uncle Sam." This symbolic figure, which is to the United States what John Bull is to England, has its foundation in a Yankee meat inspector of the early nineteenth century who was named Samuel Wilson, according to the Federal Writers' Project.

Of course, the D. A. R. and almost everyone else who paid the matter any attention agreed long ago that the Samuel Wilson theory was the most plausible of any that had been advanced in explanation of the lanky figure in striped trousers, tailed coat and high hat.

But the assent just given by WPA, which is backed up by evidence to be printed in "The American Guide," apparently is intended to settle the argument for good. Furthermore, workers have located a picture of Mr. Wilson in California and hope to publish it soon.

Ballou to Talk With City Heads On Leave Law

Conference Is Scheduled for Today to Avoid Misunderstanding.

Application o fthe new leave law to the school system is to be discussed at a conference today between Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of public schools, and the District Commissioners.

The conference was asked by the school head to discuss the new leave provisions as they affect and shall be applied to approximately 1,000 school employes and officers, exclusive of teachers.

Both the Police and Fire departments asked for increases in personnel to care for the extended leave provided by Congress and some of the other District departments are busy on leave schedules to fit leave-taking into their work programs.

Additional personnel will not be required for the schools because of the leave, Dr. Ballou said.

"School officers simply want to discuss with the Commisioners the provisions of the leave law in general and to make certain we have a common understanding, so that there shall be no mix-ups," Dr. Ballou said.

Some mention also is expected to be made of the five-year school building program, which was submitted recently by school officials. This now is under study by District officials, who are trying to compute its cost. School officers wanted the program embodied in a special measure sent to Congress at this session, but the difficulties into which the annual appropriation bill has fallen ended any prospects that would be done.

The building program is to be considered by a special committee after adournment of Congress and before preparation of estimates for the next fiscal year has proceeded very far, Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen said.

Garner to Lead Fishing Expedition

A group of Congressional leaders is scheduled to slip away from Washington on a quiet fishing jaunt to North Carolina this morning.

Vice President John N. Garner will head the party, which comprises Senators Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas; Nathan L. Bachman, of Tennessee; William J. Bulow, of South Dakota; F. Ryan Duffy, of Wisconsin; Edward R. Burke, of Nebraska; Fred H. Brown, of New Hampshire; Louis Murphy, of Iowa, and Representative Lindsay C. Warren, of North Carolina.

Bluefish and channel bass, now running in large numbers on the Carolina coast, will be the object of the quest. The party will return to Washington Sunday.

Spring Fiesta, With Midway, Opens at G. W.

It's only three steps from China to Japan and three more to Mexico.

And every three steps are at least three pretty girls.

Kappa Gamma's got a lot of pretty girls. So have all the rest of George Washington University's sororities who are operating booths at the school's annual spring fiesta, held to buy uniforms for the band, which hasn't any.

All the girls in booths wear dresses of girls of foreign lands, to give the place an original atmosphere. But the midway isn't all.

The fiesta opened last night, with a lot of raucuous voices and a lot of music of the band. They put a wreath of some kind of flowers on Sue Slater's head. Sue smiled sweetly. She is the queen of the fiesta. Ed Stevlingson, with a big gardenia in his coat, was crowned king.

They were crowned where the booths are, across from the campus. There, a lot of boys and girls who go to school at G. W. are sitting under tents for the next two nights while the fiesta lasts and selling hot dogs and other things just as they do at a fair.

But the midway really is the best attraction. Lights are strung up as if it was a real fair and girls are calling out "take a chance" and it would be a real carnival on.

There isn't any sawdust on the ground.

Bill in House Provides New Annuity Plan

Tolan's Measure Offers Civil Worker Choice in Collecting.

Official in Federation of Employes Opens Fire on Court Move.

A bill to permit retired civil service employes to collect their annuities in any of four ways was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Tolan (Democrat), California, as the National Federation of Federal Employes assailed another House bill as a "typical blow at the merit system."

The Tolan measure seeks to amend the 1930 retirement act and to permit any civil service employe upon retirement to elect how he shall be paid his retirement savings.

One of the methods proposed is to increase the annuity and to provide that no unexpended balance shall be returnable after the annuitant's death. Another allows a joint and survivorship annuity, while the other two are modifications of these.

Miss Gertrude M. McNally, secretary-treasurer of the National Federation of Federal Employes, issued the statement attacking a bill introduced this week by Representative Fernandez (Democrat), New Orleans. The bill seeks to provide for court stenographers in the United States District courts and to fix their duties and compensations.

She pointed out that the bill would permit the employment of stenographers without regard to the civil service act, but would extend to them the leave and retirement benefits applicable to civil service employes.

"This blow is typical of unnumbered attacks upon the Federal merit system during recent years," she said.

"Court stenography is specialized work of the highest importance. There is no possible excuse for excluding such positions from the civil service system and tossing them to the spoilsmen for patronage distribution.

"This provision is one of the seemingly endless succession of evasions and attempted evasions of the civil service laws and regulations during the past three years. The result has been the most complete breakdown of the Federal merit system in generations."

Dean Woods Is Honored By Northwestern Unit

An award of merit, bestowed by the Northwestern University Alumni Association, was presented to Dr. George B. Woods, dean of the liberal arts college at American University, Wednesday night.

The honor was conferred "in recognition of worthy achievement which has reflected credit upon Northwestern University and each of her alumni."

Marberry "Goat" as Nats Lose 13-12 Decision to White Sox

Winning Run Goes Over On Error

Lewis Hits Home Run in Wild and Erratic Pitchers' Battle.

By Shirley Povich.
Sports Editor of The Post.

Comiskey Park, Chicago, Ill., May 14.—The daffiest of all baseball games was climaxed in the ninth today by the daffiest play of 'em all—an unbelievable throw to third base by Fred Marberry that established the White Sox as the winners over the Nats by the daffy score of 13 to 12.

Marberry's throw was perfect except for one phase of the proceedings. There was no third basemen on third base to take the throw, an item that Marberry completely overlooked when in his haste he picked up Zeke Bonura's bunt and attempted a force play at third.

Thus as the ball sailed among the customers in the left field boxes, Haas scored from third base with the winning run that the White Sox made in that ninth without the aid of any of the 35 hits that the two teams had made up to that point.

Marberry, the fifth Washington pitcher to participate in the balmy proceedings, put the winning run on base when he walked Haas with none out and then began to pitch the game away in earnest when he hit Dixie Walker to put men on first and second. It was at this point that Bonura bunted and Marberry pitched the game into the box seats.

Sox Get 8 Runs in First.

It had been a screwy affair from the outset. The White Sox collected eight runs in the first inning, and by the end of the third they had a 10-1 lead. By the fifth inning, the Nats had not only the tying but the winning runs on base. In the sixth they did tie it at 10-10, and in the eighth they even went to the front, 11-10.

But their lead lasted only about eight minutes. Pete Appleton pitched a single to Appling to start the eighth and then he pitched a double to Piet that put Appling on third. At this point Jimmy Dykes singled to left scoring Appling with the tying run and Piet, too, attempted to score on the play.

Miles' throw to the plate was perfect and Cliff Bolton was waiting for Piet with the ball. The White Sox second-baseman hit Bolton amidships, catapulted him into the air, caused him to drop the ball, and scored with the run that put the White Sox ahead, 12-11.

Bolton Forced to Leave.

So severely shaken up was Bolton that he was forced to leave the game, supported by teammates who walked him to the dressing room. With Dykes on second Marberry came in to check the scoring.

Their efforts in overcoming that 10-1 lead of the White Sox now seemingly wasted, the Nats entered the ninth needing a run to tie the score. Buddy Lewis got it for 'em right away when he banged his first major league home run far

11 to 13 Colts To Start in Preakness

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Pimlico Race Track, May 14.—Trying to guess the Preakness field and endeavoring to select the winner of the forty-sixth running of the Maryland classic is the great indoor sport in the press box here. Until shortly before noon tomorrow, when the official overnight entries will be announced, your guess on the starters is as good as those of the Nation's leading turf experts, including two scribes from California.

Today, between tearing up losing tickets, the writers were hustling hither and yon, interviewing this owner and that trainer regarding the chances of this horse or that facing the barrier. From all accounts, a field of between 11 and 13 will ankle up to Starter Milton's gate.

The line-up of jockeys also came in for much concern among the boys who make a living writing about horses and then lose it playing them. Bold Venture's pilot came in for attention. The scribes have had Sonny Workman, Ira Hanford, Johnny Gilbert, Petey Sarron and Kate Smith as likely to get the assignment. Georgie Woolf, who rode Azucar to victory in the 1935 Santa Anita Handicap, was not given a tumble, but he will have the job. He was engaged by Trainer Max Hirsch today.

Hanford Stays Down.

Hirsch turned to Woolf when a last-minute attempt to have Ira Hanford reinstated for the one race was disapproved by the Maryland Jockey Club. However, the experts agree that Bold Venture should run as kindly for Woolf as he did for Hanford.

With the Preakness less than 48 hours away, the field shapes up this wise: M. L. Schwartz's Bold Venture, Jockey G. Woolf; W. M. Jeffords' Jean Bart, Jockey Harry Richards; H. P. Headley's Hollyrood, Jockey L. Balaski; Bomar Stable's Grand Slam, Jockey J. Bryson; Mrs. Silas B. Mason's He Did, Jockey C. Kurtsinger; E. R. Bradley's Bow and Arrow, Jockey J. Renick; Belair Stud's Granville, Jockey J. Stout; Wheatley Stable's Snark, Jockey E. Arcaro and Teufel, Jockey E. Litzenberger; Greentree Stable's Memory Book, Jockey S. Coucci; Mrs. M. Dupont Somerville's Transporter, Jockey M. Peters.

Doubtful Starters.

The doubtful starter list includes W. M. Jeffords' 'Giant Killer, no boy; W. W. Vaughan's Knight Warrior, Jockey C. Hanford; Mrs. Janon Fisher's Swashbuckler, no boy.

Trainer Preston Burch said today that Giant Killer may be held out of the race because he has been unable to secure the services of a boy suitable to him. Mrs. Fisher didn't know who would ride Swashbuckler if she starts the colt. If the colt goes to the post he will be the only Maryland bred in the field.

Conquer, Delphinium and Challephen were definitely removed from Preakness consideration today. The Brookmeade stable decided to hold Delphinium in New York for the Withers, while Conquer and Challephen were not considered good enough by their handlers.

Track officials are expecting the crowd on Saturday to set a record for the Preakness and a betting handle of between a million and a million and a half is being freely predicted. Last year, $884,219 was wagered on the day, and $179,650 on the big race. There will not be all-day betting on the Preakness. However, there will be a period of between 45 minutes and an hour before the feature gets under way for betting purposes. With the "tote" in action, bets will be taken until the field "breaks."

Post time for the first race Saturday will be 2 o'clock, Eastern standard time.

Quinter, Hufty, Nolan, Stevinson Survivors

By Dave Herman.

A 21-year-old youngster, Ralph Quinter, of the host club, and three seasoned campaigners, Miller B. Stevinson, of Columbia; Page Hufty, of Chevy Chase, and M. Parker Nolan, of Congressional, waded through stiff opposition yesterday to reach the semifinals of the Chevy Chase Invitation golf tournament.

This lad, Quinter, who was forced to make a miraculous comeback to win a qualifying place in the play-off with five others Wednesday, established himself as a definite threat for the historic crown by rubbing out Volney Burnett, Indian Spring champion, 3 and 2, in the morning, and removing Max Taylor, of Beaver Dam, 5 and 4 in the afternoon.

Playing steady, but none too spectacular golf, Quinter went about his job of winning his first and second round matches in workman-like fashion, and this morning finds himself arrayed against a club comrade, Hufty.

Bean Is Bounced.

Former North and South champion, Hufty bounced out Eddie Bean, of Beaver Dam, 4 and 3, and 17-year-old Bobby Brownell by the same count.

In the other semifinals battle the husky, mustached Nolan, who has been on the brink of many big championships, but has never been a winner, will engage a one-time Chevy Chase titleholder, Stevinson.

Nolan provided one of the big upsets in the morning round by defeating Harry Pitt, of Manor, medalist and three-time champion, 1 up, in a stirring battle that saw the last five holes halved.

In the nightcap duel with 17-year-old Charlie Pettyjohn, Georgetown University freshman, Nolan maintained the even tenor of his play to win, 2 and 1, snuffing out the young collegian with a sensational birdie 3 on the seventeenth green.

Stevinson's victims were Maj. Dick Sutherland, Army and Navy seige gun, who bowed by 5 and 4, and Johnny Brawner, tough customer from the host club, 3 and 2.

Nolan Rallies to Win.

Nolan's conquest of Pitt was achieved only after some clever rallying on the part of the big Congressional walloper. Two down, Nolan captured the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth with even par golf to reach the fourteenth, one up. Then the hole-for-hole struggle followed, with halves registered for the remaining five holes.

Pettyjohn, playing in his first big District tournament, proved himself to be quite a short game artist and putter against Nolan. He reached only two greens of the first nine in regulation figures, but was stiff with his niblick pitches and dead with his putts. At the turn it was all even.

The collegian took the tenth with a birdie deuce; Nolan the eleventh; Pettyjohn the twelfth. Nolan went one up by carving out pars on the next two holes. On the fifteenth Pettyjohn played the greatest shot of the day. He was over in the chick weed in two, and Nolan was on the green nicely in two. The lanky youngster holed out for a birdie three from 50 feet to square the match. He lost the sixteenth by knocking his second into a ditch. Nolan sank a 10-footer for his birdie three on the seventeenth to end the battle after Pettyjohn's second hit a tree.

Brownell in Form.

Nolan, out in 38, played the next eight holes in even par, needing par in for a 73.

Little Bobby Brownell shot the most inspired golf of the day when he eliminated Russ Hollebaugh, of Kenwood, 3 and 2, in the morning. Starting 4—4—3—2—3—4, Brownell reached the turn in 33, five up on Hollebaugh. He needed two pars

Grove's 5-Hit Effort Beats Tigers, 3-1

Manush Hits 2 Doubles; Boston Wins in 4th With 2 Tallies.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, May 14.—Robert Moses Grove, left-handed ace of the Boston pitching staff, tamed the Detroit Tigers with five hits for the second time this season today as the Red Sox won, 3 to 1, and took the series, two games to one.

Elden Auker, Detroit "submarine ball" hurler, who opposed Grove at Boston recently when the Tigers were shut out, again was the victim. He held the costly Sox sluggers to seven hits in the eight innings he worked, but two of them were damaging two-base drives against the rightfield screen by Heinie Manush.

Manush's first double in the first inning, scored Cramer, who had walked and stolen second. His second opened the fourth inning, and he came home on Jimmie Foxx's single.

Judges Named For Bike Race Tomorrow

William McAinish and E. T. Armington will act as judges of the bicycle races in connection with the joint bike meet and fashion show to be held tomorrow afternoon at the Potomac Park Polo Oval, it was announced yesterday.

Milton Sencindiver, Washington representative of the Amateur Bicycle League of America, has consented to be referee, while the jobs of starter and timer will be filled by Pat Throop and W. P. Dutrow, respectively.

Through the efforts of Sencindiver, Cycle Trades of America has awarded three medals to be presented as second, third and fourth prizes in the special 3-mile event to be staged by local stars including Ed Beiber, Willie McDougall, Anthony Horner, Willie Cauffman, Whilden Heinard, Bob Kennon and others.

Giants Win 4th, As Cubs Take 5th Loss

Hubbell Pitches 5-Hit Ball to Down Chicago by 5-to-0 Score.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 14.—The New York Giants notched their fourth straight victory and handed the Chicago Cubs their fifth straight defeat today as Carl Hubbell pitched five-hit ball to give the Terrymen a 5-0 triumph.

It was the first shutout of the season for the Giants and it was the third victory, against three defeats, for the ace of the Giants' pitching staff. Among other things, Hubbell spiked Frank Demaree's hitting streak which had carried through 16 straight games.

For the fifth time in six starts, Lon Warneke failed to finish and he was charged with the loss of the game. He allowed only six hits, but he was wild, the passes figuring in the scoring in two innings.

The Giants scored one run in the fourth inning, another in the sixth and then put the game in the bag with a three-run rally in the seventh. Jackson started off the seventh frame by beating out a bunt, and Moore was passed. Jackson finally scored when Whitehead's grounder went through English. Terry singled to score Moore, and Ott doubled to send home Whitehead.

Henshaw went in for Warneke in the eighth inning.

A crowd of only 6,566 was on hand for the game that was played in weather cold and windy for mid-May.

Walter Johnson, Jr., Will Make Debut With Des Moines

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 14.—Walter Johnson, jr., 20, son of the famous speedball king, will make his debut as a pitcher in organized baseball here tomorrow night.

Manager Spencer Abbott, of the Des Moines Western League Club, said young Johnson would take the mound against Waterloo, in the series opener. Abbott, a personal friend of the "Big Train," today said that Walter, jr., had "shown plenty of stuff," in practice and predicted that he would be a winning pitcher.

The young right-hander had worked out with Cleveland and Philadelphia in the American League during the past two or three years, but had never signed a contract until his father sent him to Des Moines.

Terrapins Rout Cadets; Win By 19-6

College Park, Md., May 14.—Slamming out 17 hits for a total of 29 bases, the University of Maryland nine walloped Virginia Military Institute, 19 to 6, here this afternoon. It was the Old Liners' second win this season over the Cadets and their seventh in a row.

Maryland pushed over five runs in the first inning to overcome a one-run lead and thereafter was never headed. Three runs each were scored in the second, fourth and seventh innings, with another five-run splurge coming in the eighth. V. M. I. used three hurlers, but none were effective.

BoldVentureLucky In Training Mishap

By a Staff Correspondent.

Pimlico Race Track, May 14.—Luck that brought M. L. Schwartz's Bold Venture victory in the Kentucky Derby served him in good stead just before he was shipped here. The colt was given a fine workout at Belmont Park, with Ira Hanford up. As the pair entered the stretch, a stirrup broke and Hanford tumbled to the track. The riderless Bold Venture continued to gallop through the straightaway. When he reached the finish line he eased up, went through the gap leading to his stable and stopped in front of his stall.

Hoya Hurler Strikes Out 11 Batters

Pette Allows 7 Hits but Is Erratic; Visitors Lose Early Lead.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Not unaware of the presence of a half-dozen big league scouts in the stands, including the venerable Clark Griffith and Joe Engel, chief of his ivory scouting department, Georgetown's baseball team turned in another grade A performance yesterday at the Hilltop, where it humbled highly touted Joe Pette and his Washington and Lee teammates, 6 to 2.

Chief humbler was little Nicholas Nicketakis, Georgetown's 210-pound southpaw, who limited the Generals to five hits and scattered them over the nine innings like errant buckshot. Nicketakis started like a house afire, striking out the first six men to face him, and was burning brightly at the end—burning 'em by the W. and L. batters. Nick fanned 11 all told, some of whom didn't even have to be told, for they went down swinging; walked three and made a pretty solid impression on the scouts.

But it would be an injustice to Pette to say that he didn't do well, or it might be an injustice to leave it unsaid. Several of Georgetown's seven bingles were "poop" hits—a very discouraging brand of batting from a defensive viewpoint. But there was nothing fluky about Tommy Keating's double in the big fourth inning that cleared the sacks and clinched the decision in one full sweep.

The fourth was Pette's only bad inning, but it was bad enough to spoil the entire afternoon. A wild pitch, sandwiched in between a walk and some hits helped lose the ball game. Pette started Georgetown on its rally by hitting "Smitty" Nau and pitching a two-bagger to Harry Bassin. Nau scored when Pette got off a wild pitch, and Bassin followed him home when the pitcher committed a balk. That little episode tied the score at 2-all, but the worst was yet to come.

I.C.C. Downs FCC, 2-0, In a Duel of Pitchers

Interstate Commerce Commission took a 2-0 decision from Federal Communications yesterday in a Federal Double-A League game on diamond No. 11, as Railey bested Ernie Boggs in a pitching duel. A double by Rosenbaum and a triple by Joe DiNenna brought Interstate's first run in the fourth. Singles by Bowman and Eddy and an error by Miller and an infield out in the seventh accounted for the other run.

Nats Lose Rough Game to Chicago

When both Buddy Myer and Johnny Stone walked, it appeared that the Nats finally were on their way to victory. But Manager Dykes supplanted Russell Evans in the box with Vernon Kennedy and the Nats subsided meekly. Travis advanced Myer and Stone along with a sacrifice, but Tony Piet made a sensational catch of Carl Reynolds' looper behind second for the second out. Joe Kuhel was purposely passed to fill the bases and bring Walter Millies at bat.

Millies in the space of 30 seconds failed at heroism and ended up as something of a goat. He smashed a terrific line drive into left field and pulled up at third base only to learn that the ball was foul by inches. Eventually, he watched a third strike cross his middle to end the Nats' rally with the score still tied.

Then Marberry went in to pitch to Sox in that ninth. With third base unpopulated by an infielder when Bonura, bunted, Marberry pitched with the proper speed but to the wrong pew and the game was over.

National Savings Wins Over Metropolitan, 7-3

The sensational pitching and hitting of swarthy Joe Garvey of National Savings & Trust Co. thrust National Metropolitan out of the Bankers League lead yesterday with a 7-3 defeat. The former St. Mary's Celtic moundsman set the leaders back with two hits and batted in the five runs which put National Savings on top of the league standings.

Tech, Roosevelt Meet Today in Series Tilt

By John R. Vosburgh.

Roosevelt High faces a highly technical problem today—Technical High School's fast-traveling and favored ball team—in Chapter No. 7 of an interhigh series which is getting more complicated with every box score. Although it will be Tech's home game, Roosevelt stadium will be the scene of action, due to McKinley's notorious lack of playing facilities.

The Maroon is planning to make the Roosevelt stadium no more than a brief stopover on its jaunt to the championship. The Techmen have given themselves a well-deserved vote of confidence since their victory over Eastern's interhigh champions and will be content with nothing less than the championship.

While Coach Ed Foxley, of Tech, is planning to use his new pitching discovery, First Baseman Wesley Snow, Coach Herman Littman, of Roosevelt, has three or four able tossers all set to throw into action, including Stewart Gessford, who has twirled a couple of low-hit performances, and Sherrad Robertson, the able young brother-in-law of Joe Cronin and nephew of Clark Griffith. Both are right-handers. Robertson's chief claim to fame being his one-hit victory over Georgetown Prep's powerful team. Left-handed Francis Coakley displayed enough stuff to make him a third pitching possibility today. Harold Bauer, another southpaw, is another possible choice.

Coffey Sales Nine Ties Old Milwaukee, 5-5

A double by Scott and a single by Mathias in the last inning gave Coffey Sales a 5-5 tie with Old Milwaukee Beer yesterday in a thrill-packed Industrial League game of The Washington Post Association. A big crowd watched the game on the Ellipse, where Coffey Sales twice came from behind to tie the count.

Lefty McIntyre, Coffey Sales pitcher, fanned nine men, although he was nicked for a dozen hits. Reggie Brown, who allowed the Coffey club but eight hits, led the batting with three for four.

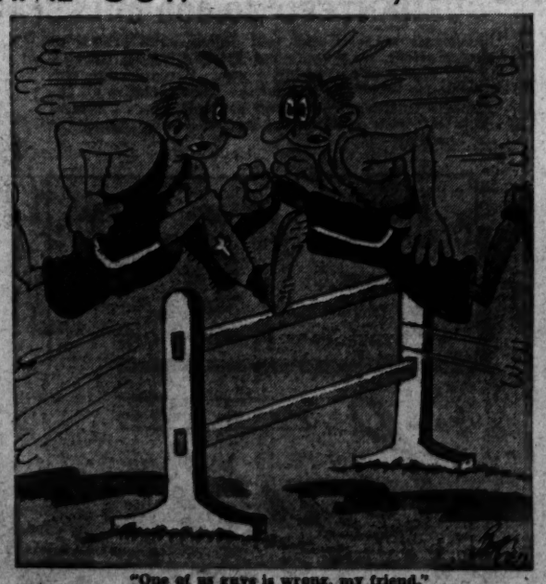
'Y' Soft Ball Team Defeats Gasmen, 4-3

The Washington Y. M. C. A. scored two runs in the last inning to nose out the Washington Gas Co., 4 to 3, in a Playground Softball League game yesterday on the Georgetown grounds. Pitcher Pop DeGast hit a home run for the winners.

TIME OUT!

By Chet Smith



"One of us guys is wrong, my friend."

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich.

En Route to St. Louis, May 14.

One lone ball player occupied the Washington club's special car as the Nats' train sped out of Chicago toward St. Louis this evening. Hand on chin, he gazed vacantly through the window at the passing scenery. In the diners toward the rear, his teammates were wielding eating utensils furiously in an attempt to satisfy the inner man. But the lone player had no thought of food. The man's solitude was notable.

POVICH.

When a ball player misses the dinner call, he is either deaf or sick. In the spring a young man's fancy may lightly turn to thoughts of love, but if he's a ball player and the last out has been made, his thoughts turn instantly to food. The meals missed by the Nation's ball players, if laid end to end and fed to a new-born chick, would make our feathered friend waste away from undernourishment.

So, when Fred Marberry paid no heed to the dinner hour this evening and chose to slump in his seat and give himself up to his thoughts, the man was, indeed, biting the dog as far as this reporter was concerned. Something was certainly amiss, so this department approached Marberry and attempted to tactfully inquire why no dinner.

"Why no dinner?" I asked the big pitcher.

Marberry looked up. "I ain't a-feeling like it," drawled the big, soft-spoken Texan. "You don't havta ask why."

The man was, indeed, low in spirits. That wild heave he had made an hour before in the ninth inning when he threw the ball game away for the Nats in the White Sox' park was, to him, unforgettable. But even knee-deep in his brooding, he shrunk from an alibi. Indeed, he flayed himself.

The man who for six years was a pitching hero with the Nats, when his fast ball was the scourge of the league and his winning percentage a thing to marvel at, is lightly dismissing his former glory. He realizes now only that Bucky Harris brought him back to baseball after he had been dismissed as a failure by the Giants and he is consumed with the ambition to please Harris.

There is, in fact, some slight suspicion that young Buddy Lewis was a contributig factor in Marberry's wild throw that cost the Nats the ball game in that ninth inning today. An older, more experienced third baseman might have scampered back to the bag if he had noted that Marberry was quickly pouncing on Bonura's bunt, but Marberry insisted on taking the full rap for the play.

Not a word passed between Bucky Harris, the man who gave Marberry his chance, and the big pitcher, after the Nats walked from the field a beaten ball club today. Harris simply looked at the big Texan and worked up a weak smile. Marberry's return glance was at once apologetic and grateful. Both of 'em had spoken volumes without uttering a syllable.

East Potomac Tourney Won By Oliveri

Andy Oliveri, stubby 18-year-old Roosevelt High golfer, won his first big golf championship yesterday when he defeated Barney Welsh (not the tennis player), 4 and 3, in the finals of the East Potomac spring tournament.

Welsh, conqueror Wednesday of the cdds-on-favorite, Claude Rippy, was completely outclassed by the chubby little junior municipal champion, who shot the first nine in 34, even par, to take a commanding 6-up lead on his veteran adversary.

The match virtually in the bag, Oliveri started coasting on the second nine, and dropped the eleventh, won the twelfth, lost the thirteenth and fourteenth and halved the fifteenth, where the match ended.

'C' Club's Meet Draws Good Material

As keen a Central "C" Club meet as ever graced the 18-year-old classic is all set to explode in Central Stadium tomorrow when 258 athletes representing 23 schools will mobilize in the general direction of the championship now held by Tech High.

No longer the powerful squad which Coach Hap Hardell has unleashed for the past two years, the Maroon enters the meet with only a fighting chance of retaining its title. Newport News (Va.) High, the 1935 runner-up, Baltimore City College and Episcopal High of Alexandria, loom ominously in the path of the champions.

The Baltimore school already holds one victory over the Washington school, having beaten out the Techmen by two points last week in the Tome Institute meet at Fort Deposit, Md. It was City College's

Daily Double Of $598 Is New High

Veritas, Precious King Are the Winning Combination.

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

Pimlico Race Track, Baltimore, Md., May 14.—Steeplechasing had its fling in the featured position on a program witnessed by 10,000 fans here today. The competition was in The Billy Barton, named for the old campaigner, and Sir Gareth, a gelded son of Sir Galahad III, carried off the honors and the silver plate that went therewith.

Sir Gareth finished four lengths in advance of Soldiers Fate, which, in turn, had a length advantage over Stir. The Stag II, the heavily played favorite and the property of Richard K. Mellon, fell heavily at the eighth fence at a time when it appeared he would win easily.

Noel Laing did a good job of riding on the winner and registered his third victory in the event. The time of 6 minutes 7 and 3/5 seconds was the second best in the history of the event, which was contested over a fast course. It was a gruelling test of 3 miles and over 19 jumps and brought two mishaps. In addition to The Stag II's tumble, Star Trap lost his rider, S. H. Hurst, at the fifth fence.

Laing rode a cagey race on Sir Gareth, which is owned by Mrs. V. Z. Reed, jr., of Pinehurst, N. C. He did not allow his charge to do any real running until the last quarter of a mile. When turned loose, Sir Gareth bounded to the front and Laing was taking in a good grip on the final flat run.

It was the second victory for Mrs. Reed. Her gelding Our Friend was the winner in 1934. Mrs. T. H. Sommerville, jr., whose horses have won in four of the last five races, did not have an entry.

The horse Billy Barton, in whose honor the test was named, led the field to the post and appeared to be in excellent condition despite his 14 years.

Sir Gareth was half of the Gambrill-Reed entry and paid a $9.70 mutuel.

The day brought a new high for the meeting in daily doubles when a pay-off of $598.50 was posted on the popular twin wager.

A Hagerstown handicap provided the action in the day's opener, a sprint, and the purse went to Veritas without a struggle. Vitox was second and Minna was third in the field of a dozen. Jockey Hernandez rode the winner and the mutuel was $10.

Ronfalon, with Joe Wagner up, accounted for the second race, a maiden affair. All the money horses came from the rear of the field. Peppery and The Swagman were second and third. Peppery and Au Folly were badly messed up at the break, when Jockey C. Hanford lost his stirrup on Doctor's Gift and the horse swerved at the break. Ronfalon was well played at an $8.40 mutuel.

Precious King, at a $58.10 mutuel, came from last to win the third race, a 6-furlong sprint. Handled by Joe Renick, the King Bruce gelding came through between horses in midstretch to take command with a rush. Letter Box was a fast closing second and the camera called Dalmatia third ahead of Nandi, the tiring favorite.

The Bond family, of Baltimore, won the fifth race, Abbot's Last, an $18.10 shot, winning. First Pigeon, another long one, and Mister Gander, the favorite, were second and third. Abbot's Last, with the Willie Horn up, took the lead on the back stretch and held sway thereafter.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VERITAS, $10.00, $4.50, $3.60; VITOX, $4.60, $3.70; MINNA, $6.40.

VERITAS, suited by the footing and going in her best form, moved into a clear lead when leaving the backstretch, came into the better footing when straightened into the stretch and drew out steadily. VITOX, prominent all during the running, finished gamely, but could not trouble the winner. MINNA, forced to race wide from the beginning, came with a strong bid in the closing test. BLAKEEN was hurried into a contending position and finished wide. GOLDEN VEIN began tiring after three furlongs. AT DUSK was outrun. HUPPY could not menace seriously. TOWEE began slowly and was never a factor. SYNDIC lacked speed. MR. FRIAR, well up early, stopped badly after three-eighths.

SECOND RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-old maidens and upward. Start fair. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:50. Off at 2:55½. Winner, W. W. Vaughn's b. g. (3), by Gonfalon—Rena. Trained by G. Kelley. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:50 2-5, 1:16 3-5, 1:43, 1:50.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RONFALON, $8.40, $4.60, $3.60; PEPPERY, $7.30, $5.10; THE SWAGMAN, $3.90.

RONFALON, shuffled back going to the first turn and taken wide into the backstretch, moved to the leaders readily when in full stride, took command at the stretch turn and was severely challenged to withstand the PEPPERY. Latter fell far back after breaking slowly, bettered his position on the outside and closed gamely in the final issue. THE SWAGMAN, in the thick of contention early, was rushed up fast to gain a slight lead at the first bend, but was used up and weakened in the last quarter mile. DOCTOR'S GIFT was away well after Hanford lost the use of his stirrup irons, worked his way up gradually, but could not engage the leaders. DEEP RUN was used up racing SIT OUT into defeat and weakened badly. OLIVIA F. had no excuse. FEZ was done after six furlongs.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:22. Off at 3:26½. Winner, Mrs. O. M. Eberspacher's br. g. (5), by King Bruce—Precious One. Trained by J. Pearson. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:49 2-5, 1:15 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PRECIOUS KING, $58.10, $28.70, $11.40; LETTER BOX, $10.20, $5.20; DALMATIA, $6.60.

PRECIOUS KING, a trailer in the early running and very slow to settle in his stride, moved through a wide opening on the inside entering the homestretch, wore the leaders down inside the final furlong and came out rapidly. LETTER BOX worked her way up on the outside, swerved and interfered with DALMATIA midway of the homestretch and closed gamely. DALMATIA, hustled hard while holding a contending position, was blocked when LETTER BOX crossed in front of her during the stretch drive and she weakened right at end. Decamillis made a claim of foul against LETTER BOX, which was not allowed. NADI displayed good speed while setting the pace, came into the better footing, but tired. SCOTTY DON raced well throughout. JUSTA FLIGHT tired after three-eighths. SILVER CLOUD, CHILIAD lacked racing room and met with interference nearing the home stretch.

FOURTH RACE—Three miles. Purse, $1,000. The Billy Barton Steeplechase; for hunters; allowances. Start good and fast. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:56. Off at once. Winner, Mrs. V. Z. Reed, jr.'s br. g. (6), by Sir Gallahad III—Sandy Land. Trained by N. Laing. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 6:07 3-5 (19 jumps).

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SIR GARETH (entry), $9.70, $3.30, $3.00; SOLDIERS FATE (entry), $2.70, $2.40; STIR, $3.00.

SIR GARETH, permitted to stay off the pace for the first mile and one-half, moved up willingly going to the fifteenth fence, drew on even terms with SOLDIERS FATE when the last came, then came away swiftly on the flat approaching the finish. SOLDIERS FATE, badly rated while in close pursuit of GREATOREX almost passed rider at several of his fences, made a bad landing at the eighteenth fence, came again to gain the lead at the last jump, but had too much taken out of him and he tired. STIR dropped back to last place at the tenth obstacle, rallied to severe pressure and passed tiring horses. WELL PLAYED went prominently all the way and showed good performance. GREATOREX fenced nicely, met strong opposition until clearing the next to last fence, but faltered in the last five-sixteenths. SAUGHTON BOY weakened early. THE STAG II fell at the next to last fence when abreast of GREATOREX. STAR TRAP lost his rider at the fifth jump.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:30. Off at 4:31½. Winner, Mrs. M. N. Bond's br. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ABBOT'S LAST, $18.10, $7.40, $4.00; FIRST PIGEON, $10.90, $5.60; MISTER GANDER, $3.30.

ABBOT'S LAST assumed command midway of the backstretch, stalled off stiff contention from FIRST PIGEON and, holding on gamely under punishment, outstayed the latter in a hard drive. FIRST PIGEON, going forwardly in the early stages, made repeated efforts in the last five-sixteenths, but faltered in the final furlong. MISTER GANDER worked his way up on the outside after being outrun for seven furlongs and came determinedly in the final issue. SAND CLOUD went into contention reaching the homestretch, came between horses, but hung in the closing furlong. TIEMPO began tiring after seven furlongs. DONA DULCIN saved ground all the way, but was not good enough. PALASA had no excuses.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:02. Off at 5:08½. Winner, J. B. Belk's ch. f. (4), by Wise Counsellor—Arango. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:48, 1:14.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WISE SISTER, $11.40, $4.80, $3.40; SUNNED, $5.80, $3.20; BACHELOR DINNER, $2.80.

WISE SISTER, unable to keep pace with the leaders in the first half mile, swung to the outside when improving her position, closed stoutly when straightened into the homestretch and came out smartly after moving to the front in the last sixteenth. SUNNED followed closest to the pacemaker from the beginning, rallied nicely and fought it out gamely nearing the end. BACHELOR DINNER challenged strongly when reaching the homestretch, but hung during the closing furlong. CARVOLA lacked speed in the early running. She closed stoutly in the late stages. PRINCE TURLEY sprinted into a clear lead in the first half mile, saved ground, but stopped when caught. LIGHT broke very slow and was unable to menace. REDNECK was always far back.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $900; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good for all but Happy Easter. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:35. Off at 5:35½. Winner, Mrs. D. J. Murphy's b. f. (4), by Mars—Good as Gold. Trained by D. J. Murphy. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GOODY GOODY, $11.10, $4.30, $2.90; CANDLE FLY, $3.80, $2.90; MAD EAGLE, $3.60.

GOODY GOODY, steadied in close attendance of MAD EAGLE until reaching the last curve, went to the front under strong urging, was kept under pressure thereafter and drew out during the stretch drive. CANDLE FLY, slow to get going, swung to the outside when making her run and finished gamely. MAD EAGLE was rated on the front while racing in the best footing, but was not good enough when challenged. GOLDEN PLAY could not reach a forward position at any stage. ITALIAN HARRY was held safe. FOGGY DAWN went wide. HAPPY EASTER stood fat footed when the start came, then raced in the deeper footing when rushed to his field. FAIR BILLY was never dangerous.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 6:00. Off at 6:03½. Winner, Mrs. J. M. Black's b. m. LONE MISS	(Horn)	105	5	7	7	6h	8	7	7	94.40

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FERVID, $8.60, $3.90, $3.30; REPEAL, $4.30, $3.10; FILE AWAY, $3.60.

FERVID, forced to be taken up going to the first turn, followed FILE AWAY closely until reaching the homestretch, assumed command in the last furlong and outstayed REPEAL. Latter, kept within striking distance of the leaders, came courageously when put to a hard drive. FILE AWAY assumed command when straightened into the backstretch, shook off RIVER ROSE, but failed to stay when the real test came. MAD FRUMP raced on the outside until reaching the homestretch, then finished gamely on the inside while making up some ground. RIVER ROSE was overtaken early and fell back steadily. CANPRA was held safe. LONE MISS pulled up very lame.

Out Fishin' . . . . .

By Jack Hawley.

An open letter to Virginia and southern Maryland fishing captains:

Within the next 10 days many parties of fishermen from Washington and elsewhere will be using your boats and services. They will pay full rates and will have the right to expect full value for what they pay.

They have not always received this. There have been complaints that boat captains have failed to keep appointments; that often they have not had enough bait; that the bait has not been fresh; that the engines in the boats were not in good condition and broke down; that the captains sometimes failed to carry enough gasoline; that one captain would deliberately troll through the chum line of another party.

All these troubles should be remedied in advance of the fishing season. Fishing parties pay you a good many thousands of dollars every year. They will certainly be inclined to go elsewhere unless they can count on receiving the service for which they pay.

The purpose of this letter is not criticism, but to suggest a way of obviating future complaints.

First I would suggest that at Mesick, Reedville and Point Lookout, the three principle ports for bluefish parties, a kind of headquarters office be established. This could be a general store. It would be merely a place to which prospective customers could telephone, or write to engage boats and to get information on fishing conditions, instead of telephoning or writing to the individual captains, some of whom are often hard to reach.

Someone should be at headquarters at all times, and this person would have a complete list of the boat captains at that port. If anyone should ask for a certain captain and his boat, they would be assigned, unless already engaged. If no preferences should be expressed, the captains would be assigned in rotation so that all would have an equal chance.

Each captain would be notified of his engagement and he would not be permitted to engage himself to anyone else for that day. Should the party engaging him fail to show up, he would be sent a bill in full, unless he gave notice allowing the captain ample time to make another engagement, or unless the weather should prove so stormy that the party could not have gone out anyway.

On the other hand, every captain would be required to give good service. He would be required to keep his boat clean, to have enough gasoline, an abundance of fresh bat (especially chum), his engine in the best of condition, a full complement of life preservers. He would be expected to be ready to leave when his party arrived, and to remain on the fishing grounds the full time for which he was engaged.

Any captain failing to meet these requirements would be suspended by the association, and his name taken from the headquarters list. For flagrant violation, a fine should be assessed and payment required before the captain's name would be put back on the list. All this is merely a matter of business. Fishing parties now know what they are going to pay, but they don't always know what kind of service they will get. They hope for the best. Sometimes they don't get it.

The boat captains, however, expect the fishing parties to pay in full. They get their money in cash. No 30 days on the books. It is only fair, therefore, that the fishing parties should have definite assurance that they are going to receive fair treatment. Without a doubt the boat captains in Virginia and Maryland waters are square and honest men.

The complaints that have been made against them have been based not so much on deliberate bad faith, as on things that resulted from carelessness and negligence. But even so, fishing parties, while glad to pay full value for good service, are not inclined to pay for either carelessness or negligence, particularly when these things are likely to spoil a whole day's trip.

To carry out the suggestions above, or others that would bring about the desired ends, would be tremendously helpful, both to parties that go fishing and to the captains who take them. There would be more and more fishing, and every man coming back to town would be a booster for the boat captains, and this would increase the captains' business and income.

"Out Fishin'" is anxious to do all it can to develop and increase sport fishing in all waters, regardless of location, and anything it can do to make the relations between fishermen and boat captains more cordial and profitable it will welcome the opportunity to do.

This writer is collaborating with James Taylor Robertson, of the Richmond-Times Dispatch in securing co-operation in Chesapeake Bay and dall waters south to make fishing a sport that can be recognized as profitable to both anglers and boatmen alike.

Barron Grabs a Beauty

Bethesda Drubs Devitt Prep, 19-7

Victors Bat Around Twice, Score 13 Runs in First.

Batting around twice in the first inning before the side was retired, Bethesda-Chevy Chase High scored 13 runs, more than enough to insure its victory over Devitt Prep yesterday on the Garret Park diamond. The final score was 19 to 7 in a seven-inning contest.

Woody Putnam hit safely four times to lead the winning batters, while Morrell, Day and Schneider hit safely three times to share in the 16-hit attack. Fuller went the route for the winners, fanning 7. Askins hit a homer for Devitt in the sixth with a man on base. Putnam's pair of triples were the longest hits for the Lelanders.

Hyattsville, Mt. Rainier To Play Crucial Game

With Hyattsville and Mount Rainier High nines in a deadlock for the Prince Georges County title, their game today at 3 o'clock on the Hyattsville field will be watched with unusual interest.

Realizing the importance of the battle, which will practically decide the county title although there are a few games remaining on the schedule, both coaches will send their ace pitchers to the mound in an effort to turn in a victory.

Belgium's Davis Cup Team Leading Norway

Oslo, Norway, May 14 (U.P.).—Belgium smashed into the lead in its second-round European zone Davis Cup eliminations today against Norway when its doubles team of Andrew Lacroix and Leopold Deborman defeated Johan Haanes and Fritz Jenssen, 6—4, 6—2, 7—9, 6—3. The series ends tomorrow.

Crow Cooking Lost Culinary Art; But New Recipes Found

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, May 14.—Take it from the newspapers, when Dr. T. W. Stallings, former Oklahoma public health officer, recently proved that crows are delicious to eat by trying them out on an unsuspecting delegation of "gentlemen of the press," he started something.

National press associations have heralded the news. Today hunting of the overabundant and pesky Jim Crow is assuming the proportions of a Nation-wide boom.

But promoters of crow dinners in many localities have been stymied. The Oklahoma medico's recipe has been a much-mooted question and crow cooking, in its finer aspects, has been found to be almost an unknown culinary art.

The More Game Birds Foundation, however, with an eye to abetting the unique move to control the black destroyer of beneficial birds' eggs and the farmer's grain, has now uncovered these recipes:

"First of all, the older crows should be skinned. Use only the breasts and legs. Young birds may be roasted like chicken, but use of butter or bacon is necessary or the meat may be too dry.

"Crow broth: Take the breast and legs, brown a little in butter, and then boil with a little celery until tender, using water according to quantity of broth desired.

"Crow sandwich spread: Use the boiled meat. Remove bones, run through meat chopper, add some mustard, minced onion, salt, pepper or paprika, and mayonnaise.

"Crow stew: Breast and legs may be used. Brown some large onions in bacon fat (one large onion to the bird), put in meat, salt, pepper or paprika, smother for a few minutes in the onions, add enough water to cover meat and let simmer over slow fire until tender. Stir in some sour cream mixed with a teaspoonful of flour."

The Washington Post FRIDAY, MAY 15, 1936.

3½ Per Cent General and Refunding Issue Priced at 104.

An issue of $17,500,000 Port of New York Authority general and refunding bonds, third series, 3½ per cent, due 1976, is beng offered today by a group of 29 investment banking houses, headed by Speyer & Co. The bonds are dated May 1, this year, and are priced at 101 per cent and interest.

Proceeds of the issue will be used to redeem $16,493,000 George Washington Bridge 4 per cent bonds. Net income from all operations and activities of the Port Authority increased 18 per cent for the year ended April 30, 1936. The gain was due not only to larger bridge and tunnel traffic, but also in part to rentals from the Port Authority Commerce Building, which, as of April 30, was more than 95 per cent occupied.

The bonds, which, in the opinion of counsel, are exempt from Federal and New York State income taxes, are not subject to redemption until May 1, 1941, when they are redeemable at 103; thereafter to May 1, 1945, at 102; thereafter to May 1, 1950, at 102; thereafter to May 1, 1955, at 101, and thereafter to maturity at 100.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively
A Special Correspondent.

Stock Prices Rally in More Active Trading; Bonds Advance; Wheat Steady; Cotton Firm.

New York, May 14.—Financial markets spent a more active day with hardening prices. Bonds were quoted higher from the Treasury issues to the low-grade sets, and stocks moved up moderately in nearly all groups without the help of bull rushes or selling attacks. Turnover in stocks rose to about 1,400,000 shares. September wheat closed unchanged to an eighth higher. New crop cotton was firm.

Having managed yesterday to close with the majority of stocks higher on the day, the market gave more confidence to those traders who still have ready cash or accounts outside the restricted area. Trading in the early hours was moderate, but bids kept a shade ahead of offers, with the result that prices for leading stocks steadily strengthened. The best prices for some time were paid for Steel, Motors, General Electric, Telephone, Santa Fe, Chrysler, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, Western Union and others. Gains ranged from 1 to 3 points.

Buoyant Groups.

Trading volume picked up after the noon period and prices maintained their earlier gains. Only small losses were felt in last-hour profit taking. Among the best toward the close were Coca-Cola, Crown Cork, Fairbanks, Morse, Greyhound, Ingersoll-Rand, Libbey-Owens Ford, National Supply, Neisner Brothers and Owens Glass. Losses of 1 to 2 points were taken in Bon Ami A, California Packing, Gamewell, Louisiana Oil preferred and Tide Water Oil.

The farm implement group was buoyant and mail orders rose 1 to 2 points, significant of the preparation for heavy distribution of farm bonuses and the good crop prospects. Case jumped 5 points. Advances of 1 to 2 points were the rule for the oils, rubbers, utilities, metals, foods, tobaccos and motor accessories. Rail equipments were even stronger than those last mentioned groups. Steels, chemicals and motors were buoyant.

Acceptances.

Dissolution of the American Acceptance Council, voted yesterday afternoon to take effect July 1, has long been considered in view of the dwindling activity of the market. The work of the council in promoting the bill market in this country has been noteworthy, but the market now can stand on its own feet so far as experience is concerned; it has dried up largely because of special conditions in the money market over which the council could have no control. The banks apparently decided that they might as well save even the few thousand dollars of yearly expense which the council entailed.

Inflation Recedes.

On the surface, at least, the market seems singularly insensitive to inflationary influences. It was dull while the Frazier-Lemke greenback was debated in the House, and it hardened after the defeat of the measure, although the closeness of the vote may have given some encouragement to the inflationists. Passage of a measure such as the proposal to pay off farm mortgages with bogus as well as bonus money might well prove to be the spark to touch off the ample supply of inflation powder lying around, but without something of the sort the process promises to be a slow one.

Gold Loss.

The Bank of France in the week of May 8 lost more than twice as much gold as in the preceding week, the decline in reported holdings amounted to 2,739,000,000 francs. That brought the gold reserve down to 58,029,000,000 francs, against 80,283,000,000 francs a year ago. Circulation declined and the gold ratio to currency circulation is still high at 62.33 per cent but at this time last year it was 80 per cent. It is still regarded here as a matter of national defense rather than of currency stability that will influence the French authorities in taking action, if necessary, to stop the loss of gold. For the moment the question is less pressing, in view of the hardening of the franc rate to above the gold shipping point. That has been done partly with British and American control operations, and doubtless the earmarking of gold to that account has added largely to the reported decline in the Bank of France's reserves.

Increase of 30% In Clearings Here

The Washington Clearing House reports total clearings of $23,237,934.92 for the week ended May 13, which compares with $17,797,122.36 for the corresponding period last year, an increase of 30.5 per cent. Compared with a total of $24,580,648.79 for the previous week, clearings decreased $1,342,713.87.

New York, May 14 (AP).—The gain in bank clearing over the 1935 comparative was extended in the latest week. The total for the week ended Wednesday, May 13, as reported to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., was $5,219,359,000, against $4,723,368,000 for the same week of last year, an increase of 10.5 per cent. This com-

Cotton Advances: May Is Up to 11.61

New York, May 14 (AP).—Cotton showed moderate gains today on the action of the Senate in approving a bill looking to the liquidation of 4,000,000 bales of 12-cent loan cotton.

Closing quotations were within a point or two of the best for the day with the old crop 3 to 9 and the new crops 14 to 16 points net higher.

Paul J. Seltzer Elected Head Of Local A. I. B.

W. H. Laughlin, Washington Loan, Is Named Vice President.

Paul J. Seltzer, of the American Security & Trust Co., was elected president of the Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, at the annual elections held last night. William H. Laughlin, Washington Loan & Trust Co., was elected first vice president. Their elections were unanimous.

Other officers elected were Joseph R. Fitzpatrick, Second National Bank, second vice president; Mrs. Myrtle P. Lewis, Liberty National Bank, secretary; George B. Ernshaw, National Metropolitan Bank, treasurer; Miss Margaret P. Hayden, Columbia National Bank, assistant secretary, and G. Crawford Trunbull, Morris Plan Bank, chief consul.

The election of George Ernshaw, a member of the board of governors, as treasurer, left five vacancies to be filled. Elected to the board of governors were Edward M. Blaiklock, Washington Loan & Trust Co.; John M. Christie, Riggs National Bank; G. Elmer Flather, Union Trust Co.; B. Bruce Frantz, American Security & Trust Co., and Richard A. Norris, Lincoln National Bank.

The new president has been with the American Security & Trust Co. for 19 years and at present is head teller and assistant cashier. He has been associated with chapter activities since 1927 and has served as chief consul, treasurer, secretary, and first vice president, and has been on all the important committees as well as a delegate to all national conventions within recent years. He has completed the standard, pre-standard, and advance courses given in the educational studies of the A. I. B.

Ayres Says Stocks, Business at Odds

Cleveland, May 14.—Security prices and business activity have been taking opposite trends in the first four months of this year, Col. Leonard P. Ayres said today in the monthly bulletin of the Cleveland Trust Co.

"In the first quarter," he said, "both stock and bond prices were moving upward vigorously despite the fact that industrial production was declining, and most forms of commerce and transportation were restricted by the severe winter weather and then by floods. "In April the directions of the movements were reversed, and security prices declined while business activity advanced." He added:

"Production is advancing," he said, "pay rolls are expanding, and employment is improving.

Filed May 5, 1936. Frank D. Cunningham, Clerk. ORDER OF CITATION. Upon consideration of the petition of the United States of America filed herein on the 5th day of May, 1936, by Leslie C. Garnett, United States Attorney for the District of Columbia, acting under the instructions of the Attorney General of the United States and at the request of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, seeking the condemnation of the following described lands in the District of Columbia: Parcel 1—Part of a tract of land called "Aaron" described in accordance with plats of computation recorded respectively in Survey Book 102, page 469, and Survey Book 110, page 230, of the records of the Office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia (hereafter in this citation called the Surveyor) as follows: Beginning for the same at a point distant south 43° 54' 45" west 177.19 feet from the northeasterly corner of the land conveyed to Jason E. Matthews and wife, Lillian I. Matthews, by deed recorded in Liber 6595, at folio 21, among the Land Records of the District of Columbia, and running thence south 61° 58' 45" east 222.49 feet; thence northeasterly along the arc of a circle deflecting to the right, the radius of which is 430 feet, an arc distance of 55.13 feet; thence north 47° 16' 45" west 171.46 feet to the northwesterly line of the land conveyed to said Matthews and wife as aforesaid; thence with said northwesterly line 107.19 feet to the beginning. Said parcel contains, according to the plat of the Surveyor, 16,290.43 square feet, is known for assessment and taxation purposes as part of Parcel 201/101 and appears to be unimproved. PARCEL 2—Part of a tract of land called "Aaron" described in accordance with plats of computation recorded respectively in Survey Book 102, page 469, and Survey Book 110, page 230, of the Surveyor's Office records as follows: Beginning for the same on the northeasterly line of the land conveyed to Albert E. Stanley by deed recorded in Liber 3827, folio 481, among the Land Records of the District of Columbia, at a point distant north 47° 16' 45" west 228.15 feet from the northwesterly line of Alabama avenue and running thence along said Collins' north line 47° 16' 45" west 171.85 feet to the northwesterly line of said conveyance; thence with said northwesterly line south 43° 54' 45" west 70 feet; thence south 47° 16' 45" east 191.46 feet; thence northeasterly along the arc of a circle deflecting to the right, the radius of which is 430 feet, an arc distance of 72.36 feet to the place of beginning. Said parcel contains, according to the plat of the surveyor, 12,637.30 square feet, is known for purposes of assessment and taxation as part of Parcel 201/62 and appears to be improved by a stucco and frame building known as 3930 Alabama avenue southeast. PARCEL 3—Part of a tract of land called "Aaron," described as follows: Beginning for the same at a point in the center line of Thirty-ninth street and the northerly line of Parcel 201/81 and running thence south 71° 43' east 389.71 feet; thence south 18° 17' west 200 feet; thence south 71° 43' east 175 feet; thence south 11° 43' east 197.15 feet; thence southwesterly deflecting to the left with the arc of a circle, the radius of which is 450 feet, an arc distance of 152.14 feet to a point of compound curve; thence still southwesterly deflecting to the left with the arc of another circle, the radius of which is 1,750 feet, an arc distance of 279.23 feet; thence north 37° 26' west 58.22 feet; thence north 47° 22' west 165 feet; thence north 10° 16' west 33 feet; thence north 18° 38' west 49.50 feet; thence north 18° 45' west 99 feet; thence north 8° 45' west 66 feet; thence north 14° 47' east 74.25 feet; thence north 32° 50' west 3.89 feet to the center line of a proposed street as per District of Columbia Highway Plan; thence northerly with the center line of said proposed street and with the arc of a circle, the radius of which is 775 feet, an arc distance of 328.06 feet to a point of curve; thence north 16.15 feet to the place of beginning. Said parcel contains, according to the plat of the surveyor, 286,217.87 square feet, is known for purposes of assessment and taxation as part of Parcel 201/81, and appears to be unimproved. RECORD: Lots 5 and 6 in Square 5515 in the Washington Loan & Trust Co., Trustee's Subdivision of part of "Bailey's Purchase" and "Fortune Enlarged," as per plat recorded in Liber County 24, folio 8, of the records of the Office of the Surveyor. Said parcel contains, according to the plat of the surveyor, 4,305.12 square feet and appears to be unimproved, for the public use, that is to say, for suitable development of the National Capital park, parkway and playground system: It is this 5th day of May, 1936, ORDERED that Arthur G. Baldwin Hopes U. S. Will Enter Revised League

Change in Sanction Clause at September Session Also Predicted.

London, May 14.—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin revealed today that he expects the League of Nations to be reorganized during the September session at Geneva.

Baldwin expressed hope that reorganization would be undertaken with a view of bringing the United States, Germany and Japan into the family of nations.

Admitting failure of the League in the Italo-Ethiopian war, Baldwin said economic and financial sanctions such as were applied against Italy probably can not succeed unless the sanctionist powers are prepared to go to war to back them up.

Addressing 7,000 members of conservative and women's organizations at Albert Hall, Baldwin intimated that article 16 of the League Covenant—providing for economic, financial and military sanctions against an aggressor—must be reconstructed.

He said he was greatly disappointed by the League's failure to halt Italy's conquest of Ethiopia, but added that he did not think it possible for failure of the first experiment with sanctions to doom the League to destruction.

"I am not disposed, and do not intend, to take the blame for what happened," he said. "It is well known that we did much more than anybody else."

However, he said, economic sanctions are "not likely to succeed unless the countries concerned are prepared to risk going to war."

Diplomatic circles recalled that Premier Benito Mussolini recently demanded that the League be reorganized in accordance with its power and ability.

Russia Cites Alternative.

Geneva, May 14 (AP).—Russia pressed Great Britain tonight to take one of two positions on sanctions against Italy, League of Nations sources reported.

Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet foreign commissar, urged Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, to consider these two definite stands:

1. Abandon war sanctions against Italy and wipe the slate clean for reorganization of the League.

2. Lead the move for drastic enforcement of new and more effective penalties against the Fascist aggression in East Africa.

The conversation between Litvinoff and Eden was one of several as delegates remained in Geneva after the League Council had adjourned until June 16.

The Russian delegate talked with Peter Munch, of Denmark, and Salvador de Madariaga, of Spain, while Eden conferred with Joseph A. C. Venol, League secretary-general, and others.

No hint of any possible solution of League problems came from the conference rooms. Observers were reluctant to predict the future course of diplomatic developments in the face of unpredicted action by Hitler, of Germany, and Mussolini, of Italy.

The British delegates seemed to look forward to the Council meeting June 16 as a general discussion of the whole European situation.

Eden and his colleague left for London tonight.

Ohio Bank Robbed.

Oberlin, Ohio, May 14 (AP).—Two unmasked young men robbed the First Wellington Bank of between $5,000 and $10,000 today at nearby Wellington after herding five customers and three bank employes into the lobby. They escaped in an automobile.

But the more democratic Schuschnigg becomes the more certain he is of driving Von Starhemberg into open opposition, observers said.

Schuschnigg received several diplomats today and explained to them that no radical change in foreign relations is contemplated, with the Rome pact remaining the cornerstone of policy.

French circles hinted that a more tolerant policy toward Socialists would be welcomed by Paris and might be traded for guarantees of Austrian independence, even a loan from France.

Austria was quiet following the coup of the scholarly Schuschnigg, but also was tense. Provincial Heimwehrmen who telephoned headquarters asking whether they should attempt to occupy public buildings were told to remain at their posts.

Von Starhemberg now holds only one post in the government, that of sports front leader.

doubt that the Italians, who are a people of workers and who now have obtained the legitimate satisfactions that their existence demanded, have turned passionately to peace, of which they have need to complete ttheir work. I wish peace. I wish to work for peace.

"I consider it monstrous that the process by which we have assured in Ethiopia the necessary expansion for our people should be criticized.

"How about the others? What have they been doing for centuries long?

"There has never been but one means in the world of imposing one's will on backward peoples—force.

"Irrevocable! Understand that exclamation and repeat that again and again.

"All Europe must hear that word, that cry from the entire people which has desired its empire and which has achieved it alone by an immense sacrifice and which can tomorrow, if necessary, defend it with its courage and its force."

Nazi Officials Snub Eckéner On Return Trip

Zeppelin Skipper Ignored in Germany's Welcome to Ship's Crew.

By the Associated Press.

Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, May 14.—Dr. Hugo Eckener, in contrast to his enthusiastic welcome in America, was politely ignored at home today after the big dirigible Hindenburg returned safely from a record-breaking flight to New Jersey.

The president of the Zeppelin Co. was handed a cup on his arrival, but this was merely a part of ceremonies by the Nazi governor for the crew of the Hindenburg. Thereafter Eckener was left out of the picture.

Most Germans did not know Eckener was aboard and fewer knew that the Nazi leader gave him a cup. His name was completely ignored in an official news account of the Zeppelin's arrival and only one Berlin newspaper, with independent accounts, mentioned his name.

Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, minister of air, sent a telegram of congratulations to the Zeppelin Co., which Eckener heads. It was addressed to "The Zeppelin Co., and did not mention Eckener in either the address or the text.

Capt. Ernest Lehmann, of the Hindenburg, who did all the talking here for publication, said the American flight made it almost certain no insurmountable difficulties lay in the path of regular transatlantic services. A definite decision, however, will not be taken until after the scheduled summer flights have been analyzed, he added.

The Hindenburg was grounded at 5:45 a. m. and almost immediately preparations were made for a return flight to Lakehurst to begin Saturday. Her time for the return trip was given as 49 hours 3 minutes. A crowd of thousands was on hand.
